Sen. McAdoo Concedes Loss To Backer of $30 Pensions

Issues Statement Saying 'Scrip' Proposal Will 'Ruin' State.

Downey Supports Roosevelt Also

Olson Leads Governor Race; Riley, Merriam Pace G. O. P.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—Senator McAdoo, President Roosevelt's choice, conceded defeat tonight for renomination by Sheridan Downey, liberal champion of $30-a-week "scrip" pension movement, and predicted the plan, if adopted, would "ruin California."

The pension idea crashed into the primary with surprising force and suddenness, aiding also another liberal, Culbert L. Olson, in his successful race for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and rolling up big totals for other candidates who defended it.

Downey supporters joined with Democratic Party leaders in asserting the pension advocate's victory was not to be construed as a rebuke for President Roosevelt, who thrice came to McAdoo's assistance and disapproved the pension scheme as a fantastic "short cut to Utopia."

Merriam Wins.

In 9,164 out of 12,438 precincts Downey collected 299,574 votes to McAdoo's 275,911. Throughout the day Downey's lead varied between 20,000 and 45,000.

A large portion of the unreported precincts remained in Los Angeles and other southern pension-minded counties where Downey received the bulk of his support.

Among the Republicans, who kept out of the pension arena, Conservative Gov. Frank F. Merriam won renomination and Ray L. Riley, veteran State officer, took the lead in the senatorial contest after trailing Philip Bancroft, militant farmer and New Deal critic, all day.

Merriam polled 248,780 in 8,856 precincts, while his nearest opponent, Lieut. Gov. George Hatfield, was collecting 111,038.

The Republican senatorial count in 8,339 precincts was: Riley, 176,339; Bancroft, 172,060.

Calls Plan "Cruel Delusion."

The 74-year-old McAdoo, who helped turn the 1932 Democratic national convention to the Roosevelt banner and who has been supporting the President ever since, credited the pension movement with giving victory to "the successful candidates."

"This undoubtedly determined the result of the election," he said in a message to Mrs. Lucretia Del Valle Grady, national committeewoman for California.

McAdoo reiterated he "could not support a cruel delusion of old and deserving people, as this measure undoubtedly is.

"I know that it will ruin California if adopted and that it will defeat the Democratic Party if it advocates it.

"I concur wholly in the views expressed by President Roosevelt on this subject, while at the same time I renew my allegiance to him and to his New Deal objectives.

Still Backs Roosevelt.

"I am not concerned about myself, but I am deeply concerned about the future of the State and about the continued success of President Roosevelt's Administration of which I have been and shall

Tydings Says New Deal Strove to Oust Hughes

Communists Give Lewis An Unwelcome Pat On the Back.

'I'll Lick Whole Damn Crowd,' Senator Yells As Hearers Whoop.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Aug. 31.—Local Communists, after being slapped last night by Representative Lewis, today turned the other cheek and praised the little New Deal senatorial candidate. In so doing, they brought joy to the camp of Senator Tydings.

The State committee of the Communist Party of Maryland issued a formal statement lauding Representative Lewis for his "clear record of support for New Deal legislation" and describing Senator Tydings as a "spokesman of reaction."

To the Lewis supporters this was a boquet of poison ivy, and about as welcome as the pledge of Republican support was to Senator George in Georgia.

For weeks Tydings has been hammering away on the slogan that "A vote for David J. Lewis is a vote for John L. Lewis and the Communists." He has emphasized it particularly on Maryland's Eastern Shore, which has now become the chief battleground in the Democratic primary and which is to be visited Labor Day by President Roosevelt in an effort to swing it to Lewis.

Now the Communists have come to Tydings' aid by giving him something he can quote against "Little Washingtonians had a ringside seat in Maryland's Democratic senatorial battle last night as both Senator Tydings and Representative Lewis came within shouting distance of the White House and made bids for Prince Georges County's seven convention votes.

Senator Tydings disclosed a hitherto untold story of the Senate Supreme Court reform bill fight before a crowd that overflowed the Hyattsville Masonic Temple, while Representative Lewis regaled his opponent as an "obstructionist" before a Mount Rainier audience.

Tydings said that the Administration had demanded the resignation of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes as a condition to acceptance of a compromise offered by the opposition bloc in the Senate.

The Maryland Senator said he acted as spokesman for the bloc, which agreed to accept the Administration bill as written save for a provision that it would not apply to the present court membership. He had pointed out that Justice Vandevanter had resigned and Sutherland was prepared to step out, thus giving the President two vacancies and a majority of the court.

"I was told that we would have to induce another member of the court to resign," Tydings recalled. "We were asked to get Mr. Hughes to

Former Adviser Gives His Warning as President Vows to Keep On.

By Sidney Olson.

A confidential political report on Georgia and Maryland, terming the President's purge frankly "in all probability a one hundred per cent flop," was made to the White House yesterday by an observer once high in New Deal circles.

This report came to the White House even as it was indicated the President would continue to press his so-called "purge," despite the defeat in South Carolina of New Dealer Gov. Olin D. Johnston by incumbent Senator Smith, and the apparent defeat in California of 100 per cent New Dealer William Gibbs McAdoo.

The observer bluntly stated that President Roosevelt's hearty indorsement of Lawrence B. Camp for the Senate seat now held by Senator Walter F. George unquestionably had narrowed the race.

"But," he smiled, "Camp is still a short third, and with almost no chance of even nosing out Eugene Talmadge for the second spot. Senator George will win by a good-sized plurality at least."

In Maryland, he agreed in the main with the Gallup poll of yesterday, showing incumbent Senator Tydings leading Representative Lewis. But he said his survey showed that Tydings at this point would receive 55 per cent of the total votes (Gallup said 58) and Lewis 45 per cent (Gallup 42). He added:

"The whole key to the Maryland race, even at this late date, lies in the Eastern Shore, and the whole Eastern Shore hinges on the position of Representative Alan T. Goldsborough.

"If Goldsborough can be induced or converted to a strong indorsement of Lewis, Tydings can be licked.

"Otherwise it's all over. Even a

Hines Gunmen Packed Votes, Davis Swears

Gang Lawyer Describes the Election of Dodge With 'Floaters.'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 31.—The story of William C. Dodge, a district attorney, walking into a grand jury hearing to throw the jury off the trail of James J. Hines and the Schultz mob, was told today at Hines' trial by J Richard (Dixie) Davis, Schultz's lawyer.

At Hines' behest, the witness testified, Dodge also tried to block the appointment of Thomas E. Dewey as a special prosecutor in 1935, after Hines had been warned by the gang that this man Dewey was pretty tough.

Star witness for the prosecution of Hines on charges of conspiring to protect Schultz's policy mob against police and courts, Davis described in detail in his first day of testimony how Schultz's gangsters operated out of the Monongahela Democratic Club, Hines' clubhouse, to stuff the ballot boxes of the Eleventh Assembly District for Dodge as a Tammany prosecutor.

Schultz was in exile, Davis recalled, but all his principal gunmen were there at the clubhouse. Under Dixie's tutelage the mob directed about 100 floaters, provided with names and addresses of voters, and the location of polling places, and the location of polling places, in casting their votes both early and often. According to the testimony, there were between 300 and 400 of these votes to be cast, and the 100 floaters, backed by the gorillas to keep them out of trouble, took care of all those votes.

It was a formidable group of election workers, according to Davis. There was "Abe" Landau, alias "The Killer;" Johnny Cooney, "Big Harry Schoenhaus, Marty Krompier, who was shot up badly by rival gangsters on the night

Lloyd's of London Won't Bet Against Roosevelt 3d Term

Lloyd's of London, which has taken bets on everything from the end of the world to the coronation of Edward VIII, has refused to write insurance against a third term for President Roosevelt.

The Capital Daily, published here by the Capitol Daily News Service, Inc., said in a copyrighted story it had asked Lloyd's "to quote us rates against the contingency of President Franklin D. Roosevelt remaining in the office of the Presidency of the United States after 1940."

The story said Lloyd's American agents, in an unprecedented refusal, replied:

"We regret to advise that Underwriters at Lloyd's are unwilling to quote any rates for or against the re-election of Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt as President of the United States in 1940."

The Capitol Daily said Lloyd's refusal to insure against a third term for Roosevelt "may prove to be an ominous prediction of another world war."

It pointed to the belief of some observers that a European war, threatening to involve the United States, would insure the re-election of President Roosevelt.

H. H. Stansbury, president of the Capitol Daily News Service, said directors decided last month to separate the Capitol Weekly from the regular Saturday edition of the Capitol Daily, but it "was considered untimely to launch the new publication without protection in the form of insurance against continued occupancy of the White House by Mr. Roosevelt.

Business fears of a third term figured the desire for insurance, Stansbury said.

Board Fails To End Rail Pay Dispute

Labor Officials Reject Arbitration of 15% Wage Cut.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Unable to persuade the railroad brotherhoods to submit the 15 per cent wage cut sought by the country's Class 1 carriers to arbitration, the National Railway Mediation Board reported today that "up to the present point all practical methods provided in the railway labor act for adjusting disputes have been exhausted without effecting a settlement."

George A. Harrison, president of the Railway Labor Executives Association, representing 18 unions, promptly announced a Nation-wide strike ballot of all employes would be begun immediately. He said it would take about three weeks to complete the strike vote, but that the votes would be tabluated by October 1.

On that date, the 30-day period during which the status quo must be maintained following the collapse of mediation will end.

Report to Roosevelt.

Despite the collapse of the mediation board's efforts today, the railway labor act provides one more safeguard against a strike and there appeared tonight to be every likelihood that it would be employed.

As explained by Prof. William M. Leiserson, of Antioch College, chairman of the mediation board, once a definite strike date has been set, President Roosevelt may appoint an emergency fact-finding board which must report back to him within a 30-day period.

For this 30-day period while the board is investigating and for a further 30-day period after it has made its report to President, the parties to the controversy must maintain the status quo.

It was apparent the railway labor act, frequently hailed as the most enlightened system yet established in the United States for the amicable settlement of industrial labor disputes, is undergoing the most severe test since its enactment in 1926 in the current wage-cut controversy between the railroads and their 900,000 employes.

Arbitration Rejected.

The carriers' joint conference committee, which has been negotiating with representatives of the railroad brotherhoods for the past two months, accepted the board's proposal to submit the proposed 15 per cent cut to arbitration.

The railway labor executive board in behalf of its 18 affiliated unions, and A. F. Whitney, in behalf of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of which he is president, promptly rejected the arbitration proposal.

Harrison said "a wage cut at this time in this great national industry would be inconsistent with our national policy and a blow to further business recovery and prosperity."

For the Brotherhood of Trainmen, Whitney wrote the mediation board that "even acquiescing in arbitration is so fraught with dangerous possibilities to the economic condition of the United States that the representatives of the employes can-

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Soldiers' Field, Chicago, Aug. 31.—Washington's Redskins surrendered four touchdowns to the College All-Stars in the second half tonight and took a 28-16 beating before 74,250 mid-summer football fans under the lights of vast Soldiers' Field.

The highly advertised individual duel between the Redskins' Sammy Baugh and the Collegians' Whizzer White failed to develop as big Cecil Isbell, Purdue's gift to the All-Star team, sparked the college team to the most decisive victory in the five years of the charity-game competition. Isbell's clever passing and line-bucking figured in two touchdowns and a drive toward a field goal for the All-Stars who came from behind to 10-to-3 deficit at the half to overwhelm the professionals with their second-half splurge.

White, used only sparingly by the All-Star coaches, displayed none of the passing or running talents which earned him All-American fame and he was withdrawn after participating in a futile second quarter.

The Redskins' chief weapon, the forward pass, boomeranged on them, when the All-Stars intercepted two passes in the second half and dashed to touchdowns. But Baugh was not the victim of those fatal throws. They were heaved by the Rookies George Karamatic and Bill Tuckey.

Max Krause led a Redskins' charge which wiped out the Collegians' 3-0 lead in the first quarter and Riley Smith added a field goal that gave the pros a 10-3 lead at the half.

Isbell whipped a long pass to Kovatch, Minnesota end, for a touchdown in the third quarter, and the Collegians took a 15-10 lead a bit later in the period when Karamatic's pass was intercepted by Phil Dougherty, All-Star center from Santa Clara, who dashed 40 yards to the goal.

Just before the third period ended, Isbell flung a long pass to Frank Patrick, who was downed on the 1-foot line, and Isbell crashed cen-

A native of Louisiana, Mr. Powell has resided in San Antonio for about 20 years. He has practiced law and had been active in promoting public health and adult educational programs. He has been regional director since the board was organized.

Mr. Altmeyer said the appointment was "in accordance with the board's policy of promoting from within its organization, whenever possible."

Nazi-Czech Crisis Cancels Cruise of Italian Warships

Special Cable to The Post.

Rome, Aug. 31.—Owing to the gravity of the international situation, the world cruise of the Italian cruisers, Eugenio di Savoia and Duca d'Aosto, was canceled today.

The two vessels were to have left Gaeta today and to have called at Gibraltar Saturday.

The Italian press was ordered not to mention the cancellation of their departures. There is little realization among the general public of the nature of the European situation.

This appears to point to a strong desire on the part of the government to keep out of the Czech dispute and there is reason to believe Italian diplomacy is using its moderating influence in Berlin to the full. Observers here believe Italy has no desire to be drawn into a general conflict at this time.

Tobacco Trade Is Laboratory For Wage Law

Textile Industry Also to Be One of First Gone Into by Andrews.

By Robert C. Albright.

Two separate committees to draw up wages and hours regulations for the tobacco trade were tentatively decided on yesterday, as two big Southern industries, textiles and tobacco, became laboratories for the new wage-hour law.

The law becomes effective October 24.

Following preliminary conferences with leading tobacco manufacturers and labor representatives, Wage and Hour Administrator Elmer F. Andrews said it was generally agreed to establish a committee of 9 for the cigar industry and a separate committee of 15 for cigarettes, smoking and chewing tobacco and snuff.

Textiles First.

Andrews announced last week that 21 representatives of manufacturers, labor and the public will draft initial regulations for textiles, first industry selected as proving ground for the act. Divergence of opinion on the scope of the textile trade will delay appointment of that group until next week, and the tobacco committees will be named shortly thereafter.

Andrews said the dress industry would be next.

"We are looking for industries which are large and low-paid," he said.

Andrews is expected today to fill several key posts still vacant in the

Warden Blames Subordinates For Steam Deaths of Prisoners

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Rebuked for "ridiculous" management of the Philadelphia County Prison, Warden William B. Mills today blamed subordinates for the "baking to death" of four convicts in "sweatbox" punishment cells.

He named Guard Sergt. James Hart as responsible for turning on the killing heat and said Deputy Warden Frank Craven, knowing of conditions, should have ordered the steam shut off in the battery of radiators that lined a corridor of the "Klondike" isolation building where the men were confined. He denied all personal responsibility. Hart acted, he said, without his knowledge or permission.

The warden was the chief witness at a tumultuous inquest punctuated by a spectators' demonstration when Coroner Charles J. Herrel interrupted Mills' testimony and scolded:

"You don't know how to run that prison. This is the loosest, most peculiar situation I ever heard of in an institution that houses 1,400 prisoners, where there are no rules and regulations and no one seems to know what's going on."

The crowd applauded, stomped and cheered. One spectator shrilled:

"He's the killer."

Mills hung his head. The coroner threatened to clear the room.

The warden had electrified the hearing when Assistant District Attorney John A. Boyle, striding up and down in shirtsleeves, asked him who actually ordered an assistant prison engineer to send steam

Britain Seeks Assurance of U. S. Help in Case of War

Halifax Calls Kennedy to Ascertain Possible Roosevelt Views.

Armed American Aid Believed Hope

London Remains Tense, but Sees Faint Hint of Eventual Peace.

The Czech Crisis.

London sought a clew as to what America will do if there is war. Kennedy conferred with Halifax. Daladier adhered to his plan to increase French working hours beyond 40 hours a week to build up the war material supply. Leftists grumbled.

Britain's envoy returned to Berlin a new statement of British views on the Czech issue. Hitler was reported planning to call the Reichstag.

Italy canceled the world cruise of two warships because of the European situation.

U. S. Sounded Out.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Aug. 31.—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy conferred today at the foreign office at the invitation of Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax.

Kennedy would not reveal the nature of the conversation, but it was learned definitely the British government was sounding out United States on what action may be expected from President Roosevelt in the event the Czechoslovak dispute precipitates a second world war.

Czechoslovakia is much closer geographically to the British Isles than is America, but the foreign policy of Washington means far more to the British empire than the fate of Prague.

Press "Plays" Visit.

Kennedy's conference with Lord Halifax followed up his meeting yesterday with Prime Minister Chamberlain and Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin.

Kennedy's second visit to Downing street in two days attracted considerable attention. Afternoon newspaper placards proclaimed: "U. S. Envoy in Whitehall." The whole English press is playing up the American moves for the deterrent effect it may have on Hitler and his militant advisers.

For some time France has been looking to England for leadership on the London-Paris axis and now London is turning to Washington for an unequivocal stand that will make it clear to the Nazis that war with the Czechs will mean war with the French, British and Americans, also. It appears that Britain is counting even more upon the Americans than upon the Russians, who are bound by treaty to the Czechs, as are the French.

U. S. Attitude Uncertain.

The British quest for precise information is not too difficult to understand when one recalls President Roosevelt's Chicago speech about "quarantining" aggressor nations and somewhat similar strong talk by Secretary of State Hull and American newspaper suggestions of "parallel action" between the "two great democracies." Britain wants to find out whether this strong talk is intended to pave the way for active wartime co-operation.

The British are anxious to know what degree, if at all, the American neutrality act would be invoked against them. They are also curious about the Johnson act which denies American credit to nations which defaulted on their war debt to the United States. Britain would have

Smith Piles Up Huge Lead to Defeat 'Purge'

Senator Has 173,901 to Johnston's 135,544; Maybank Leads.

By the Associated Press.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 31.—Senator Ellison D. (Cotton Ed) Smith and Mayor Burnet R. Maybank, of Charleston, today continued to pull ahead of their opponents in returns from yesterday's Democratic senatorial and gubernatorial primaries.

In the Senate race, 1448 of the State's 1507 precincts, gace Smith 193,901 votes and Gov. Olin D. Johnston, favored by President Roosevelt, 135,544.

With 1,433 precincts reporting, Maybank had 106,873 votes, and Wyndham Manning, Sumter County farmer and former Representative, 68,742. They will meet in a run-off primary September 13.

Wannamaker Wins.

Third in the race was former Governor and Senator, Cole L. Blease, with 55,822 votes. Neville Bennett received 44,133 votes, Ben E. Adams 24,696, F. M. Easterlin 6,528, John Hughes Cooper 990, and D. T. Blackmon 964.

On the basis of returns from 1,420 precincts, Lieut. Gov. J. E. Marley of Barnwell was renominated with 142,610 votes. Representative L. C. Vannamaker received 96,410 votes and R. E. Hanna 27,713.

"Cotton Ed" donned a blazing red shirt to celebrate his victory, and compared his winning to that of the original red shirts who reclaimed the State from carpetbag rule in 1876.

Red Shirts Congratulate Him.

"We conquered in '76 and we conquered in '38," Smith said as he stood at the foot of the statue of Gen. Wade Hampton on the Statehouse grounds and addressed a large group of red-shirted men who came from Orangeburg to congratulate him.

"We fought with bullets then, but today, thank God, we fought with ballots," the veteran Senator said.

Approximately 200 of the red-shirted men made the trip here under the leadership of Thomas R. Smith, an Orangeburg County farmer, who walked out of the Philadelphia Democratic National Convention with Smith in protest against a prayer by a colored minister.

Smith, no kin to the Senator, said that the red shirt was seen at every poll in Orangeburg yesterday as wearers actively electioneered for the Senator.

He said plans were for the organizations to be a permanent one only if the election was lost.

"He was re-elected, so we are safe," T. R. Smith told reporters.

The visitors presented a red shirt to Senator Smith soon after their arrival.

"We Hurled to World."

"Sirs," the Senator began, "the symbol you wear tonight is the symbol you hurled to the world" after the Confederate War, when Negroes and carpetbaggers got control of the State government.

Wade Hampton was the gubernatorial candidate who was elected in 1876, marking the termination of colored rule.

Smith paid high tribute to Hampton.

"He did not agree that our civilization should be threatened by Federal bayonets. . . . He drove the scalawags and carpetbaggers from our midst.

"Tonight the sons of those heroes have gathered to celebrate another victory."

Obviously referring to President Roosevelt's indorsement of Gov. Johnston for the place he has held for 30 years, Smith declared:

"No man dares to come into South Carolina and try to dictate to the sons of those men who held high the hands of Lee and Hampton.

Attacks "Instructions."

"We welcome anyone to come into our State and advise with us but not to come and tell us whom we are to choose.

"I stand here tonight as your representative of 30 years in the United States Senate and, thank God, that the old spirit of South Carolina is living again tonight.

"On you rests the responsibility to protect her from the mongrel breed who would take us back to the horrid days of reconstruction.

"Without fear or favor we drove these demons from our midst."

He ended his impromptu oration with the verse ". . . Lord God of hosts, be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget."

Tydings Is "Pleased."

Baltimore, Aug. 31 (AP).—Senator Tydings said today the was "greatly pleased" that his colleague, Senator Smith, of South Carolina, also opposed by President Roosevelt, had won the Democratic renomination.

"South Carolina is the rock-ribbed Democratic Gibraltar of America and its vote of confidence in Senator in Senator Smith, one who ditional heritage.

"The country has a splendid Senator in Senator SSmith, one who has the interests of his people at heart, and who will always be a credit to his State and the Nation."

Labor Would Sacrifice Power As Third Party, Green Asserts

Independent Political Action Would Rob Workers of 'Balance' Position, A. F. L. Chief Says; Denies Purge Effects Indorsements.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 31.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, predicted tonight labor would lose "the balance of power" if it formed an independent political party.

Green said that on the basis of primary election results this year in which both the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. have played important roles, the federation was satisfied its traditional non-partisan policy was "practical and successful."

Green declared the Roosevelt administration's efforts to "purge" some anti-New Deal members of Congress up for re-election has had no influence on the political indorsements issued by the federation.

Backed Smith.

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, and Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, both seeking re-election against Administration opposition, were indorsed by Green.

Green said the Federation likewise indorsed Republicans who were considered by A. F. of L. leaders to have supported legislation advocated by the Federation.

The A. F. of L., he said, had indorsed Republican Representatives Barton and Fish in New York State. When questioned, however, about the Federation's attitude toward Representative O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, also on the Administration "purge" list, he said the Federation had not reached a decision.

Says Time Not Ripe.

In response to questions about the Federation's attitude toward independent political party action for organized labor, Green said:

"The situation in this country is not ripe for the formation of an independent labor party. We are still an agricultural country and have not developed a real comprehensive economic and industrial program between labor and the farmer.

"An independent political party now would mean the isolation of labor's strength, while the pursuit of a nonpartisan policy would mean labor's political strength could be used as the balance of power."

Claims Smith Victory.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 31 (U.P.).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, tonight claimed credit for renomination of U. S. Senator Smith of South Carolina, who was opposed by the New Deal Administration.

"We did the same thing in Iowa," he said, "when Senator Gillette was victorious. We opposed Maury Maverick in Texas and he lost, despite the C. I. O. and Administration support."

Drop in Price Of Wheat Gives Subsidy Speed

10c Decline From July to August Hurries Plan to Sell Abroad.

The Government yesterday redoubled efforts to take 100,000,000 bushels of wheat off the glutted domestic market for export as the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported a 10-cent drop in the price of wheat between mid-July and mid-August.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation formally invited grain dealers to submit offers to sell wheat to the corporation. The FSCC, which late last week launched the export subsidy program with initial market purchases, is selling the wheat purchased to exporters who agree to place it in foreign markets.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics previously reported that mid-August grain prices were 62 per cent of pre-war; 10 points under July and at the lowest level since April 1933.

"Wheat prices continued to decline sharply at local farm markets during the month ended August 15, influenced by the record world supplies now moving to market," the bureau's report said.

"Prices received by farmers for wheat dropped from 60.8 cents per bushel on July 15 to 50.7 cents in mid-August. This was only a little more than one-half of the average price of 99.4 cents on August 15 of last year. This was the lowest August figure on record since 1932."

General prices of farm products at local markets on August 15 were 3 points lower than a month earlier, as the farm price index lost the 3-point gains registered in mid-July and returned to levels prevailing in May and June.

The bureau's index of prices paid by farmers dropped from 123 on July 15 to 122 in mid-August. The ratio of prices received by the farmers to prices paid declined from 77 in mid-July to 75 on August 15.

The Government meanwhile pushed forward its wheat export subsidy program with the FSCC announcement to grain dealers that it is ready to receive offers of wheat produced in the continental United States suitable for sale in the export market. It indicated the greatest export demand is for hard winter wheat produced in the Southwest and wheat produced in the Pacific Northwest.

The Political Arena

Homer Capehart, Who Gave Party for Republicans, Doesn't Want to Run as a Democrat.

Washington, Ind., Aug. 31 (AP).—Homer E. Capehart, sponsor of last week's Republican "cornfield conference" here, today telegraphed Mrs. Norman E. Mack, of Buffalo, N. Y., associate Democratic committeewoman for New York, a request that his name be withdrawn as a candidate for Democratic precinct committeeman in Amherst, N. Y.

CAPEHART.

"I have before me," Capehart said in the telegram, "copy of Buffalo Times in which it states that you, along with Edward Detloff, Democratic county and other prominent Democrats, chairman of Erie County, N. Y., signed a petition on August 13 to place my name on the ballot for Democratic precinct committeeman of the Fifth District, town of Amherst, all of which was without my knowledge and consent. * * *

"I cannot help but feel you were misled and misinformed and no doubt were told I was seeking the position, which is untrue. * * *

"I feel that you and I have both been dealt wrongly with by professional politicians. * * * Therefore, for your sake as well as mine, I am asking that you see that my name is stricken from the ballot and some other person is substituted who will serve if elected."

Capehart, vice president of a music company, maintains a home in Amherst.

Senator Russell (Democrat), of Georgia, predicted Wednesday that efforts to curtail regular Government expenditures would accomplish little in the next Congress. He said demands for funds to continue farm benefit payments and the relief program might be met by processing taxes. Russell is a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

New demands by Representative Dies (Democrat), Texas, for quick deportation of Harry Bridges, militant leader of C. I. O. maritime labor on the West Coast, proved unavailing yesterday.

Secretary of Labor Perkins stuck to her decision to delay a hearing in the Bridges case until the Supreme Court has decided another case, which, she said, presents similar issues.

The disputed case now awaiting Supreme Court action involves Joseph G. Strecker, of Hot Springs, Ark. In deciding it, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the law does not forbid ailiens to belong to any party unless it advocates overthrow of the Government by force.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 31 (AP).—A new effort toward a legislative investigation of alleged political activity in the Works Progress Administration was announced today by Assemblyman Oscar R. Wilensky, of Passaic.

He said he had "reliable" reports that 7,500 WPA workers in Passaic County had been assessed $1 each for a picnic "which seems to be a new method of collecting campaign funds."

Now they're holding "launching" ceremonies for rural electrification projects.

REA officials said yesterday that the Fayette-Union County rural electric co-operative at Liberty, Ind., started service by having a pretty girl break a ribbon-covered kerosene lamp on an electric pole.

The lamp was filled with water for the occasion—not champagne.

Merit System Is Sought for Veterans Unit

Gen. Hines to Recommend Civil Service Status for Attendants.

The "attendant" class of workers in the Veterans Administration—cooks, housekeepers, matrons, seamstresses and barbers—yesterday saw hope of inclusion in the Federal civil service, through the Executive orders of June 24, which aim at merit system extension.

In a letter to Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers of America, Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans administrator, said that he would recommend their inclusion to the President and the Civil Service Commission.

If his recommendation is accepted, 12,785 employes in veterans hospitals and facilities in all parts of the country may be given civil service status. Among these are approximately 350 at Mount Alto Hospital here, and a similar number at Peery Point, Md., and Kecoughtan, Va.

The recommendation by Gen. Hines is in compliance with an order from the Civil Service Commission which requires all Federal administrative officers to announce by September 24 which of their workers and positions are to be included in civil service and which are to be exempt. Generally, exemptions will be based on the condition of a policy-determining job.

Gen. Hines, however, made clear that the changes may be gradual; that is, the changes would not be permitted to interfere with service. The specific groups affected in the Administration are:

Hospital attendants, mess attendants, chefs, cooks, bakers, matrons, housekeepers, maid, laundry helpers seamstresses and barbers.

Previously all of these have been exempt from civil service, and employment turnover has been high. It was thought the group would be stabilized, once it is assured of status.

G. M. C. Gets Patent For Rear Engine

By the Associated Press.

General Motors Corporation patented yesterday a system for rear-engine operation of automobiles.

Although none of the manufacturers of popular types of automobiles has indicated any early intention of marketing a rear-engine machine, Henry Ford also obtained recent patents for such a vehicle.

The General Motors device, invented by Eric Olle Schjolin, of Pontiac, Mich., would connect the conventional clutch pedal and gear shifting lever with the rear engine by means of metal ribbons.

The patent indicated the device was designed to be used in connection with a conventional automobile engine except that the engine block and the housing of the rear axle would be in one piece.

Story Tellers Expect to Lead Future Generations to Peace

They Play Down War Angle to Audiences, Says Mrs. Keffer, Admitting Valor Is Essential to Heroes; 350 at Convention Here.

Future generations may be guided to world peace by the story teller's art, Mrs. Harry G. Keffer, of Marysville, Pa., president of the National Story League, said yesterday as she arrived here to attend the Ninth Biennial Convention of the group, which has 110 chapters and more than 3,000 members throughout the country.

MRS. KEEFER.

"When we tell the stories of heroes to our audience, we try to put as little emphasis on the war angle as possible, although to any hero the story valor is essential," said Mrs. Keffer, who joined the league in 1913, when it was 10 years old, and has been active n it ever since.

The 350 delegates who registered yesterday tell stories to children too young to read and to older folk unable to read.

"We try to tell our stories so that the children will see nothing heroic in war and killing," said Mrs. Keffer.

The younger children are especially fond of the imaginative tales, Mrs. Keffer pointed out. They like the stories of "Snow White," "Beauty and the Beast," and the fairy tales of Grimm and Anderson.

"It is possible for the experienced story teller to mold, to a large extent, tastes in literature," Mrs. Keffer said.

The league was founded at the University of Tennessee in 1903 by a group of teachers. By the next summer it had expanded to 40 chapters, and its growth ever since has been steady.

Most of the members tell stories simply for the fun of it, and the welfare of it, to groups of children and adults. There are professionals who make of story telling a part-time occupation, but they are always ready to devote their time without charges to worthy groups.

Other officers, besides Mrs. Keffer, include Mrs. Julia Mills, of Akron, first vice president; Mrs. R. L. Pullen, of Jacksonville, Fla., second vice president; Mrs. Dorothy Ebersole, of Lancaster, Pa., secretary, and Miss Marie Hopkins, of Columbus, Ohio, treasurer.

officers of the Washington Story League include Mary Ellen Dashiell, president; Isabel Buckingham, first vice president; William King, second vice president; Thelma Schmitt, secretary; Mildred Tong, treasurer, and Gertrude Harris, librarian.

AAA to Set Quotas On Sugar Beets to Stabilize Acreage

By the Associated Press.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced yesterday that acreage allotments would be given domestic beet sugar growers for next year's crop in an attempt to prevent further expansion in production.

Dr. Joshua Bernhardt, chief of the AAA sugar section, said that for the first time since 1934 the domestic beet sugar area had produced sufficient sugar to fill marketing quotas established under the sugar control law, planting 992,000 acres this year, compared with 752,000 in 1937.

Growers will be required to stay within their allotments to be eligible for benefit payments authorized by the law, which averaged about $22 an acre this year.

Bad 'Props' Keep Navy Planes Out Of U. S. Air Races

The Navy yesterday ordered 13 fighting planes with defective propellers withdrawn from scheduled demonstration flights at the National Air Races to be held in Cleveland over the week-end.

Eighteen Marine Corps planes and an equal number from the Army will give daily exhibition flights during the event.

Officials said the aircraft were of a "fairly new type" which is attached to the aircraft carrier, Yorktown. As a result of defects which have developed in the last few days there is a possibility the planes may "throw" their propellers, it was said.

Berlin Tension Relaxes; British Note Is Awaited

Press Anti-Czech Furore Subsides; Hitler May Convene Reichstag.

Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, Aug. 31.—There was a noticeable relaxation of tension here today as official Nazi quarters marked time, awaiting a full report as to what London might have to offer in the way of a peaceful solution of the dispute between Czechoslovakia and Germany over the Sudeten German territory.

The anti-Czech barrage German newspapers have kept up for many days lapsed into desultory firing. Suspending his tour of Germany's armed camps, Reichsfuehrer Hitler retired to his mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden, apparently to rest and to prepare the series of speeches he is scheduled to make at the Nazi Party Congress at Nuremberg next week.

[United Press dispatches said Hitler was reported to be planning to summon the greater German Reichstag during the congress to hear an important political statement, probably on the Czech crisis.

[The Reichstag meeting would find Austrian deputies participating for the first time—Editor's note.]

Henderson Returns.

Arriving here tonight by airplane from London, Sir Nevile Henderson, the British Ambassador, was brought into contact with the German foreign office almost immediately through an apparent coincidence, Baron Ernst von Weizfaecker, state secretary of thatm inistry, was among the previously invited guests at a dinner which had been arranged in advance. Presumably, this affair would provide the occupation for a feeling of the ground preliminary to a conference which it is reported Hitler is to have tomorrow with Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop.

The brightened atmosphere in the Wihelmstrasse is based, it seems, on the belief—or the affected belief—that Britain is forcing the Czechs to make additional concessions toward meeting the German demands. From all information available today, Hitler's minimum requirement is for territorial autonomy for the Sudeten area.

There is no means of determining tonight whether on his part he will be prepared to accept les in the end.

Copyright, 1938, New York Tribune, Inc.

Fleet Drill Expanded.

Berlin, Aug 31 (AP).—Nazi Officials tonight believed Sir Neville Henderson had brought an important communication from the British government concerning central European war tension.

Whether he would see Hitler apparently had not been decided tonight.

The official German news agency, in a dispatch from Oelsen, Saxony, said tonight Czechoslovak frontier guards fired from ambush across the border on a German customs officer. The agency said the officer was not injured.

While German officials awaited Henderson's report on his hurried trip to London, it was disclosed that Germany's current naval exercises in the North Sea are far more inclusive than was at first announced.

Field Marshal Goering's mouthpiece, the National Zeitung, termed the exercises biggest since the World War in view of the fact the 26,000-ton battleship Gneisenau is participating along with the 10,000-ton pocket-battleship Admiral Graf Spee, Deutschland and Admiral Scheer.

Bigger Maneuvers Planned.

Sixty units participating in the squadron games will assemble for even bigger maneuvers in the first part of September.

Britain's home fleet also has been ordered out for autumn maneuvers in the North Sea to start September 5, the day the Nazi Party congress opens at Nuremberg. Admiralty officials assert the maneuvers are "routine."

Extensive German army maneuvers are under way throughout the Reich to continue for another month, involving apparently all of Germany's 36 divisions of approximately 25,000 men each, or a total of 900,000, in addition to an estimated 500,000 reserves.

War Put Up to Prague.

Britain's decision to treat directly with Germany, instead of through mediation in Czechoslovakia, was seen by the German press as a new and favorable element. But it was said unanimously "the question of peace or war lines with Czechoslovakia."

The influential Hamburger Fremdenblatt declared:

"The question can be settled peacefully only if that section (of the Czechoslovak state), which up to now has exclusively enjoyed all rights, through pressure from the powers can be brought to a voluntary renunciation of this exclusivity for the benefit of oppressed groups . . . therefore the final decision lies not with Adolf Hitler, but with the Czechoslovak government."

Paul Joseph Goebbels' newspaper Her Angriff, which yesterday pictured Czechoslovakia in a virtual state of civil war, tonight reported "feverish nervousness in Prague," but refrained from extreme language.

Text of Japanese Note to U. S.

Tokyo, Aug. 31.—Following is the text of the Japanese note, handed to United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew tonight, replying to the American protest of August 26 against the destruction of a Chinese-American airliner near Canton, August 24:

Monsieur L'Ambassadeur:

I have the honor to acknowledge your excellency's note of August 26 stating your excellency's protest under instructions and on behalf of the American Government against unwarranted attack August 24 near Macao by Japanese airplanes upon a commercial airplane of the China National Aviation Corporation, resulting in the total destruction of said Chinese plane and the loss of the lives of a number of its passengers and endangering the life of the American pilot.

The incident was caused by the C. N. A. C. plane, which, within the Japanese field of operations, acted in such a manner as invited suspicions of its being a Chinese military craft, as stated in the following report, and which was consequently pursued and attacked by our naval planes in the belief it was an enemy plane.

While it is to be regretted that this resulted in endangering the life of an American citizen who happened to be the pilot of the plane, as well as the death or wounding of noncombatant passengers and crew, the Japanese government hold the view that the action of their naval planes was not unwarranted in the light of the above-mentioned circumstance.

It is also their opinion that the company to which the aircraft in question belonged being a Chinese juridical person, the incident is not one which involves Japan directly with any third power.

However, I desire to add that because of the wide discrepancies between the pilot's accounts, as given in your excellency's note, and reports in the hands of the Japanese government, further investigations were instituted and the following new report has been received, which substantially confirms what Mr. Horinouchi (vice minister for foreign affairs), on the occasion of your excellency's visit of the 28th, stated on the basis of information then available.

I avail myself of this opportunity to renew to your excellency assurances of my highest consideration.

On the morning of the twenty-fourth instant five Japanese naval airplanes, proceeding in the direction of the Canton-Hankow railway, unexpectedly sighted over Chiautao Island at 9:30 a. m. a large-type land plane, bearing no distinguishing mark, some 2,000 meters away to the north, which was flying toward the west at an altitude of about 2,000 meters, and attempted to approach the plane for the purpose of identification.

The large plane in question, as soon as it discovered our naval planes approaching, abruptly turned in a northwesterly direction and took flight at full speed, hiding itself in the clouds. The approaching movement of the naval planes was made for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the land plane.

However, seeing the plane flee from them, our air squadron concluded in the light of their past experiences that it was an enemy plane which came either to attack our warships or to make reconnaissance and accordingly took an offensive position by placing two planes above and three planes below the clouds. Soon after, our planes lying in wait below the clouds, discovering the supposedly enemy plane, pursued and attacked it.

The plane continued to flee by taking advantage of scattered clouds, but was hard pressed by our squadron and finally landed in the river on the south side of the delta which lies 16 kilometers west of Hung-Menchikow. From the time they first sighted the plane until the moment it landed our planes were situated directly behind it for most of the time so that it was difficult to ascertain its character and our planes were throughout in the belief that the land plane was an enemy craft.

As soon as the latter landed, however, our planes descended in order to inspect the spot. When they reached a point above the land plane where they could better distinguish the type of plane a doubt arose as to its exact type. Our planes therefore immediately stopped their attack. As stated above there was some time, though very brief, after the landing of said plane until doubt came to be entertained as to its nature and during that brief period there were some among our crafts which continued the attack, but there was absolutely no more shooting thereafter.

Our naval planes then dived to 20 meters above the water and inspected the landed plane, whereupon the plane in question was found to be an all-metal Douglas passenger plane with no painted mark except a Chinese character signifying "mail" marked on the upper face of its right wing and on the right side of its body. Our planes left without firing. Our planes saw on the landed plane the pilot and also a few passengers near the entrance of the passenger compartment in the rear, but they thought as the spot was close to the bank of the river these men would reach the shore.

Japanese Take 4 Key Points in Hankow Drive

Invaders Near Nanchang, Enter Matowchen at River Narrows.

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), Sept. 1.—Japanese land forces, driving on China's provisional capital in Hankow, today captured four new key positions from an estimated 500,000 Chinese soldiers defending the Hankow tricity area.

On the south bank of the Yangtze River Japanese columns, which broke through the fortified Chinese lines around Shaho on Tuesday, smashed into Tehan, chief outer defense of the important City of Nanchang, after 48 hours of fighting in which both sides lost heavily.

Another column on the south shore broke into the environs of Matowchen, 30 miles west of Kiukiang, in the strategic and heavily fortified Yangtze bottleneck which has been a major obstacle to Japanese warships fighting slowly up the river toward the Chinese capital.

On the north shore of the river one of the Japanese columns which were fanned out last week from a base in Hofei, Anhwei Province, had taken the important port of Wusueh, opposite Matowchen, while farther north one of the columns striking toward the Peiping-Hankow railroad, north of Hankow, had occupied Yehkiatsai and was entering Honan Province within 120 miles of the railway.

Europe's War Scares Feared Recovery Curb

Roper Tells President Tension Abroad Worries U. S. Businessmen.

Grave concern was expressed in official quarters yesterday that tension in Europe, if not eased soon, would militate against business recovery in the United States.

Secretary of Commerce Roper revealed he had discussed with President Roosevelt at a White House conference the retarding effects of the European war scare upon business here.

Treasury officials, although minimizing the likelihood of a return to the gold sterilization policy, admitted the influx of foreign gold might create difficulties.

Anxiety was felt in the State Department, horeover, lest a European outbreak disrupt this country's foreign trade.

The hopeful feeling in official quarters that war will be averted grows out of the conviction that the deliberately timed warnings of Great Britain and France, and the collateral warning that the United States would not be indifferent to any warlike move, will have a chastening effect on the German Chancellor.

Secretary Roper, who will sail soon for a vacation abroad, said he told the President it was his belief that there was no immediate danger of armed conflict in Europe.

He based his optimism on the fact that many war crises had passed without an outbreak in the last few months. He thought that the longer European countries delayed consideration of controversial points which could lead to war, the more time there would be to reach a compromise.

Urges More "Peace Talk."

Roper would not say that American business men were paying too much attention to war talk abroad, but he said it would be better if they talked less about the "jittery effects of possible war" and more about peace.

The influx of foreign gold, which is now at the rate of $25,000,000 a week, was attributed by Treasury officials directly to war fears. In the month ended August 27, Treasury purchases of foreign gold totaled approximately $100,000,000, the shippers being for the most part Europeans. On that date the Treasury's gold reserves reached a record high of $13,092,000,000, about 55 per cent of the world's monetary gold stocks.

Treasury officials conceded that it might be difficult to avert a return to the gold sterilization policy if the foreign overflow continued, but for the present they thought the mechanism for absorbing the weekly shipments would function smoothly.

As yet, it was said, the glut of foreign gold has not assumed alarming proportions. The current rate of purchases of foreign gold is still far below the spring of 1937, when $60,000,000 a week was pouring in.

Hopeful trends in the business and industrial situation were reported to the President. The Social Security Board attributed the first substantial decrease in unemployment compensation payments and applications to improved business conditions. They payments in July were only $36,665,000, as compared with $216,000,000 last January.

Philip Murray, vice chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, told the rPesident he looked for no general wage reduction in steel mills, because the operating rate had been increasing steadily for several weeks.

Japan Rebuffs U. S. on Plane Attack Protest

Tokyo Admits Fliers Fired on Airliner, Denies All Responsibility.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Aug. 31.—Japan tonight flatly rejected a United States protest against destruction of a Chinese-American airliner by Japanese warplanes near Canton August 24.

A note handed United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew denied the incident was of any concern to America, and disclaimed all guilt, but admitted Japanese planes continued to machine-gun the liner after she landed on a small river between Canton and Macao in South China.

The American protest registered August 26 pointed out the airliner was property of the China National Aviation Corporation in which "Pan American Airways has a very substantial interest."

The only American aboard, Pilot H. L. Woods, of Winfield, Kans., escaped uninjured, but 14 Chinese passengers or crewmen were believed to have been killed by machine-gun bullets or drowning when the plane sank in 40 feet of water.

Two Chinese survived the attack, which came as the plane was en route from Hongkong to Chungking.

The Japanese reply stressed that the American-piloted airliner "acted in such a manner as to invite suspicion" when it dove into cloud banks after sighting five Japanese warplanes approaching.

10 Offer to Adopt Twins of Waitress

Ten persons yesterday offered to adopt the 5-day-old twin babies of Mrs. Irene Manley Roszel, $8-a-week waitress, who, unable to support the infants, wishes to see them placed in a "good home with the right sort of people who can take care of them."

But officials at Alexandria Hospital said they were much too young to be moved. No decision has been made as to who is to become foster parents of the babies.

The young mother is separated from her second husband, and already is the mother of a daughter, 6, by a previous marriage.

Mediator Prods Czech Nazis to Consider Offer

Briton Puts Pressure on Henlein as Sudeten Schism Grows.

By the Associated Press.

Prague, Aug. 31.—Britain's unofficial mission to mediate the dispute between the Czechoslovak government and the Germanic minority today put pressure on the leaders of the Sudeten German Party to show greater willingness to negotiate.

F. T. A. Ashton-Gwatkin, adviser to Viscount Runciman, mediator-in-chief, conferred with Konrad Henlein, Sudeten leader, this afternoon at Marienbad. Later Runciman was visited by Ernst Kundt, a sub-leader and member of the Czechoslovak Parliament.

There was no disclosure of the specific subjects discussed at either conference, but it was known both Kundt and Henlein were urged to accept the latest government proposals as a basis for negotiation.

Sudeten Split Grows.

A growing split in the Nazi Sudeten Party complicated solution of the dispute in which the party leadership, supported by Reichsfuehrer Hitler, has demanded autonomy for the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans. The Prague government has been refused.

The radical element of the party wanted to reject a government compromise suggestion, but a more conservative faction, fearful of a war which would be fought in Sudetenland, has urged acceptance of the government's proposals as a basis for discussion.

The more conservative wing is following the leadership of Kundt as opposed to the following of Deputy Karl Frank. Henlein has not spoken the decisive word.

War Fears Subside.

The Sudeten-government negotiations made little progress as both sides await Berlin's reaction to a message borne today from London by the British ambassador to Germany. This is supposed to be a British admonition that Germany not resort to arms in support of the minority.

It all simmered down to the question of what Hitler's intentions were. No one in Czechoslovakia appeared to know. But the strain on the ordinary Czechoslovak citizen was lessened. A belief that there would be no war was gaining ground.

'Snow White' Fan Walks Out on Duce For Award to Nazis

Venice, Aug. 31 (AP).—Harold Smith, American representative on the jury considering films shown at the world cinema exhibit here, walked out of the Doge's Palace today in protest against award of the Mussolini Cup to a German documentary film on the Olympic games in Berlin.

Smith said that Neville Kearny, British delegate, walked out with him after Smith's futile plea on behalf of Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Smith charged the award proposed by Count Guiseppe Volpi, of Italy, was "politics."

Japan Typhoon Wrecks Houses, Electric Systems

Tokyo (Thursday), Sept. 1 (AP).—A 75-mile-an-hour typhoon struck the Tokyo area early today, paralyzing communications and wrecking or inundating hundreds of homes.

Yokohama, seaport 18 miles from Tokyo, was thrown into darkness as the gale snapped wires and poles. Omori, one of Tokyo's outlying wards, reported several hundred homes blown down or flooded. A downpour accompanied the high wind.

200 Klansmen Parade After 2 Colored Killings

Lakeland, Fla., Aug. 31 (AP).—More than 200 members of the Ku Klux Klan paraded through Lakeland's colored quarters last night in a demonstration which spokesmen said was the result of two colored slayings here in two weeks.

The white robed and hooded marchers herded groups of colored citizens together and voiced a warning against further outbreaks. The parade was climaxed with burning of a wooden cross.

Britain Seeks Intimations of U. S. War Aid to purchase supplies in America and would like to do so with loans.

London

Outranking these questions of commerce and finance, Britain would like to know how quickly President Roosevelt could swing the American people into a war, but this is a question which cannot be put in such blunt fashion, since not even Mr. Roosevelt can know the answer.

The United States is not the only nation being sounded out by Whitehall as to its probable reaction if war comes. Poland and the Balkan countries are being consulted similarly and Italy is being watched closely.

Lord Halifax's callers today also included the French and Spanish Ambassadors, the Czech Minister, the Polish Charge d'Affaires and Winston Churchill, who played host and inquisitor to Konrad Henlein when the leader of the Sudeten eGrmans visited London. Whatever Lord Halifax learned today caused him to postpone his arrangements to leave London to resume his holiday in Yorkshires.

Masaryk Sees Kennedy.

The Czech minister, Jan Masaryk, after visiting the foreign office, went around to the American Embassy and talked things over with Kennedy.

"The close interest with which America is following events became even more apparent today," writes the diplomatic correspondent of the Central News Agency. "Responsible quarters, however, discount that a personal appeal from the President to Herr Hitler is in contemplation."

In connection with the meeting of Lord Halifax and French Ambassador Corbin, government spokesmen denied rumors that Britain had given France a secret commitment beyond the terms of Sir John Simon's speech last Saturday and Chamberlain's declaration of March 24.

Sir Nevile Henderson, the British ambassador to Berlin, has arranged to see Hitler Friday, before the Fuehrer begins preparation of a momentous speech to be delivered Tuesday before the Nazi Party conference at Nuremberg. By Friday Henlein's Sudeten Germans are to give their answer, or rather Hitler's answer, to the latest Czech compromise calling for the reorganization of the Czech republic into a score of cantons.

Frontier Revision Suggested.

Anticipating that the Germans will reject the Czech offer, responsible British quarters hold out the hope that Prague may be persuaded to make further concessions provided Hitler moderates his army maneuvers and anti-Czech propaganda and does not rush matters and force an issue.

If the Nazis would only stop screaming, jumping up and down, and cocking rifles the British would be more disposed to satisfy their demands—the Czechs consenting, of course.

Months before Hitler mobilized his army, the British had thought that if "cantonizing" of Czechoslovakia failed then frontier revision might possibly be the solution, on the theory that there will always be trouble as long as the Germans are separated from the Sudetens by a frontier drawn by the Czechs. Whether Britain and France could ever bring enough pressure on the Czechs for them to surrender an inch of their territory, is something else. Although the British have been toying academically with the idea of re-drawing the Bohemian frontier to satisfy Hitler and his Sudeten disciples, the British are hardly prepared to indorse any demand for frontier revision unless Hitler is willing to reassure Europe about his ambitions in other directions.

Downing Street will know better where it stands after Hitler unburdens himself next Tuesday. It may be that the Fuehrer will demand annexation of Sudetenland or impose a plebiscite on the issue of annexation.

Press Backs Government.

The English press, as it always does in time of crisis, has fallen into line as a unit behind the British government. Even the opposition's liberal press is not opposed to suggestions that Britain may press Prague to grant something more than its cantonment proposal.

The question of frontier revision is pushed forward surprisingly enough by the radical weekly, "New Statesmen and Nation," which says: "If Hitler agrees to accept the solution within Czechoslovakia it may still be possible if the Czechs make an imaginative offer of partnership to the Sudeten Germans to reconcile them to the existing frontiers. "But if Lord Runciman reports that this is impossible the question of frontier revision, difficult though it is, should at once be tackled. The strategical value of the Bohemian frontier should not be made the occasion of a world war.

"We should not guarantee the status quo."

Having warned the Czechs as well as the Germans, Whitehall prays that Hitler will not be too warlike in his eagerly-awaited oration Tuesday.

Prime Minister Chamberlain arrived at Balmoral Castle today to report on the situation to King George. Chamberlain is hoping for a quiet week-end and some shooting over the King's moors.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 2 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Ex-Tammany Chieftain Aids Dewey

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

John F. Curry, white-haired deposed leader of Tammany Hall, greeted by an admirer as he left supreme court in New York after making a surprise appearance for the prosecution in the trial of James J. Hines, who was instrumental in Curry's downfall from high places in the Wigwam. Curry testified Hines could "bust" policemen.

that Schultz was slain, but who lives, and Harry Carney and "Julie" Martin, all good trigger men at the time, though Schultz, according to District Attorney Dewey, later shot Martin dead in the Hotel Harmony at Troy, N. Y., because Martin was holding out thousands of dollars from him.

Davis started to testify in court today concerning the killing of "Julie," who was Schultz's lieutenant in restaurant rackets. He said he saw it. Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief counsel for the defense, was on his feet in a minute objecting to the testimony. Justice Ferdinand Pecora cut it short.

Just Called Him Jimmy.

Davis was a constant associate of Hines, he said, from the time in 1932 when Dutch Schultz introduced them, until he himself was a fugitive from justice in 1937, following his disbarment. They went to the races together, and to fights at Madison Square Garden. They sat long hours chummily over tables in the hotter night spots, particularly the Embassy Club, of which Schultz at the time was a backer. He and Schultz called Hines "Jimmy," and the veteran Tammany leader called Schultz "Arthur." "Dixie" was "Dick" to both of them.

The witness said he began paying Hines money in 1932, at Schultz's direction, and recalled particularly a first payment of $1,000 in Hines' home late in 1932. Hines, he remembered, said "thank you." There were other payments, the witness swore. He said he personally gave Hines between $12,000 and $15,000 for the Dodge campaign by authorization of "the Dutchman." Dewey was particular to stress each time that these payments were from the "numbers money," or proceeds of the Harlem policy game, and the witness agreed that this was the source of the money.

Names Shalleck.

He testified that some of the money was paid in the offices of Joseph Shalleck, now one of the defense counsel. In return for these payments, the witness said, Hines helped "the Dutchman" on numerous occasions.

He said that when Schaltz was having trouble with the Federal income tax people, and was "in hiding" in a succession of uptown apartments, Schultz got him to see Hines and get him to work for a compromise. As Davis told it, Hines went to see Max D. Steuer, lawyer who has been closely associated with the leadership of Tammany Hall for years, and got Mr. Steuer to go to George Z. Medalie, then United States attorney. Steuer's mission, he said, was to exercise his persuasion on Mr. Medalie to get the case compromised so Schultz could "make the street."

"Make the street?" asked Justice Pecora. To "make the street," the gangsters' lawyer explained patiently, was to "come out of hiding." It was very important at the time, he said, for Schultz to come out of hiding, as Schultz felt the "combination" in the policy business world fall to pieces unless he could take care of things.

Medalie Obdurate.

Medalie, the witness testified, proved obdurate. He declined point blank, Hines is said to have reported back to Schultz, to compromise the income tax case, whereat Schultz went upstate, to be surrendered in another district under "Dixie" Davis' coaching.

Davis corroborated, piece by piece, the story told against Hines by George Weinberg, gangster; by employes in the policy banks of Alexander Pompez and "Big Joe" Ison, alias "Spasm;" by Leslie V. Bateman, former Mayor of Mount Vernon, and John Kearns, the Bronx coal dealer, and by a succession of hotel employes and a former prize fighter from Bridgeport, Conn.

Davis said he was an inside spectator and a participant at all steps in the alleged conspiracy. He testified to consultations with Hines to have the employes of the Pompey and Ison banks freed by Magistrate Hulan Capshaw and the late Magistrate Francis J. Erwin. He said he and George weinberg took Hines to Bridgeport, Conn., to see Schultz in the summer of 1935, by automobile, and rode back to New York with him. He testified to a share in negotiations to keep the policy banks in Mount Vernon in 1934.

Curry Cross-Examined.

The testimony of Davis quite overshadowed today's cross-examination of John F. Curry, former leader of Tammany Hall, by Stryker. Curry, who on Tuesday testified he forwarded requests from Hines to the police commissioners, from 1929 to 1934, asking for transfer of patrolmen, and that Hines "invariably" got what he wanted, denied to Stryker that his testimony was given in a spirit of revenge against Hines for having helped in his outster from the leadership of the wigwam. He admitted, however, that he had not spoken to Hines, a friend and associate of many years' standing, since the night of his overthrow.

Curry said he believed that all the requests that came from his district leaders were honorable ones, and that most of them had to do with helping patrolmen sent far fro mtheir homes by police orders to get back nearer their families. Stryker made a long plea to Justice Pecora to get this testimony of Curry's stricken from the record, but Justice Pecora denied his motion.

He permitted the testimony, he said, because of assertions by George Weinberg, gangster, that he had argued with Hines for a long time to get troublesome policemen transferred from the chief scene of the policy gang's operations, and finally obtained the transfers.

wage and hour division of the Labor Department. He said he has been waiting only on civil service clearance. A. L. Fletcher, of Raleigh, N. C., North Carolina State Commissioner of Labor, is expected to be named assistant wage-hour administrator and director of compliance.

No Rush, No Stalling.

Andrews again emphasized there would be no "rush" in organizing the new industrial committees, but at the same time he insisted there would be no "stalling."

"We want to take enough time to get the right men on these committees, men with progressive views who are well known and representative," he said.

"How long committees will have to sit, there is no way of knowing. Experience with the textile and tobacco committees in the next few months should show us how long it will take to draw these regulations."

Andrews denied the industrial committees would be "permanent" bodies in the sense the old NRA code set-ups were permanent.

May Appoint New Ones.

"When they finish their work, they are through," he said, "unless I reject their recommendations. In that case, I may turn them back to the same committee or I may appoint a new one."

Andrews indicated a separate committee would be appointed for the hosiery industry, but said he thought fairly good wages were paid in that industry, so it was not among the first on his list. He said a leading paper manufacturer had informed him that industry was ready to co-operate, and there would ultimately be a separate committee for paper.

"Representatives of a number of other industries are telling me they are anxious to co-operate, and would like to get started now on any preliminary work or research it may be necessary to do," the administrator said. "I have told most of them it would be better to wait until the committees are named."

Agree on Sub-committee.

The tobacco group meeting yesterday agreed to establishment of a technical sub-committee, on the problem of stemming or stripping, which would "service" the other two tobacco committees. The two main committees will recommend minimum wages and maximum hours for labor employed in cigar manufacturing and the rest of the tobacco industry.

A committee of nine persons—three representing employers, three representing labor and three the general public, with a public member serving as chairman, probably will be named for the cigar industry.

For the rest of the tobacco industry, a committee of 15 persons, with 5 each from employers, labor and the public, may be named.

"Suggestions as to the definition of the industry and the make-up of the committees and sub-committes will be put into study at once and a draft definition prepared," Andrews said.

Participating in yesterday's preliminary conference were W. T. Reed, jr., vice president of Larus & Brothers Co., Richmond, Va.; J. W. Abbett, of New York, auditor of the U. S. Tobacco Co.; J. A. Bloch, of Wheeling, W. Va., president of Bloch Brothers Tobacco Co.; Sam Blumberg, of New York, general counsel of the Cigar Manufacturers Association; M. A. Braswell, of Winston-Salem, N. C., associate counsel of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.; T. C. Breen, of Newark, N. J., treasurer of the Cigar Manufacturers Association; Harry C. Carr, of Philadelphia, Pa., vice president and treasurer of the Bayuk Cigar Co.; Alvaro Garcia, of New York, president of the Cigar Manufacturers Association; Ralph Hetzel, of Washington, secretary to the chairman of the C. 'Purge Will Be 100 Per Cent Flop,' Ex-Adviser Tells Roosevelt, Who Says 'I Told You So'

Politics

Presidential indorsement of Lewis won't mean as much to those people on the Eastern Shore as a move by Goldsborough. Watch him for the final result."

President Roosevelt will speak at Denton, Md., on Monday, Labor Day, in the heart of Tydings' territory.

All indications were that the President would press his insistence on a clear-cut division in the Democratic Party between the conservatives and progressives.

Roosevelt Prophetic.

"With a twinkle in his eye," said White House Secretary Stephen T. Early yesterday, "the President reached into a bedside table drawer this morning and pulled out a sealed envelope containing his prediction, made last night, on the outcome of the South Carolina race." Early said that it gave Smith a 40,000 majority. He said the President authorized the comment:

"It is often true that it takes a long, long time to bring the past up to the present."

The President had made no strenuous efforts to oust Smith, and had commented only twice directly on the race, but it was well known that a defeat for Smith would have been sweet news to the White House, as the old veteran, while campaigning as an "80-per-cent New Dealer," is whole-heartedly suspicious of most of the New Deal.

California a Shock.

Many New Dealers had hoped that Johnston, at least, could come as close as Edgar A. Brown, State Senator, did six years ago, when Smith nosed him out by less than 5,000 votes.

But the most concern was felt here for the California result, although the New Deal was not at issue, as Downey is reported to be "at least a 110 per cent New Dealer," exceeding it only in his advocacy of the pension program.

McAdoo had criticized the pensions and President Roosevelt called them "Utopian." But the State of movie stars, chiropractors, real estate men and transplanted Iowans went strongly for all candidates favoring the program.

Roper Calls It Local.

Here Senator M. M. Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, who congratulated Senator Smith on his victory yesterday, commented on the California results that unless the final totals reversed McAdoo's defeat, there would be a strong Congressional movement for more liberal old age pensions.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper opined at a press conference yesterday that local matters were most at issue in South Carolina and gave flat "noes" to questions as to whether the results should be interpreted as a rebuke to the New Deal or a refusal to indorse the President's policies.

No White House comment was forthcoming on the California results.

Chairman Morris D. Sheppard, of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, said the inquiry into the alleged "shakedown" of Federal workers in California for McAdoo's war-chest would continue no matter what the returns showed.

Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican National Committee expressed no surprise at the California and South Carolina returns, saying:

"It looks to me like the people are doing the purging.

"I never doubted that the pepole of South Carolina could and would select their own candidate for the Senate without advice from outside the State. As for California, a majority of the Democrats there have refused to vote for the man selected for them by Mr. Roosevelt, even though Senator McAdoo manages to scrape through by the skin of his teeth."

Former Employe Of Circus Jailed As Pursesnatcher

A man who claimed he was a former circus roustabout was arrested last night after a chase along North Capitol and G streets, and taken to jail, where he will be charged with pocketbook snatching.

The prisoner loitered in front of a cafe in the 600 block of North Capitol street until Mrs. Alice R. Gailliet, the proprietor, came out and opened the door of her automobile. He seized her and grabbed her pocketbook, which contained $30 in cash, $25 in valuables and a $15 check, and fled to street, then up an alley.

A waiter from Mrs. Gailliet's restaurant and Precinct Detective Watson Saukeld joined the chase. The robber was cornered at the end of the alley.

He said he had been unemployed since the circus disbanded in Scranton, Pa. Unable to beg food, he had seized the pocketbook in desperation, he asserted.

The Columbus Horse Show committee announced yesterday that the fourth annual show will be held on the Meadowbrook grounds, Chevy Chase, Md., September 17 and 18 instead of September 24 and 25, so as not to conflict with dates for the President's Cup Regatta.

Davey," and Tydings is expected to quote it with gusto.

Lewis Defends Self.

Only last night Representative Lewis went on the air to defend himself against Tydings' charges. He said:

"The Senator has known me for many years and, of course, knew he was telling the truth when he said I was not a Communist. However, the press announces this morning that in an advertising campaign issuing from the Tydings headquarters the Senator raises an implied charge of communism against both President Roosevelt and myself.

"All men know that the President is not a communist, and all men who know me personally know equally well that I am not a communists. I have no sympathy whatever with its methods or its aims."

"All In Our Power."

Even while "Little Davey" was issuing these words the Maryland communists must have been preparing their statement in praise of him. This said:

"We communists, with our very limited means of reaching the voters of the State, shall do all in our power to clarify the issue and thus defeat Tydings.

"In running our candidate for the United States Senate, Harry Straw, of Baltimore, we avail ourselves of the opportunity to carry our program to the people in the interests of the defeat of reaction.

"If Millard Tydings is defeated in the primary, we shall ask all Progressives to vote for our Communist candidate as a protest against the policies of Tydings and his twin reactionary Republican opponent.

"Lewis Is Defender."

"His major opponent, David J. Lewis, is the defender of the progressive achievements of the New Deal and hence of the interests of labor ,the farmer and the middle class."

Senator Tydings' attacks on the C. I. O. and communism on the Eastern Shore was smart politics. The conservative farmers and boatmen of that region thoroughly detest the C. I. O. and have taken vigorous steps to show their feelings. In Crisfield a C. I. O. official, who had been trying to organize the crabpickers, was run out of town by vigilantes and his car burned. The farmers were aroused by reports that the C. I. O. was out to organize the farm hands.

If President Roosevelt expects to swing the Sho' to Davy Lewis, he had better do something about its C. I. O. fixation.

ing into the "Klondike" radiators.

"Sergt. Hart," he said reluctantly.

The sergeant was sitting with a score of fellow guards in the front of the courtroom. Not a flicker of emotion crossed his stolid face.

Mills took the stand—and kept it for nearly two hours—after Patrick Di Marco, one of the 21 survivors of the "heat treatment," repeated testimony given yesterday at a hearing of two guards on homicide charges. The guards, Francis Smith, 43, and Alfred W. Brough, 39, were held without bail for the coroner's action on testimony by Di Marco and two other convicts.

The survivors' tales were of 60 hours of horror in red-hot cells amid a nightmare of hissing steam. They told of the imprisoned men gasping for breath, drinking water from toilet bowls, and banging their heads against the walls in anguish. One pleaded to be shot "to end his misery" and another tried to commit suicide, Di Marco testified. The dying men called for wives and mothers.

Only 6 of 27 witnesses reached the stand today, indicating the inquest might last through tomorrow. Coroner Hersch has promised "drastic action" against "those guilty." A "blue ribbon" jury of four business men and two clubwomen is hearing the evidence.

Labor Board Fails to Settle Rail Pay Row

not agree to submit the question at issue to arbitration."

Whitney announced tonight that his trainmen also would take an immediate strike vote, following the example of other railway unions.

The brotherhoods plainly consider their fight to be a front line defense against general wage cuts in all industries.

Sees Bargaining Failure.

H. A. Enoch, chairman of the carriers' joint conference committee, representing virtually all of the country's major railroads, said, "This refusal of the employes to agree to arbitration seems to indicate the faliure of collective bargaining in the railroads industry."

"Railroad employes," he added, "have refused to take a pay cut, in local and national conferences held under the railway labor act.

"Railroad employes have refused to take a pay cut, in mediation proceedings conducted by the National Mediation Board.

"Railroad employes have refused to submit the question of a pay cut to an arbitration board, although the railroads had agreed to arbitrate.

"In other words, collective bargaining in the railroad industry has apparently failed. The process is a one-way street. When employes seek wage increases, the process of collective bargaining works perfectly, when management seeks a wage reduction, the process doesn't work at all. Or, to state it differently, this elevator only goes up, and now it's stuck at the top."

Hints Elections a Factor.

Enoch charged the brotherhoods had netered the negotiations and mediation proceedings required by law with no intention of actually negotiating or mediating the wage cut.

He showed a memorandum dated July 11, which he said a "little birdie brought me" and indicated the unions intended to "string along" the wage cut conferences so that they would collapse on August 15, with the 30-day period of the status quo ending about September 15. He hinted that the fall elections were a factor, but did not indicate how they would enter into the picture.

"Collective bargaining is either a damn lie or the most wholesome truth in our industrial life," he said. "Why wouldn't these employes submit to arbitration? Are they afraid of their case? In this case, collective bargaining is just a high-sounding, lip-service phrase."

Windowless Room Prison of Youth 2 Years, Sheriff Says

De Kalb, Ill., Aug. 31 (AP).—Emaciated, bearded and clad only in dirty underwear, Vincent Redmond, 24, was found locked in a windowless room in his parents' home today by Deputy Sheriff Lymon Sebree.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Redmond, had been held in the room two years, the deputy sheriff said he learned. The parents were taken to the county jail for questioning. The deputy said Redmond admitted the youth was his son, but would not discuss the case. Mrs. Redmond denied knowing the youth was held in the room.

quit and I was told the name of the man who could persuade him to resign."

The plan fell through when the Senate opposition bloc refused the condition, Tydings said, although later, following the death of Majority Leader Robinson, the Administration offered to accept the original compromise proposal.

Tydings scoffed at Representative Lewis in his Hyattsville speech for calling in "the greatest man on earth" to help him lick "little Millard Tydings," and he concluded by shouting: "I'm going to lick the whole damn crowd," as his audience whooped.

Lewis in his Mount Rainier address denounced Tydings as "a more effective obstructionist than most Republicans" and charged that he has "heckled, belittled and sabotaged" President Roosevelt's legislative program "almost every inch of the way."

Have Busy Day.

The white-haired challenger asserted that Tydings had ignored Democratic campaign pledges and that "he worked for his law firm in the United States Senate."

Both candidates spent a busy day, but Tydings established a new record for his campaign as he raced through southern Maryland to fill nine engagements. Lewis spoke only twice, the second time at Seat Pleasant.

A movement among southern Maryland Democrats, all of whom have cast votes for Franklin D. Roosevelt, to boycott his Morgantown address on Labor Day was disclosed as Tydings spoke to a carnival gathering at Mechanicsin St. Marys County.

They'll Stay Away.

K. B. Duke, the Senator's campaign manager for St. Mary's County, said:

"The good Democrats of this section are not going to hear the President Monday. They aren't going to say anything. They are just going to stay away."

Tydings made brief appearances also at Clinton, Marlboro, Largo, Forrestville, Brentwood, Bladensburg and Colman Manor. His speech at Mechanicsville, while purposely removed from politics, touched upon campaign issues by implication as he lauded Marylanders for their traditional independence in local self-government and their insistence upon religious and political freedom.

The Senator's address at Hyattsville followed speeches by Capt. Richard O'Connell, speaking for Prince Georges veterans supporting Tydings; Lansdale G. Sasscer, promoting his own gubernatorial candidacy; Jack Alio, Hyattsville resident, for Tydings, and R. M. Watkins, Maryland University alumnus and past professor, who introduced the Senator.

Points to 'Interference."

Tydings taunted Lewis not only for calling for aid from the President, but for his failure to meet him in scheduled dual speaking engagements at Hagerstown and Frederick. His recent conduct of the campaign, Tydings charged, had been unsportsmanlike.

Studiously avoiding any criticism of the President, Tydings said he wanted it clearly understood that he was "running against Davey Lewis only." At the same time, however, he made reference to the "interference" of Thomas Corcoran, Presidential adviser, and Drew Pearson, newspaper columnist.

The peppery 69-year-old Representative reiterated his previous assertion that Tydings' law partner, Robert Archer, received a $2,000 commission on WPA funds expended in Harford County, and added that Archer "also received a commission on PWA funds" in 1935 and 1936. "These PWA funds were for the construction and improvement of four school houses, and Mr. Archer's fee was $1,860," Lewis declared.

Real Issue Tydings' Record.

Te Representative asserted that Tydings "has shown amazing agility in dodging the issues of this campaign. He has hopped and hopped around from communism to the C.I.O., then to his 'convictions,' then to an alleged brain trust, until now he has conjured up as the great issue of the campaign—a persecution complex. All of this agility . . . is to divert the voters from the real issue of his campaign, which is his record in the Senate."

To prove his contention that Tydings has been in fundamental opposition to the New Deal, Lewis cited "a tabulation which cannot be accused of prejudice," Editorial Research Reports, which are "most guarded against favoring any political faith."

According to these reports, Lewis said, the senior Senator from Maryland voted for less than three out of ten mills on the Roosevelt program. "He not only voited against the Supreme Court and Reorganization bills, but, according to Editorial Research, he voted against 17 out of 25 major Roosevelt measures," Lewis added.

Welfare First Objective.

"What mockery," he exclaimed, "for Mr. Tydings to weep in public because President Roosevelt visits Maryland to point out the record of an unfaithful Democratic Senator."

Lewis attached critics alleging that President Roosevelt "deserted" the Democratic platform of 1932. The platform, he declared, contained pledges even more important than the economy plank, including promises to help the States provide unemployment relief, to expand Federal public works and to recognize "the responsibility of Government for human welfare."

The Representative quoted President Roosevelt as saying that the protection of the welfare of its citizens is the "first" obligation of Government. "He said this," Lewis stated, "at a time when Mr. Tydings was running for re-election on the Democratic ticket, and if Tydings did not agree with that interpretation, it was it duty to say so publicly."

Voted for No Relief.

"Instead," Lewis continued, "he accepted the benefits of Roosevelts popularity, was elected to the Senate on the Roosevelt landslide, and a few months later, when the country faced desperate want and starvation in the spring of 1933, he did not even bother to vote on the first Roosevelt relief bill."

Lewis charged that Tydings "did not vote for a single bill to relieve human suffering from his election in 1932 until the relief bill of 1938, when he saw his own re-election battle looming on the horizon."

With the assertion that the record of his opponent "is one long list of broken party pledges," Lewis said that while opposing the party program, Tydings "has not hesitated to put out his own hands toward the Treasury and take for himself and his law firm the benefits which he voted to deny to others."

Calls for "Convictions."

An audience of 3,000 crowding Duffey Stadium at Seat Pleasant, Md., was told by Lewis that "the prosperit of you and your children is in great measure dependent upon the degree in which Franklin D. Roosevelt shall be successful."

"It is because Mr. Tydings has not co-operated at all that Davey Lewis is here tonight," said the Maryland Representative. Lewis questioned the "courage" of his rival for the senatorial nomination in voting "present" when the Social Security Bill was presented to the Senate.

"We have a right to demand," he said, "that public servants elected by their party should observe its convictions."

The meeting was held under sponsorship of the Sasscer Booster Club of Seat Pleasant. State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer sat with Lewis on the platform but did not speak.

Senator McAdoo Admits Defeat by Downey, New Deal Backer of $30-'Scrip' Pensions continue to be a constant supporter."

While the pension plan was rolling in votes for its supporters the State supreme court refused to bar the measure from the ballot next November. It rejected a petition of taxpayers challenging the technical propriety and constitutionality of the measure.

Downey, claiming victory hours before McAdoo spoke, thanked his supporters, pledged himself to go along with the New Deal and repeated his promise to work for "adequate retirement life payments and pensions."

Upwards of 860,000 Californians were reported to have signed the petition to put the $30 weekly pension plan on the November ballot. All non-working citizens over 50 would be given $30 a week in State pension warrants.

These warrants would require the addition of stamps, purchased with cash, at the rate of 2 per cent weekly. At the end of a year each $1 warrant would bear $1.04 worth of stamps and would be redeemable for $1 cash at the State Treasury.

Thus redeemed, it would go out of circulation, but during the year of its existence it would pass for money among all who would accept it. The State would be obligated to take warrants in payment for taxes and fees. Publicly owned utilities would be bound to accept them, as would all political divisions of the State.

Whether the governorship contest next fall would be a three-way race depended upon a contest in the Progressive Party between Olson and Raymond L. Haight, present Progressive leader.

Haight was third in the Republican gubernatorial contest and seemed in danger of losing his own Progressive race to Olson. In 5,832 precincts the Progressive vote was: Olson, 3,846; Haight, 3,315. A victory for Olson would remove the third party threat in the Governorship race.

Four years ago Haight's Progressive candidacy contributed toward the victory of Merriam and the defeat of "EPIC" Democrat Upton Sinclair.

Democratic Representative Clarence F. Lea, occasional opponent of the New Deal, apparently won renomination on the Republican ticket as well as in his own party.

Republican Harry L. Englebright was far ahead for the Second District Republican nomination.

Apparently on safe footing were Representatives Frank H. Buck (Democrat) Third; Frank R. Havenner (Democrat) Fourth; Richard J. Welch (Republican) Fifth; Albert E. Carter (Republican) Sixth; John H. Tolan (Democrat) Seventh; John J. McGrath (Democrat) Eighth; B. W. Gearhart (Republican) Ninth, and A. J. Elliott (Democrat) Tenth.

Republican Carl Hinshaw and Democrat D. W. Stephenson were leading for nomination in the Eleventh, where Democratic Representative John S. McGroarty stepped aside to run for Secretary of State. McGroarty apparently was losing his own party race to Republican incumbent Frank C. Jordan.

Also ahead were Democrats H. J. Voorhis, Twelfth; Charles Kramer, Thirteenth; Thomas F. Ford, Fourteenth; John M. Costella, Fifteenth; Charles M. Colden, Seventeenth, and Byron N. Scott, Eighteenth.

Fairbanks Asks Tax Reduction

By the Associated Press.

Douglas Fairbanks, sr., motion picture actor, now in London, petitioned the Board of Tax Appeals yesterday to redetermine a claimed deficiency of $87283 in his 1930 income tax payment.

Fairbanks reported a profit of $689594 on the sale of bonds, on which he paid a 12½ per cent capital gains tax. The Government contended he should have paid normal and surtax rates on the profit making an additional $87,283 tax.

Group Aiding Loyalists Plans Open House Night

An Open House night has been planned in connection with Spanish Week late this month by the Medical Bureau and North American committee to aid Spanish democracy, it was announced yesterday. Washington's quota of $10,000 for the American relief ship, which will carry 5,000 tons of food, clothing and medical supplies to the victims of the war, will be partially raised by the proceeds from the affair.

Welfare Board Gets Control of Fairfax Relief

Board of Supervisors Relinquishes Power to New Group.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

The board of supervisors of Fairfax County at a special meeting yesterday relinquished its control of relief and welfare problems in the county to the three-member county welfare board created by the new Virginia welfare law.

The supervisors authorized the payment of all outstanding relief and welfare bills and turned over a balance of $321.70 in the county welfare fund. The board also appropriated $2,176.69 to finance the activities of the welfare board until State and Federal funds become available, at which time the county will be reimbursed.

A resolution was adopted requesting the State highway commission to allocate funds for the widening and improving of the Columbia pike from Annandale to the Washington-Richmond highway in Arlington in its budget for next year. A committee composed of Chairman W. F. P. Reid, of Mount Vernon district; E. H. Powell, of Falls Church district; D. W. Buckley, of Centerville district, and G. Wallace Carper, of Providence district, was appointed to interview Highway Commissioner Wade H. Massie, representing northern Virginia on the highway commission, in an effort to have this road included.

Dr. Edward M. Holmes, director of the county health department, was authorized to refuse to consider requests for sanitation reports on applications for FHA loans, unless such applications are properly filled out with the exact location of the property, and to limit the number of inspection visits to the property if the applicant is not co-operative.

Commonwealth's Attorney Paul E. Brown informed the board that the Attorney General had ruled Fairfax County has the right to adopt traffic ordinances parallelling the State law as it borders a city of more than 100,000 inhabitants outside the State. One corner of Fairfax County touches the District of Columbia near Chain Bridge.

W. Travis Wilson, superintendent of public welfare in Fairfax County, yesterday announced that Mrs. Frances Kerr Barnett, who has been employed as a case worker by the county health department had submitted her resignation to accept the appointment as superintendent of welfare in Caroline County, Va. Mrs. Barnett has been with the county welfare department since last spring.

Superintendent Wilson announced the appointment of Mrs. William J. Cleveland, of Seminary, to succeed Mrs. Barnett. Mrs. Cleveland, a former member of the old Fairfax County welfare board, has recently been employed as supervisor of WPA projects in Alexandria and Fairfax County. Mrs. Cleveland has been active in Red Cross and welfare work in the county for many years.

Mrs. Laura Neilsen, of Washington, was also appointed case worker for the county. She is a graduate of the University of Utah in social service work and was employed for many years as supervisor of the Northwest division of the District of Columbia Board of Public Welfare.

Herndon High School will open September 8, and on September 9 the Herndon Parent-Teacher Association will hold a reception in the school auditorium for the teachers. Mrs. D. L. Detwiler, chairman of the social committee, is arranging a program which will be followed by dancing.

Mrs. Frank Wickers, president of the association, has appointed the following committees: Mrs. C. A. Seaton, chairman of room mothers; Miss Lulah Ferguson, educational committee, assisted by Mrs. Willis Burton, Mrs. Ralph Ennis, Mrs. F. W. Robinson and Mrs. George R. Bready; Mrs. Daniel L. Detwiler, social and hospitality; Mrs. John McDaniel, membership; W. R. Crabill, civic and home improvement; Mrs. W. R. Crabill, E. J. Heglar and Mrs. A. H. Kirk, publicity; Mrs. Ernest Gibson, program; Mrs. Sadie Booe, general chairman of costume committee; Mrs. Cecil Sibold, Miss Sadie Detwiler, Miss Lizzie Spicer, Mrs. Fannie Connor, Mrs. Walter Wiley, Mrs. William Jacobs, Mrs. Mason F. Smith, Mrs. E. G. Doores, Mrs. Herman Kephart and Anna Marie Seaton.

CAR ADVERTISING IN THE UNITED STATES, CANADA AND CUBA.

Washington, D.C.

Dear Son,

Although more than a year has passed since then, it seems only yesterday that you and I sat on the grassy knoll overlooking the old swamp back of our home and watched preliminary dredging and grading operations in Flushing meadows. Actually a great deal has happened in the intervening months. I have traveled over a good many miles of our United States and have seen car advertisements act as a life-giving tonic to many an anemically ailing advertising appropriation. You, in turn, have quickened your old Dad's heart by your ambitious application to your recently acquired job in the Advertising Agency. And all this time work has been going on apace at the site of the World's Fair of 1939, for its officially scheduled opening date is less than eight months away.

This "fair with a soul" will truly be a spectacle of spectacles. Its dramatic and magnetic magnitude will draw an estimated 50 million people within its gates in the year to come. They will travel from the four corners of the earth to see and to admire, to thrill and to learn.

Perhaps not so highly dramatized, but none the less magnificent, is that perpetually educational fair which is constantly being staged in the transportation systems of our country by car advertisers. Every day a responsive audience of more than 35 million men and women view these shrewd advertisers' colorful presentations of packages, products and services. This vast group returns again and again to the great car advertising fair, dependent upon the transportation units of our country to deliver them speedily and surely to their offices and factories, to shops and stores, and back once more to their homes.

These more than 35 million reader-riders pay admittance to this great exposition of modern day advertising with nickels and dimes son, yet the daily "gate" is in excess of $2,000,000. Display space is located along the interiors of the surface cars, the buses, and the subway, elevated and suburban trains. As exhibitors, it costs car advertisers the infinitesimal sum of only 6/1000 of a cent to reach each impressionable viewer of their sales-enticing product presentations.

Astute Advertisers and their Advertising Agencies, insistently intent upon reaching volume audiences at the lowest possible cost, can find no substitute for car advertising. A volume sales producer from the word "go", car advertising appears before the greatest number of prospective buyers at the smallest fractional sales cost known among the five major producing media. Exhibitors in transportation units throughout our fair land have discovered that car advertisements can be relied upon to vertically stiffen the saggingly passive indicator line on many an ever hopeful sales chart.

Smooth down my resting place on that little knoll son, I'm due back at the home office in the not too distant future. Two advertising men in the house at one time will be more than even your almost always patient mother can stand. Therefore, we'd better go back to our old perch overlooking the Fair grounds when we start talking business. With that vista spread out before us we shouldn't want for inspiration. Not that we're likely to, as long as I have my car advertisements as a conversation piece.

Affectionately,
your Dad—

Car advertisers' messages are as pointed as the trylon, as encompassing as the perisphere. Appearing before volume audiences, they promote volume sales of their sponsors' goods and services.

Here are just a few car advertising fair-goers. The attendance figures at the end of the year total up to more than 13 BILLION buyer-riders.

The Jitterbugs Will Get You if You Go Touring

Hollywood Youngsters Are Mobbed by Swing Fans on Road Trip.

By Frederick C. Othman,
United Press Hollywood Correspondent.

Hollywood, Aug. 31.—We learned about the dangers of swing music today from a pair of youngsters—who barely escaped with their lives—and all we can say is that there ought to be a law.

Miss Dixie Dunbar was jittery from the succession of brawls which accompanied her across the country. Mr. Tommy Wonder was recovering from near-mayhem at the hands of the country's jitterbugs.

The beauteous Miss Dunbar and handsome Mr. Wonder set out on a nationwide dancing tour a couple of months ago. They had a swing band with 'em. They appeared in leading theaters in scores of major cities, and what happened to them is enough to put most of the swing music maestros behind the bars on charges of inciting a riot.

Safely back in Hollywood to star in "Youth Takes a Fling" for Universal, Miss Dunbar told of their incredible and slightly cockeyed adventures as they danced across the United States.

Dancing in Aisles.

"We never realized that swing music had taken such a hold on the country when we started," she said. "It was worst back East. In some cities the audience consisted mostly of high school youngsters. When the band would strike up and we'd begin to dance, these children would hop out into the aisles and dance with us. Once they rushed the stage. The managers couldn't stop them; neither could the police. In one theater the balcony began to shake so badly everybody thought it would collapse.

"Then after the show, the swing fans would crowd around us outside. Not only did they want autographs, but they wanted souvenirs. They ripped all the buttons off my clothes. I had a nice silver fox scarf and they grabbed hunks of fur from that. And show what they did to you, Tommy."

Young Wonder ruefully turned his head to reveal a large chunk of hair missing from above his right ear.

"That happened to poor Tommy in Boston," Dixie said. "He was standing in the alley back of the theater giving autographs as fast as he could when a woman sneaked up with a large pair of scissors and snipped herself a piece of Tommy.

Picked Up Refugees.

"Also in Boston we picked up some jitterbug refugees. We noticed one little boy and two little girls—they all must have been about 14—at every performance. They sat in the first row, hour after hour, day after day.

"The next week we were in Philadelphia and there were those three children to meet us. They'd pooled their money and gone all the way to Philadelphia by bus. They had only a couple of dollars left and no way to get back home. We put them up in a hotel and wired their parents to send for them.

"Another development that nearly floored us was the candid camera craze. We'd be dancing along when somebody in the audience would yell 'stop.' At first we were so confused that we stopped from fright.

"Then the camera fiend would tell us we could go on with our dance. Pretty soon we got used to it. We stopped whatever we were doing on order of the photographers. In Indianapolis even the trombonist in the pit was a camera bug.

"He took pictures of all the acts—and then sold them to the actors. I bought $35 worth myself. He did beautiful work and he must have made more from his picture-taking than he did from his horn-blowing."

Born in Montgomery, Ala., reared in Atlanta, Ga., and continuing to retain her Southern accent, Miss Dunbar has been one of Hollywood's perennial co-eds. She finished high school six years ago, got a job dancing in New York's Paradise Restaurant, came to Hollywood, and announced that if the film business ever got bad she'd quit the studios in favor of college.

"But I've been working steadily ever since," she said. "And anyway I've decided that a girl can learn a lot more during four years in Hollywood, say, than Vassar."

We wanted to know what she learned here that she couldn't learn in college, but Miss Dunbar said we were too inquisitive.

40Lbs. of Dynamite Rock Md. Farmers

Three outbuildings were wrecked and the entire countryside around Fairland, Md., shaken yesterday by the explosion of a 40-pound case of dynamite, set off by a fire in a barn in which it was stored.

The blast, according to firemen, occurred on property owned by Mrs. Marie Magruder, of Washington, who recently erected the buildings, but ha dnot yet built a home on the site.

Houses and stores in the neighborhood were rocked by the blast, and several windows were broken. Damage was estimated by firemen at about $1,000. No one was injured.

Tydings People Fear GOP Kiss May Have Effect Like Judas'

Lewis Proponents Say 'Senator Is Republican at Heart,' and Incumbent's Forces Are Afraid People Will Begin to Believe It.

By Edward T. Folliard
A Staff Correspondent.

Hagerstown, Aug. 31.—This is a free country and a voter can wear anybody's campaign button he pleases, attend any political rally he pleases, and root for any candidate that strikes his fancy. Just the same Democrats who are working for Senator Tydings wish the Republicans hereabouts weren't quite so solicitous about their hero—at least, right now.

Tydings came up here about three weeks ago to make a campaign speech. There were a large number of Republicans in the audience and they were very vigorous in their applause as Tydings defended his refusal to be a 100 per center. Well, there is no law against the Republicans doing that.

However, the effect was to confirm in the minds of many Democrats the suspicion that Representative Lewis had planted there. "Little Davey" has been saying all along that Tydings is at heart a Republican—a Republican masquerading in the livery of a Democrat.

To a voteless newspaper reporter from the District of Columbia, there is a certain sadness in the plight of the Republicans. They are tremendously interested in the Tydings-Lewis scrap, and not altogether from a cold-blooded partisan standpoint, either.

The trouble is, there is nothing that the Republicans can do in this county about Tydings in the primary. If they were registered as Republicans in 1936, they must vote in the Republican primary this year. Of course, in the November election, they can vote for whomever they please.

Great numbers of Republicans are reported to be ready to vote for Tydings in November if he wins the nomination. This reporter has run into several of them, just as he also has run into Democrats who say they will bolt and vote for the Republican nominee if Lewis beats Tydings on September 12.

It couldn't very well work the other way around. How could the Lewis Democrats vote for a Republican senatorial nominee when one of their chief reasons for being for Lewis is their detestation of "tory Republicans?" They might, though, at that.

Breaking away from party moorings is no novelty in Maryland. It was Davey Lewis' ability to lure Republicans away from their party on election day that landed him in the House of Representatives. He had to have them. When he first began running for the House, western Maryland was decidedly Republican territory.

No doubt, many Republicans who are now rooting for Tydings have, at one time or another, voted for Lewis.

Washington County, of which which Hagerstown is the seat, is regarded as pro-Lewis at this time. The Lewis camp claims it, and the Tydings strategists don't dispute the claim very vigorously. The county has seven votes in the nominating convention.

Washington County is pretty much like its neighbor, Frederick County, in respect to "Little Davey" Lewis. It is, of course, a part of his Sixth Congressional District. The Democrats around here have been voting for him since 1908, and it has become a habit.

However, the same surprising circumstance that is found in Frederick is encountered here. Nobody, not even ardent Lewis supporters, expects a heavy Lewis majority.

"What ought it to be—2,000 or 3,000?" one was asked.

"Oh, no," he replied; "say about 1,500."

That is the claim notwithstanding the pressure of 1,600 WPA workers in the county, most of them Democrats. When you ask how these WPA workers will vote, Hagerstown people smile and ask you one: "Well, if you were on WPA, how would you vote?"

In some of the pro-Tydings counties, notably in St. Marys, you hear men predict confidently that Tydings will get as much as 90 per cent of the vote. But up here in western Maryland, where Lewis ought to be running like wildfire, nobody claims anything more than a small majority.

The Tydings workers say that Lewis started off with a peak strength. They say that any changes will be in Tydings' favor, and they are counting on resentment against President Roosevelt's participation in the primary to help the Senator. For that reason they insist that the county ought really to be put in the doubtful column.

One argument that is being used against Davey Lewis is his inconsistency in running for the Senate at his age after supporting President Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the Supreme Court.

"The President," one Tydings man said, "contended that Supreme Court justices ought to retire at 70 or else have alternates appointed for them. Davey Lewis agreed with him. Yet here is Davey at 69 asking the voters to send him to the Senate for six years.

"Personally I don't think a judge is too old at 70, and I don't think Davy is too old to go to the Senate. But if just goes to show how inconsistent a man can be."

William Preston Lane, the Democratic leader of Washington County, is officially neutral in the senatorial battle, as are many other party bigwigs in the State.

Lane heads a company that owns both of Hagerstown's newspapers. One of these, the Daily Mail, is Democratic. The other, The Morning Herald, is Republican. Both of these excellent journals are published in the same plant.

The Daily Mail, like Lane, is neutral in the senatorial fight. However, the Morning Herald, its Republican convictions outraged, is vigorously attacking President Roosevelt's purge in Maryland.

Rep. Thomas Calls Federal Theater Body Red 'Hotbed'

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Representative Thomas (Republican), of New Jersey, member of the subcommittee of the House committee investigating un-American activities, said today he had "strong evidence" to substantiate his charge that the Federal theater project "is a hotbed of communism."

"What is true of the theater project," he added, "is equally true of the Federal writers' project."

The sub-committee is holding executive sessions here.

Thomas said workers engaged on Federal projects who had come to Washington in obedience to subpenas to testify before the Dies committee had been docked, while those who had attended workers' alliance sessions had received full pay.

Asked if those who went to Washington had received mileage fees, he said they had received mileage, but no fees.

Pins (Hair, Safety And Bobby) Clutter Cave Wishing Well

The U. S. National Park Service has discovered what devices the average American makes a wish on. The discovery was made when the wishing well in the Lehman Caves was cleaned out, and here is what was found:

A total of 218 hairpins, 231 bobby pins, 33 safety pins, three paper fasteners, one large fancy bone hairpin, one metal brooch, a watch crystal, 10 wads of gum, one tatting needle, one shoehorn, one flashlight bulb, eight hair ribbons, one small American flag, 15 broken pencils, four pennies and five receipts for groceries.

The superstitious believe that if they drop an article of value in a wishing well and make a wish, the wish will come true.

Judiciary Square.

When L'Enfant laid out the Capital, he marked sites not only for the legislative and executive departments of the new Government established here, but also for the judiciary. Perversely, the principal Federal court never settled where he visualized it. However, the District Court Building followed the plan and today, located on Judiciary Square, it is commonly conceded to be one of the finest in Washington.

Not the least of its charms is the setting. Nor is this mere good luck. In 1905 the MacMillan Commission inspired the removal of nearby railroad tracks to promote the beauty of the neighborhood. And a few years earlier the street leading to the square from Pennsylvania avenue was dedicated to John Marshall on the centennial of his appointment as Chief Justice. This assisted the careful preservation of the trees lining its curbs which, in turn, has provided the court building with an unusually pleasing vista. Today this vista is threatened by the plan to build the District Municipal Center abruptly across John Marshall place.

Fortunately, the Fine Arts Commission has for some time been calling attention to the error and time is still available to revise the design for the $5,700,000 PWA project. Even if the vista were not involved, there would be good reason for dividing the contemplated center into two buildings, so as to leave John Marshall place intact. As the Federal "Triangle" has so well demonstrated, open thoroughfares are essential if huge office buildings are to be accessible. Moreover, traffic in the neighborhood of the Municipal Center will become doubly congested if and when the proposed new central library and new auditorium are built in adjacent blocks, also facing on John Marshall place.

In making this criticism, the Fine Arts Commission will be applauded by the community. The pity is that it did not speak in similar forthright fashion to restrain the Jefferson Memorial planners. Not only will the authorized Tidal Basin location do much to confuse traffic crossing the river but it also outrages the plan of L'Enfant to give the White House an unobstructed view from its southern verandas directly down an arrow-straight reach of the Potomac.

Mr. Bane Resigns.

Appointment of Oscar M. Powell of San Antonio, Tex., as executive director of the Socal Security Board, to succeed Frank Bane, whose resignation has just been announced, sets a very desirable precedent.

Since the inception of the board, three years ago, Mr. Powell has been one of its 12 regional directors. His experience, therefore, admirably fits him for his new post and his appointment at the same time reveals a praiseworthy determination to treat the social security administrative machinery as a career service.

Partly because of the preliminary labors of Mr. Bane, his successor will find the system which he is to direct in full operation. Yet in view of the probability of amendment of the social security law, to say nothing of its present administrative complexity, Mr. Powell's work will be anything but routine.

Even in its present set-up the board still confronts many unsolved and partially solved problems. One of the most important is to improve the liaison between the Social Security Board and the Employment Service of the Labor Department. During his tenure Mr. Bane did much to forward this essential administrative co-operation. It will be his successor's task to build on these foundations.

He Mounted To The Cabin.

The town of Cayce, Ky., is about to erect a monument to the memory of its most illustrious son. Casey Jones is the hero's name, but it appears that the "Casey" part is just a nickname adopted from the town and that the vital statistics have it: "John Luther Jones."

Anyway, the idea of a monument to the brave engineer seems a little superfluous. Any man who is the hero of a folk ballad has a far more lasting memorial than anything that can be made out of bronze or stone. Horace, you remember, had something to say on that point. Looking over his works, far less well known today, we suspect, than the ballad of Casey Jones, he decided they were a more lasting monument than a whole row of pyramids.

Thus it is a little curious that Casey Jones' widow should be somewhat disturbed over a few historical inaccuracies in the ballad, even over so small a matter as the correct number of the six-eight wheeler on which he rode to fame. Sometimes art has to brush aside the facts in order to penetrate the inner truth. It is a waste of breath for historians to declare that Barbara Frietchie never waved a flag, or that Paul Revere did very little riding on that historic eighteenth of April.

Casey Jones has now all the immortality of a folk hero, like Cuchulainn, or Sherlock Holmes, or indeed like that other Casey, the mighty one of Mudville. And, at a moderate estimate, the town of Cayce is already memorialized in the nickname of every alternate member of the spreading clan of Jones. Si monumentum vis, circumspice.

On Political Hysteria.

The average Communist is not distinguished for intelligence. If he were, he would not be a Communist. And the rather pathetic stupidities which, among other factors, make Communists themselves a negligible quantity in American life were yesterday aptly illustrated by the Maryland State Committee of the Communist Party.

The Free State "Reds," who polled less than 1,000 votes in the last Presidential election, could not have chosen a more inept moment to come out flatfooted against Senator Tydings, and to indorse the candidacy of Representative Lewis. The action did not merely fly in the face of the President's recent statement about the "political immorality" of voters who intervene in the primary of a party to which they do not belong. It also justified part of a current Tydings campaign advertisement which Mr. Roosevelt had only the day before characterized as "hysterical."

That advertisement, which the President said had at first amused and then saddened him, asserts to Marylanders that the Federal Administration is "supported by the C. I. O., John L. Lewis and Communists." As a practical politician Mr. Roosevelt must be further saddened by the celerity with which the Maryland Communists have done their bit to confirm the statement. And in the same degree Representative Lewis, who has "no sympathy whatever" for the aims and methods of communism, must also be saddened by a move which may cost him a few unintelligent votes on September 12.

But in the rest of the Tydings advertisement, which opens with a call to citizens of Maryland to "Defend Your State Against Federal Invasion," there is much ground for the President's comment of "hysterical." There is less than no basis for any intimation that Representative Lewis, were he nominated and then elected as Senator from Maryland, would ever in thought or word or deed fail to uphold the "civil and religious liberties" which the Tydings camp claims to see threatened by his candidacy. Any allegation to that effect is completely absurd.

But the trouble with the purge technique, to which the President is holding with perseverance worthy of a better cause, is that it naturally promotes a resentment so profound and so justified that its manifestations may easily assume a hysterical form.

Thus, in the South Carolina primary, Senator Smith, accepting Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that he "thinks in terms of the past," romps home ahead of the President's nominee and reminds his enthusiastic red-shirt supporters of Civil War Days by saying that "We fought with bullets then, but today, thank God, we fought with ballots."

Not dissimilarly, in the California primary, Senator McAdoo is defeated by a neo-Townsendite whose $30-a-week old-age pension plan was properly called a "fantastic short-cut to Utopia" by the President. None can tell how many votes Senator McAdoo lost by Mr. Roosevelt's enthusiastic indorsement. But obviously it helped him little.

There is hysteria apparent in both these instances, as there is in the Tydings campaign advertisement which so saddened the President. Indeed the emotional response to Mr. Roosevelt's calculated effort to mold his party to his personal will has, and will doubtless continue to have, obviously hysterical aspects. But for them Mr. Roosevelt himself is partly responsible. At least since the devious effort to transform the American system of government by packing the Supreme Court many of Mr. Roosevelt's own party have become very suspicious of the character of his leadership. And suspicion is the forerunner of hysteria.

It becomes increasingly evident that there are very many Democrats who bitterly resent the President's efforts to transform their party, by personal edict, into something diametrically opposed to the fundamentals for which that party stands. Their resentment may be taking hysterical form. That does not make the reaction either unjustified or unhealthy.

A Difference Of Opinion.

After eight years of struggle and deliberation, the Public Utilities Commission has decided that the Capital Transit Company properties are worth only $24,000,000, or less than half the amount claimed by the company as a basis upon which to compute fares and earnings.

To Washington residents who use the transportation facilities of the company, this valuation is of no immediate importance, since the company is earning only a fraction of the amount that would be necessary to return the statutory maximum rate of 6 per cent. The company would find itself in a somewhat stronger strategic position to press for fare increases if the higher valuation had been accepted. But that is not feasible at the present time and would probably result in a loss of revenue.

The transit company has suffered the fate of the railroads in becoming an outmoded form of transportation for many thousands who now use automobiles to and from work and for pleasure. That change makes it futile to insist upon a high valuation which could never be made to yield adequate returns on a larger capitalization.

In case of many if not most private unregulated companies we are accustomed to witness the severe shrinkage of the value of the capital investment over a period of years. Consumers' needs change. Invention renders many things superfluous and businesses are as a result closed out through no fault of the owners. Sometimes the wise executive has prepared in time against the coming of the day when his property will be seriously depreciated or cease entirely to produce revenue. Often he will have remained in business long enough to recapture the amount invested and obtain adequate returns from his capital at the same time.

Regulated public utilities, however, are usually prevented "from making hay while the sun shines" and so when they cease to be as valuable, the problem of obsolescence and the proper allowance to be made for it raises a difficult question. The inevitable depreciation of the value of capital investments in utilities is a proper part of the cost of doing business and should be allowed for by the rate-making authorities. It is, however, not easy to make these computations in view of the uncertainty that surrounds the future and our ignorance of the effect upon earning capacity of the progress of invention and the consequences of change.

An Executive Function..

As chairman of the Special Congressional Committee Investigating Un-American Activities, Representative Dies asks that the Department of Labor proceed without delay to institute deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, leader of the West Coast maritime unions. The request has met with a prompt and deserved rebuke from Secretary of Labor Perkins.

The committee can perform a real service by obtaining and giving publicity to relevant information bearing upon the alleged subversive activities of Mr. Bridges and other individuals and organizations, although so far much of the testimony seems to have been based upon very flimsy evidence. But it is a purely investigative body created for the purpose of acquiring information upon which Congress may subsequently base a legislative program.

Representative Dies and his colleagues are exceeding their authority when they presume after a very limited investigation to give advice to a responsible executive department which presumably knows a great deal more about Mr. Bridges than the committee could learn from the testimony of a few witnesses and by reading the records of the Department of Labor.

Such interference with the conduct of an executive establishment of the Government by a Congressional committee would be unpardonable even if there were no question as to the wisdom of the advice offered. In the present instance, however, there seems to be great doubt on this score. Even if he should be a Communist, it by no means follows that Mr. Bridges' allegiance to that party is a valid reason for deportation. Secretary Perkins notes that the lower courts have disagreed on this point.

"Summarized briefly," she said in her reply to Representative Dies, "your advice seems to be that I should have ignored the most recent holdings of the courts and overruled the legal advisers provided me by law." Deportation, Secretary Perkins further observes, "could not be effected until the conflict of decisions among the circuit courts had been ultimately resolved by the highest tribunal."

The mere fact that Harry Bridges is a labor leader whose deportation would be a cause of great rejoicing to many employers, and to his foes within the ranks of organized labor, is a very strong reason for proceeding with the utmost deliberation and fairness in considering his case. Under Secretary Perkins the deportation laws have been administered as humanely and reasonably as possible in view of the limited discretion allowed executive agencies.

There are many cases of hardship and individual injustice that cannot be prevented in giving effect to laws of this type. Yet we can at least avoid the mistake of trying to make the deportation laws an instrumentality for ridding the country of aliens just because they are considered to be troublemakers. So long as such aliens do not engage in unlawful activities for which American citizens would be punished, they, too, should have full liberty to enjoy the benefits of free speech, freedom of action and association with any political party in which membership is not barred to American citizens.

Traffic deaths so far this year are off 25 per cent, compared to the corresponding period last year. Pedestrians are learning to keep their eyes peeled, their ears cocked and to walk in a crouching position, ready for an instant jump. It's getting harder every day to hit one.

The poet whose head was bloody but unbowed probably had a hunch that if he bowed too deep, fate would take advantage of his position and give him a swift kick in the pants.

"I believe implicitly in the doctrine that if you have something good you should share it with some one else," writes a young woman columnist. Hm-m-m-m.

It is usually the case that the person who throws a lot of stones is easily bruised.

The President And The Purge

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish someone would write an editorial entitled "Sloppy Thinking." And I wish he would use as his text the letter in The Post for August 30, signed "See Bee," wherein the writer seeks to justify the President's latest defiance of liberty, States' rights, and good taste, by the argument that: "If the leader of an orchestra finds that some of his men cannot, or will not, play in tune and time with the rest of the orchestra, he owes it to the public (the people) to get rid of those men and replace them with others more capable and willing."

If there are today people in the United States—American citizens—who are so completely in ignorance of the underlying principles of this Republic as to be able to make such an analogy, then it is no wonder the country has reached its present pass.

That the writer could make such a comparison shows him incapable of clear thinking. Consider for a moment just a few of the implications: The President of the United States the leader of an orchestra; Senators and Representatives the members of that orchestra—each with his part cut out for him beforehand; his score already written, every line of music he plays being the expression of someone else; every sound he produces being held in check by the conductor, who tells him where he shall sit, when he shall play, what he shall play, how loud or soft he shall play it, when he shall have the spotlight, and when he shall sit quietly and listen to the rest.

So that is what our Government is! And it is for that that each State elects its leaders to be its representatives in Washington! If people in this country can actually be so beguiled by words as to succumb to such arguments, then God help the United States!

I wonder if "See Bee" ever heard of the United States Constitutional Convention; ever heard of George Washington and Benjamin Franklin, and the hot summer weeks they spent, locked up with the State delegates, advising, revising, shaping, framing our Constitution. And for what? To the end that this Republic shall be governed by a President and Congress whose relationships shall be, respectively, those of orchestra leader and members—to do his bidding?

Sloppy thinking—minds that catch up nice-sounding words and phrases and hang on to them, unable to think them through clearly and see that they are really tinkling brass and hollow cymbals! It is this kind of thinking that has been exploited by Stalin, by Mussolini, by Hitler. Apparently there is enough of it in this country for Roosevelt's purposes, as well.

M. W.

Washington, Aug. 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On the western front of the pedestal of that monument in the center of Lafayette Square, from atop which Andrew Jackson waves his hat in salute—doubtless to a nearby resident whom he recognizes as far his superior in the application of the spoils system—appears the inscription, "Our Federal Union—It Must Be Preserved."

Clearly, then, Jackson was a "federalist"—using that term in its correct and not in its Hamiltonian sense—and not only believed in but supported the "federal" form of Government to which he as well as all of his predecessors and successors in the Presidential office have committed themselves by their oaths of office. In his own words, by which he is memorialized, it is not merely "union" (a term which itself implies the retention of autonomy on the part of the units) but emphatically a "Federal Union" (i. e., a federal form of government) which "Must Be Preserved."

Imagine the reaction then of Jackson's shade upon discovering that a group of centralist-absolutists intent upon destroying the "federal character of the "Union" had not only arrived at power by representing themselves as successors to his doctrines (except as to spoliation) but that in reinducting their chief into "executive" office had flaunted before the eyes of his effigy in the course of their ceremonials a replica of his beloved Hermitage as an appropriate setting!

Could anything be more repellent to the shades of bygone Democrats than to find a group of spurious successors undertaking to "purge" the Democratic Party of those members of it who have remained true to its principles?

HARRISON TILGHMAN.

Easton, Md., Aug. 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Maryland has become the battlefield of the Nation. Not only has President Roosevelt entered the field but friends of Senator Tydings from everywhere have sent in their moral and financial support.

As Senator Sheppard's committee has reported, both Republicans and Democrats are backing Senator Tydings. Among them is Harry B. Hawes, former Senator from Missouri.

The American workers in the Baltimore sugar refinery have discovered that former Senator Hawes is now the "Washington representative of the Philippine Sugar Association." In the Senate Senator Tydings is the chairman of the Philippine Insular Committee. This may be significant.

This is only an example of the mischievous possibilities of not letting the voters of a State alone in selecting their public officials. As a Marylander and as a Democrat I do not favor President Roosevelt's electoral invasion of Maryland, and I also warn our voters against the outside interests that try to influence the results of our local elections.

ANNE FORT WILSON.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is somewhat amusing and at the same time inexplicable the way the newspapers and the columnists are harping upon and abusing the so-called "purge" which they say is now going on in an effort to get a Democratic Congress that will assist a Democratic Administration in carrying out the policies and measures that have been thrice overwhelmingly indorsed by the people of America at the polls. It must be that they realize that the old Republican Party has sunk into innocuous desuetude and is impotent to win the battle, and their only hope is to get pseudo and recalcitrant Democrats elected to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for them.

This may be the part of wisdom, as it is their only hope. If they can get the Democratic Party divided, as appears likely, they may stand some chance in 1940. I have seen three Democratic Presidents, with large majorities in both houses of Congress, wrecked, and by members of their own party. Cleveland was knifed by his party on the tariff issue; Wilson was betrayed by his own party when he worked so hard to bring peace to a troubled world, and now it seems the same coterie is at work to crucify Roosevelt to serve their personal interest.

And the use of WPA funds for political purposes seems to be the bete noir that is disturbing their dreams, as if this is something new in politics. They evidently do not wish to recall the methods used in other days, when the Republicans not only "shook down" the big industrialists who were the recipients of Government favors in the way of high tariffs and special legislation, but required every public officer to contribute to the party's exchequer. And many postmasters had literally to "buy" their offices in the South. We had no WPA or PWA in those days, but we had postmasters, revenue officers, harbor masters and the like.

WELLINGTON SMITH.

Washington, Aug. 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That distinguished gentleman and scholar, Senator Walter F. George, as well as Senators Smith and Tydings, are presumably good men. They may be the finest of men personally. But that is not enough. They are not good Senators.

To be a good Senator it is necessary to be active in support of policies which will give the common people of the country a better show in life. All Senators who are against such policies ought to be defeated for re-election, whether in the primaries or at the polls. And the President is perfectly right in urging that they should be.

Those Senators, and those Representatives who say that the wage and hour bill will "crucify the South" are wholly wrong. What this talk amounts to is that the people of the South are in general a low class who ought to be held down to a low standard of living, so that "business" in the South may prosper and make more and more off of these poor wretches.

The unhappy people of the South can not be set right by electing mere "Democrats!" They need to set themselves right by electing State and Federal legislators of truly democratic feelings and activities; men who will be perfectly willing to "crucify the South" of business in order to redeem the South of human beings.

WILLIAM C. LEE.

Washington, Aug. 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Attention should be called. I think, to the use of the phrase, "the liberal vote." What is it?

When Mr. Roosevelt was nominated, at the first, he said to those about him, "We must have the liberal vote to win the election." He then began calling in for conferences the so-called "liberals." To tell the truth, it is now, in many respects, the least "liberal vote" that we have. For if a man is liberal in his politics he thereby announces himself as free to vote as he thinks best, regardless of political pressure or favor. The liberal man is one who thinks for himself, whether in religion or in matters of government.

While the men who are victims of the present proposed "purge" are not always using terms and methods that a truly liberal man can approve, the Administration is sinning quite as much in harping upon the phrase, "bite the hand that feeds you." To say that a vote is "liberal" when it is prompted by what is almost self-preservation is certainly using words without discrimination. A host of men and women in this country are living on so-called "security wages," for which they are duly grateful, as a bridge to tide them over conditions they were not responsible for in the recent past. But when those very people must be classed in the various "polls" as "reliefers," when they are doing in many cases a very high type of work for a return which can not possibly maintain a modest home, then the very mention of the word "liberal" as applied to them or their vote is absurd.

These persons are, or should be, grateful to the Government for so much of help as it gives, but with the understanding that the money thus provided is after all the money of the people of the Nation. The present Administration may be called "liberal," much as Mr. Hoover might have been called so by the Belgian people when he was feeding them with the money of our people. The man who is truly liberal in his gifts is the man who gives of his own; certainly not of what belongs to others.

All that can be said for the liberality of the present Administration is that the Chief Executive leans toward a policy of helping the unemployed who are seeking and deserving employment. So far as that is being done, no right-thinking man objects, if there are no strings to the favors thus done. A liberal vote cast by a man who may be called an ingrate for not voting a certain way is anything but liberal. And to further confuse the situation, we are now including in this great mass of "liberals" what is confessedly the most illiterate, the most ill-educated, the least "American" of our entire population.

If, however, the press and the most cultured and intelligent people of the land cry out against such abuse of language as our rulers have lent themselves to, the terms "tories," "reactionaries," "economic royalists," are shot back at them. After all, who are truly "liberals" in this land of ours? Back to basic meanings, we find that a "liberal" must be a man who thinks, votes and acts as an independent citizen of a great republic.

The Post Impressionist

"Could A Tale Unfold."

WE ARE a superstitious race, we mortals, and interest in the occult and the unexplained is bone-bred in us. We may be full of sophisticated hoots and jeers, but mention a new ghost story (authentic, of course!) and the chairs draw closer, the chorus of voices subsides, waiting for the tale-teller to begin.

Recently, in a mood of scientific interest, I tried it at a dinner party and not only had an opportunity to parade my own pet spooks but added a new assortment to my shadowy repertoire. There were the hardy perennials that always bob up in such conversations—the mysterious taxi passenger of Woollcott fame, the Stephen Decatur story and the weird light in the deserted house at Cabin John. But there were a few that none of us had heard before.

By far the most romantic was the experience of the Boston clergyman. The guest who told it had been his parishioner for many years and vouched for the gentleman's character and veracity. When a young student in England, the clergyman and one of his classmates made an extended walking tour through the countryside, with their objective a beautiful estate of great historic interest. They were armed with letters to the occupants, but upon their arrival found a large house party in progress. The host made them welcome, but regretted that the guest rooms were filled. There was one room—but, no, they might object to it. However, if they cared to use it, they were very welcome to stay.

Before he could explain the objectionable feature, the host was called away, leaving the boys to the mercies of a servant, who showed them to their quarters and left with great promptness. They were at a loss to explain the doubtful invitation, for the room was a gem of early English architecture.

That night as they climbed into bed with the firelight flickering on the floor, it seemed as though they had been thrust back into the shadowy past. They were too weary and excited to sleep immediately, being content to rest and drink in the mellow atmosphere. Presently both became aware of a third person in the room. A slender young girl clad in a long white nightshift was standing by the mantel. Her face turned toward them for an instant, and even in the dim firelight they were struck with the haunting, fragile quality of its beauty. Her sad eyes looked vacantly into the fire, and she stood there a moment longer, then turned and walked out of the door. The young men assumed that she was a guest who had been sleep-walking or had entered the room by mistake.

The next morning their host told them that they had seen the ghost of the lovely mad Ophelia, who had left the room in which they had slept to drown herself. I was so overcome with the tragic story that a cynic's suggestion that the locale should have been Denmark irritated me greatly. Then someone remembered that an early member of the house of Essex was said by a few authorities to have been the inspiration for "Hamlet."

The next story mounted from the minor key to a crashing and dramatic crescendo. It concerned a herd of horses that are supposed to gallop through a little used wing of a famous old house on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. The wing was built over the old driveway, and apparently the animals had not heard of the new addition. No one seemed to know anything about the horses, but many people had been in the house during their various stampedes and had felt the very floors tremble with the vibration of the pounding hoofs. Obviously no one cared to investigate, for so much as a glance out of the window while the rush was in progress was invariably followed by certain and swift death.

I recalled that among the Southern Negroes animal specters are usually regarded as "tokens" or signs of approaching disaster.

That called to mind the final story, and we closed on a note of supernatural domesticity, for here was a house haunted by a cat. The young woman who told of it was of the clear-cut, intelligent and rational type, and the fact that she had often seen the cat herself lent authenticity to the tale. The little ghost haunted her grandfather's house in Perth Amboy—a rambling old pre-Revolutionary structure that bore all the signs of being the habitation of spirits. For some years after its purchase there were no visitations, and only the creaking boards lent a ghostly air to the place. Then, one sunny afternoon as my friend's mother and aunt were standing by the piano, they stooped at the same moment to pet a gray cat that appeared at their feet. It walked away and faded into thin air. After that it appeared frequently, but always seemed to be going somewhere, as only the hind legs and tail were visible.

Upon a bleak winter day the grandfather observed the cat approaching and saw its face. He died that night. Some time after, a young boy in the neighborhood met the cat head on and was killed in an accident within the week. Thereafter, one assumes, the family stopped calling "kitty, kitty" and began to say "scat."

Positive Plus.

EVERY SO OFTEN the United States Congress, observing a suspicious rash on the hide of the Nation, makes a political Wassermann test to determine whether the country has become infected with communism. This has been done before, and at times the patient has been in a high state of alarm while waiting for the verdict, but, happily, the results always have been negative.

Now the symptoms are out again, and the Dies committee on un-American activities decided that inasmuch as the two maladies are almost alike, it would test for Nazilism at the same time. Probably it is nothing worse than poison ivy, but it does no harm to check up.

• • • •

BOTH DISEASES are subtle and great mockers up to the point where the patient, if not treated, is just about to collapse. Both pretend to revere the United States Constitution while working for its destruction, and both invoke democracy for protection from its defenders. Both result in butchery of persons and liberties, both are anti-Christian, utterly ruthless and cynical and devoted to the belief that any treachery is justified by the end. One spirochete is red, the other black; that is the only difference.

The hearings thus far have served at least one good purpose in familiarizing the public with the term "Fellow Traveler." Up to now this has been a trade term of the double-dome periodical press, and the common public has had no pat name for those who for lack of determination or reasons of cunning remain outside the official fold of the Communist organization, but tag along doing the Communists' dirty work in the guise of progressives and reformers.

Of course, there has been much indignation among the Communists, who point out that theirs is a regular political party, forgetting that by similar cunning a Nazi might easily organize a legal Nazi Party within the wide limits of the American Constitution. The Nazis might develop an auxiliary of "Fellow Travelers," too, and probably will, for that matter, for they have imitated the Communists in so many things, and vice versa, that rivalry is their only quarrel now.

• • • •

THE DIES INQUIRY has been called a Red hunt, and, far from denying it, if I were a member of the committee, I should admit as much. It is a Nazi hunt and a Red hunt; that is the committee's duty and purpose, and it is a patriotic work. I am also an enthusiastic believer in Red baiting, being one of those who are damned tired of affected patience and forbearance under the most licentious baiting by the Reds. There is plenty of legitimate material with which to bait them, and there is no better source than a Congressional inquiry.

Mr. Dies is being baited by the Reds now for exposing their activities in the C. I. O. and in the moving-picture industry, of which they make boast under some circumstances, but deny under others. He would be a fool not to bait them back by revealing their methods and purposes and their subservience to Moscow, all of which are good, honest baiting material and shouldn't be hard to produce.

The Communists and their Fellow Travelers have been aggressive, overbearing and pernicious in the C. I. O. and proud of their power up to the point where Dies took them at their word and set out to prove it. At that point, however, the Communists and Fellow Travelers became mock modest and derided the very idea that they, being so few, could have had any influence among so many. They aren't that way in union affairs, however, and Mr. Dies is indirectly responsible for the smoking out of one C. I. O. leader who finally had to declare a belief that Communist Russia represents "the greatest effort for human betterment which has been made in history." Such a believer would seem eligible to join the party the more directly to assist this greatest effort for human betterment, but it is still libelous under some conditions to charge an undeclared person with outright communism. Their beliefs disgrace them. Strange people!

• • • •

THE COMMUNISTS, again like the Nazis, believe that those who are not for them are against them—a status which should be highly acceptable to all who believe in the American form of government, rather than the Russian or German, as the greatest effort for human betterment that has been made in history.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

Among the curbstone talk:

The order of the Civil Service Commission placing the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation under civil service is in conflict with two provisions of law governing the corporation.

The FDIC is specifically authorized by law to employ personnel from other Government departments and compensate persons so employed. Under authority from this provision the corporation in the past has employed at times national bank examiners from the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, which has been granted exemption from civil service because of a provision in the law affecting that agency, permitting it to employ, compensate and discharge personnel without regard to other laws. This referred to laws relating to the classified service.

The commission's order means that the FDIC could employ examiners only from a list certified by it to be eligible. But national bank examiners, as a result of the exemption granted the Comptroller's office, are not required to qualify as examiners under commission rules.

Moreover, the commission's order, which merely makes specific application of the executive order "blanketing" New Deal agencies under civil service, cannot nullify a specific provision of the law governing the FDIC.

Thus the corporation has authority by law to "borrow" national bank examiners—and yet, under the commission's order, it cannot. Another anomaly arises in connection with the express authority granted the FDIC to employ, compensate and discharge personnel at it sees fit.

This power, which defines what the corporation can do in dealing with personnel, is almost a word adaptation of the authority which the Federal Reserve act grants Federal Reserve Banks in this respect. It is in direct conflict with laws governing the classified service.

Regardless of the Commission's order, the provision is part of the statutes, and can't be erased by Presidential Executive order. The law affecting the FDIC simply omits to say anything about exemption from the classified service. This may have been due to the fact that, as originally conceived, the corporation was to be a deposit insurance agency within the Federal Reserve System, which is not a Government body at all, but is owned by the member banks, although the Government by law controls it.

Because FDIC contained no express exemption, however, the commission ruled that it would be covered under civil service. The situation has raised the question as to how far the commission investigated other phases of FDIC law relating to personnel. Did it study the corporation's own peculiar status, or did it merely act on the basis of the lack of an express exemption by statute?

Associated Press Staff Writer.

The A. F. Of L. Viewpoint.

(Editor's note: This is the third of five articles by Mr. Turner, Associated Press staff writer, on the prospective congressional struggle over amendments to the Wagner national labor relations act. It presents the viewpoint of the American Federation of Labor. A fourth will state the attitude of the C. I. O. and the National Labor Relations Board, and a fifth will discuss some implications of the study of British labor law initiated by President Roosevelt.)

THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR contends that the Wagner act has proved primarily an instrument for unfairly promoting the fortunes of its bitter rival, the Committee for Industrial Organization.

This has been due, first of all, its officials say, to the "bias," the "maladministration," and the "pro-C. I. O. attitude" expressed in the National Labor Relations Board's, decisions interpreting and applying the law.

These decisions, the A. F. of L. charges, have consistently ignored the rights of the Federation's craft unions and favored the industrial union of the C. I. O.

A craft union is an organization of employes who work at a particular trade or in a particular department or other subdivision of a particular industry. An industrial union attempts to organize all the employes of an industry into one union, regardless of trades or departments. Conflicts have arisen in industries in which the A. F. of L. has one or more well-organized craft union and the C. I. O. has enrolled other employes in an industrial union. The craft union and the industrial union each seeks the right of representing the employes in collective bargaining with the employer.

• • • •

NOW, THE Wagner act says that the Labor Board in such an instance shall decide which is to negotiate with the employer. It can say whether bargaining is to be on a craft basis or an industrial basis. Usually it orders a secret ballot of the employes. But here, again, the board may decide whether the election shall be conducted on craft lines or industrial lines. Many decisions have called for an industrial election, and in a number of these the craft union, no matter how thoroughly organized as a unit, has found itself outnumbered by the semiskilled workers of the C. I. O.

Furthermore, the law says that the decision of a majority of the employes in such a case shall be binding upon the whole. Thus the C. I. O. has gone ahead with the bargaining and the craft union has found itself frozen out.

A recent A. F. of L. statement discussed instances of this and added:

"Surely this is not freedom for workers to choose their own unions and representatives for collective bargaining, but unions developed under Government patronage."

• • • •

IN ADDITION, the A. F. of L. is irate at board orders canceling contracts between the federation's craft unions and their employers. These orders have been issued on the basis of a finding that the craft union was not the chosen collective bargaining agent of the employes. The A. F. of L. charges that in some cases contracts have been canceled without holding an election or taking other appropriate steps to determine what the bargaining unit should be.

"The American Federation of Labor regards contracts entered into through collective bargaining between employers and employes as sacred and binding upon those who are parties thereto," William Green, president of the federation, said only this week. "We believe that contracts thus negotiated should be faithfully executed and carried out fully and completely.

"Thus the N. L. R. B. in its decisions setting aside valid agreements is destroying the sacredness of contracts and, as we believe, striking a blow at collective bargaining."

So, it is apparent, that the federation's two major objectives in the coming Congressional battle will be amendments to safeguard the collective bargaining rights of its craft unions, and prevent the board from abrogating craft union contracts once they are negotiated and signed.

• • • •

GREEN RECENTLY proposed that a section of the railway labor act be inserted in the Wagner law to make the latter provide that "the majority of any craft or class of employes shall have the right to determine who shall be" its collective bargaining agent.

Federation officials have talked also of other amendments to limit the discretionary powers of the board. They have suggested that its quasi-judicial powers be stripped away and vested in an independent tribunal. They have proposed restrictions upon its power to issue or deny the issuance of subpenas and changes to give the courts to which NLRB decisions are appealed the power to review the facts in the process of determining whether a board ruling is sound.

Other federation complaints about the board involve such decisions as that establishing the C. I. O. union as the collective bragaining agent for all longshoremen of the Pacific Coast. The federation claims a preponderant membership in numerous ports. In addition, Green was severely critical of the recently signed closed-shop contract between coal operators in Harlan County, Ky., and the United Mine Workers, a C. I. O. union, as a result of which the labor board withdrew charges then pending against the operators.

"A clearer case of conspiracy to violate the national labor relations act cannot be found," Green said. "A more brazen and unlawful alliance to control workers without their knowledge and consent has yet to be disclosed."

Purger's Progress

By Mark Sullivan.

The Record To Date.

IF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, after the medieval manner, leans from his window at midnight and asks, "Watchman, what of the purge?"—and if the watchman is a well-informed and accurate-minded person—the answer can hardly be such as to send Mr. Roosevelt back to bed with a mind at ease.

The watchman would be obliged to say, "Sire, not so good." But maybe the person who serves the White House as watchman of the political weather is Courtier Tommy Corcoran. And maybe Courtier Corcoran has learned that courtiers should never be bearers of bad tidings. Maybe Mr. Corcoran has learned the foxy courtier device of cryptic equivocation. Maybe he says, "Sire, South Carolina has gone against us, but in Maryland the Tydings are good.

But no possible way of putting it can truthfully describe the purge as other than going badly.

IN THE BEGINNING, there were nine Democratic Senators to be purged. They were the nine who opposed Mr. Roosevelt's court proposal and who come up for renomination this year. Of these nine "No" Senators, four are now formally renominated: Van Nuys of Indiana, Gillette of Iowa, Clark of Missouri, Smith of South Carolina. Two more, while not yet formally renominated, are certain to be. Adams of Colorado, in a primary some weeks ago, carried all but a handful of the delegates to the State convention which on September 13th will renominate him. And this week a primary in Connecticut gave Senator Loneran something like a thousand out of the roughly eleven hundred delegates to the State convention which on September 13th will renominate Mr. Lonergan.

There remain three. Of the three, one is Senator McCarran of Nevada, and the judgment of observers is that he will be renominated on Tuesday of next week. So that there remain but two that Mr. Roosevelt has any serious chance of purging—George of Georgia, who comes up next Tuesday, and Tydings of Maryland, who comes up September 13th.

Much good judgment says that George will win. If he does, then Mr. Roosevelt will be reduced to one chance, his last. He will find himself during the last week of the year's primaries fighting a rear guard battle to make his purge stick in just one of the nine cases. It would be a desperate rear guard action and a rather forlorn one, for everybody would know that even if he has won the last battle he would nevertheless have lost the war.

Even in the practically impossible case of the purging of all three of the Senators yet to go before primaries, Mr. Roosevelt would still have lost the war. For the issue, the picture of the situation, has always been as it was stated in a dispatch I wrote only July 6 last:

If all nine, or an important portion of the nine, such as five or six seven, are successfully purged, that would mean that the Democratic Party is to be in the hands of the President and his friends—it would mean that the Democratic Party would be the New Deal Party. On the other hand, if the nine, or a large majority of the nine, are renominated, it will mean the Democratic Party remains within the Democratic tradition. The outcome of success of the nine, or most of them, would be that the Democratic National Convention in 1940 would be controlled by Democrats of the older type, Democrats symbolized by, for example, Vice President Garner.

It is true Mr. Roosevelt personally has not put the purge issue in the terms in which it is put here. He never directly and publicly attempted to purge more than three of the nine—Smith of South Carolina, George of Georgia, and Tydings of Maryland. And Mr. Roosevelt included in his direct and public attempt one member of the House, O'Connor, of New York. But the inclusion of Mr. O'Connor was more or less an accident—his name was mentioned in a newspaper editorial advocating purge which Mr. Roosevelt indorsed. And if Mr. Roosevelt confined his public attempt at purge to three of the Senators, there were reasons. As to one, Gillette of Iowa, a covert attempt at purge by Mr. Roosevelt's close associates had failed. As to the other five, Mr. Roosevelt refrained from attempting purge because it was plain that purging was impossible.

THERE IS a small addendum. The man who first proposed the purge—or at least first announced it publicly—is Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania. Just after the court fight, on August 20, 1937, Mr. Guffey made a radio address in which he excoriated the Democratic Senators who had opposed the court measure, accused them of party treason, said they must be defeated in Democratic primaries, must be retired from public life.

None of them has as yet been retired. But the only reason Mr. Guffey remains in public life is that his term in the Senate extends until 1940. In his State he has been deprived of leadership of his party, cast out by the other party leaders almost with violence.

War Calculations

By Barnet Nover

The Small Powers And The Crisis.

SHOULD war develop out of the current European crisis, a very real possibility at the moment, Germany's success or failure would depend to a very large degree on her ability to keep that war localized.

The Czechs, a hard-headed people, are under no illusions on that score. They have a large and well-trained army. They have considerable industrial resources and plenty of arms and ammunition. But in the event they are attacked by the Third Reich the longest they expect to hold out, should no outside aid be forthcoming, is between six weeks and three or four months. They feel, however, that such outside aid will be provided them soon after the war begins.

IN SUPPORT of this contention they can point to the repeated declarations made by France that she will faithfully carry out the terms of the alliance, to the assurances given by Moscow that the Soviet Union will also come to Czechoslovakia's aid, and to the attitude recently displayed by Great Britain, most notably in the speech of Sir John Simon.

Nazi firebrands, on the other hand, presumably feel that these pledges to Czechoslovakia will not be carried out or carried out too late or on too inadequate a scale to be of any real assistance to that country. Otherwise it is doubtful whether an attack on Czechoslovakia would be launched at this time. For should a war against that country immediately involve Russia, France and Great Britain, the possibility of a speedy German victory would go aglimmering. And failure would doom the Hitler regime even as it meant the doom of the pre-war autocracies.

UPON WHAT grounds does this Nazi belief in the possibility of isolating a war against Czechoslovakia rest?

In the first place there is the undoubted fact that Germany today possesses the advantage of having her military forces near full war strength and presumably capable of executing a lightning stroke. On the other hand, despite the concentration of the British home fleet in the North, Sea and French maneuvers along the Italian and German borders, Czechoslovakia's potential allies are not mobilized and probably could not mobilize in less than a week or two, by which time, possibly, Germany might conceivably have attained an impregnable position.

In the second place, even if Italy does not fight alongside the Third Reich—and it is unlikely that she will—the Rome government will manifest an attitude of benevolent neutrality toward Berlin. That would be sufficient to compel France to maintain a considerable force along the Italian and Spanish borders and in French North Africa.

THIRDLY, there is the fact that the democratic powers are extremely anxious to stay out of war; that this anxiety has, in the past, paralyzed action and may do so again at this time.

In France, for instance, such men as Pierre Laval and Pierre-Etienne Flandin have vigorously espoused an attitude of complete defeatism on the Czechoslovak problem. France, they insist, should stay behind the Maginot line. But even if she does not, the Nazi firebrands argue, the new system of German fortifications which has been feverishly built up along the French frontier and which Hitler has just inspected will be sufficient to hold back the French tide from flowing over into the Reich.

As for England, despite Sir John Simon's warning to Berlin, the fact remains that the London government even during these last intensely critical days has not directly and specifically committed itself to coming in on the side of Czechoslovakia should that democracy be attacked. A delay of a fortnight or a month on Great Britain's part might permanently turn the balance in Germany's favor.

THE TIME factor can prove of ehormous importance. In 1914 Germany's calculations, while remarkably prescient, all things considered, went awry at this point. The war which was to end in six weeks dragged along for more than four years. And while, during that time, the central powers were able to replenish their exhausted supplies by securing Turkey and Bulgaria as allies and by conquering most of Serbia, Russian Poland, Rumania, what is now Latvia, Lithuania and Esthonia, and also the Ukraine, she went down to defeat nonetheless.

The Germany of today does not possess the reserves of the Germany of William II's day. Should a war with Czechoslovakia be prolonged, Gerany would be in dire straits unless she could add to her own supplies of food and raw materials those of neighboring lands, notably Poland, Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia. These countries can supply at least part of the shortage certain to develop in a war of any duration.

Presumably Hungary's resources which are mainly agricultural would be at Berlin's disposal. Poland, for her part, has recently been on friendly terms with the Third Reich while hostile to Czechoslovakia, which contains a Polish minority. But Poland has everything to lose and nothing substantial to gain by a German victory over Czechoslovakia which would in all probability be followed by a campaign for the restoration of Posen, the Corridor and Danzig.

As for Rumania and Yugoslavia, their security would be gravely imperiled by the destruction of Czechoslovakia and the aggrandizement of Hungary. To save themselves, however, they might, if victory for Germany seem assured, indicate their readiness to do the Third Reich's bidding. By the same token, the creation of a formidable coalition against Germany might swing them over against the Reich.

In that connection the deal just made by Great Britain with Rumania whereby the former has agreed to purchase 400,000 tons of grain from the latter, thus enabling Rumania not only to reduce the size of the British debt but get some free exchange in addition, is an interesting straw in the wind. Following close on the heels of the recent $80,000,000 British loan to Turkey and the decision of the London and Paris governments to cultivate closer commercial ties with the countries of southeastern Europe, it shows that the entente powers are beginning to draw a long bow. In the grim chess game of power which Europe is playing the pawns may, in the long run, decide the outcome. Neither side in the threatened conflict is forgetting that fact.

The Once Over

Those Golf Walkathons.

Golf is face to face with a New Menace, the Marathon Golfer. The nonstop hook and slice craze is definitely spreading. It is nothing to encounter on any golf course a golf maniac off to play two or three hundred holes in a test to determine how many hours he can spend in the rough without going mad.

• • • •

The orthodox 18-hole round is being regarded as a form of midget golf, and the man who hasn't staggered past the clubhouse at least a dozen times is now regarded as a weakling.

• • • •

It all started when J. Smith Ferebee, a Chicago broker, played 144 holes and won a plantation or something. A little later John Caruso went 231 holes on a Long Island course, and a few days ago Frank Carino hung up a new record of 235 holes at Broadmoor, Scarsdale.

• • • •

The effect on golf is revolutionary. Its main attraction down through the years has been that you could always quit on the eighteenth and return to a normal life.

The grand satisfaction has always been the knowledge that when you struggled up to that eighteenth green you had served the sentence and could spend the next couple of hours gassing about it.

You might talk like a man who had played a few hundred holes (and your score might indicate that you hadn't stopped short of a thousand), but everybody understood that you had found 18 plenty.

• • • •

But with this Hook-and-Slice Walkathon sweeping the Nation, there is no telling what may happen. The woods are already full of harassed duffers taking their twenty-second hack at the same bush and trying to figure out whether they've reached their thousandth stroke yet.

In a nonstop golf ordeal the footprints which arouse you to new heights of profanity in any sand trap may turn out to be your own, left there on the last previous circuit.

And when you denounce the golfer who forgot to replace a divot on the fifth hole you may merely be swearing at yourself.

• • • •

The only attraction we can see in marathon golf is that it gives an excuse for coming into the locker room and admitting that you took a nice 1,087 and would have broken 1,000 if you hadn't missed 50 putts.

• • • •

But the thing is getting epidemic. Only yesterday we encountered two wild-looking golfers carrying basket lunches, complete traveling outfits and their personal shoemakers. They had been around the course 11 times and were at the moment flying blind.

• • • •

Ahead of them was a foursome on its tenth lap. A big argument ensued over a delicate point of golf etiquette. The twosome claimed the right to go through on the ground of seniority rights.

• • • •

But the foursome insisted that the twosome had no standing in modern golf because it had failed to include pajamas in its playing equipment.

The Great Clambake Argument.

Sir: A clambake cooked in an iron kettle! Where do you get that stuff? You must be the kind of man who would cook a fish fry in a percolator. The Milford Yacht Club bake of Commodore Dick may be good, but every real clambake expert knows that the only way to cook 'em is in the rocks. Unless you build the fire in the rocks, let the rocks get hot and steam the food that way, you ain't et nuthin' yet.

Murray Says Steel Pay Drop Unlikely

By the Associated Press.

Philip Murray, C. I. O. vice chairman, told President Roosevelt yesterday there appeared little likelihood of a general wage reduction in the steel industry in the next few months.

Murray said a conference with Roosevelt included discussion of the industry's economic condition, political matters, and recent settlement of the long-standing disagreement between the United Mine Workers and coal operators in Harlan, Ky.

Murray declined to comment on the fact President Roosevelt called him into his office just 24 hours after summoning Sydney Hillman, the other C. I. O. vice president. Hillman said he discussed with the President possible amendments to the Wagner labor act.

Publishers Cited For a Monopoly In Medical Books

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Trade Commission accused four publishers yesterday of attempting to give a dealer a monopoly in the sale of medical books in Chicago and surrounding territory.

One complaint was directed against the publishers, W. B. Saunders Co., J. P. Lippincott Co. and Lea & Febiger, all of Philadelphia, and C. V. Mosby Co., St. Louis, and against the Chicago Medical Book Co., which sells the medical books of the respondent publishers at wholesale and retail.

In another complaint the commission accused the same companies, together with T. H. McKenna, Inc., New York, and J. A. Majors & Co., Dallas, Tex., both dealers, of fixing prices for medical books which they sell to Government agencies.

Guardsmen Loop-the-Loop With a Lifeboat

2 . . . and pull the 1,600-pound boat over, jumping back into the water with one hand in the air to catch the other gunwale to keep it from cracking them on the head.

3 Clambering over the boat, now bottom-up, they are bringing their lanyards with them. They pull at the ropes again—and over she comes.

12,500-Ton Steel Bridge Being Built for Burial

The huge construction trestle spanning the Columbia River is the skeleton of Grand Coulee Dam. The trestle will be used to carry four railroad tracks and seven double-arm cranes for placing 6,000,000 cubic yards of concrete necessary to lift the dam to its full 550-foot height. As the dam rises it will bury the steel bridge, as it did two earlier trestles.

Girls Today Have Better Chest Lines

Pectoral Muscles Benefit From Chinning, Other Bar Exercises.

By Ida Jean Kain.

ON THE average the women who were 20 ten years ago have never had as lovely figures as the girls who are 20 now, and one of the main reasons is that the young girls today have escaped the binding brassieres which turned out the flat-chested figure.

The uplift brassiere helps to counteract the strain of weight on the supporting muscles which causes the bosom to sag as we grow older. A brassiere of this type should always be worn by the overweight while exercising, to prevent stretching of the ligaments. In the young and healthy figure the ligaments have not yet stretched and lost their elasticity, the supporting muscles are well toned and the bust contour is firm and high.

Cold Water Aids.

The older women who do have lovely figures have exercised. Creams and lotions are not of the slightest value in improving the bust contour. There is no such thing as a "nourishing" cream. Cold water, which stimulates the circulation and helps to firm the tissues, is the best of all astringents. Exercise, however, is the most effective known means of preventing sagging, and the specific exercises which seem to give best results are those in which the arms are pushed against resistance or raised high overhead.

Hanging from a bar is extremely good exercise for those pectoral muscles. Chin yourself—if you can do it!

Normal Weight Necessary.

Normal weight is essential to a lovely bust contour. When the bust is overly large, the source of the trouble is much more likely to be in the deposit of excess fatty tissue than in the mammary glands. Bringing the weight to normal is the means of reducing this measurement, but it should be done very gradually, for not only does rapid reducing impair the health, but it actually ravages these delicate tissues and increases the tendency to sagging.

There are three measures which aid in the development of the undersized bust: increased diet, exercise and improved posture. To your regular diet add one quart of milk and one-half pint of cream, plus one concentrated A and D vitamin capsule. Engage in outdoor activity for one hour daily, and concentrate on exercise for posture improvement.

Measures which improve the bust contour are worth while, for they are, essentially, measures which benefit the health.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Girl Who Passionately Resents War Believes Herself in Love With Loyalist Soldier; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Less than a week ago I met a young man of 23. We were immediately attracted to each other and spent the whole day and evening together. Two days later I saw him again among a group of friends. On this occasion he declared his love for me. I laughed it off as nonsense and he lapsed into silence. However, judging from his actions and certain remarks made by his friends, I am inclined to believe he does like me very much.

• • • •

This man was born in Italy. I realize that his Latin temperament may explain his impetuosity, idealism and intensity, at least in part. And it is difficult for me to resist his particular type of attractiveness. He is keen and intelligent, and 10 years in this country have not dimmed a fascinating accent. Although far from handsome (and this has never mattered to me), he has more magnetism than any man I have ever known and I am afraid I am in love with him.

• • • •

This is my dilemma: He has been in Spain fighting for the loyalists. Only last winter he returned, seriously wounded. As he recovered, the desire to return to that war-torn country grew stronger each day, and now he is making every effort to get back. It may be a few days, or months, before he leaves for the battle front. Or he may never get back. I cannot say. But this I know—I have an unmitigated horror of war that dates back as far as I can remember. It is almost a phobia with me. I was born in 1920; perhaps this is my inheritance of the reaction to postwar desolation. . . .

• • • •

It is ironic that fate should send me a wounded veteran to love. What am I to do? I have thought of various things—of telling him exactly how I feel; of making a clean break; and to simply letting things slide until I know him better. But I am afraid that the more I see him, the more I will fall under his spell. He has kept his distance at my bidding, despite his protestation of love; but I am certain that if I continue to see him, he will truly win my love. Incidentally, I am not as inexperienced socially as many 18-year-old girls. I have gone with boys since the age of 14, have had dozens of beaux and was in love once before for two years. But never anything like this. QUESTIONING.

The Actor Vs. His Role.

DEAR QUESTIONING: I think you are more a victim of your own imagination in this instance than you are in love with the man as an individual. I think your fancy has been captivated by the glamour of his dramatic and dangerous experiences as a soldier, to the extent that you are confusing the actor, so to speak, with his role. Had he been just another young man engaged in routine civilian pursuits when you met him; say, a haberdasher's clerk, a Federal department employe, a college student, an affiliate in his father's business, or something equally commonplace, I dare say his keenness, intelligence, characteristic accent, and physical magnetism would have left no such exciting imprint on your emotions. You would probably have passed him over as a person outside your social ken—and I mean this as no reflection on the young man, but merely a statement of what your reaction would have been.

• • • •

I think the very fact that his plans for the future would seem to indicate that leisurely courtship, marriage and family relationships are not for him; that you see in him a man who is different and doomed, as it were, is responsible for your mounting excitement at the thought of him. It is the old story of the apple out of reach seeming most desirable. I haven't a doubt that if he were to forswear his soldiering intent for love of you and settle down to routine courtship with marriage as its goal that you would eventually discover his fascination had completely faded; that he was anything else but your foreordained mate.

• • • •

Furthermore, I entertain the suspicion that the chap, in true soldier-of-fortune fashion (having been around a bit), makes a practice of playing upon the tender and vulnerable imaginativeness of young, impressionable maidens who happen to attract him. I daresay that sudden, impulsive-seeming declaration of love on second meeting has been tried by him before, with similar results; that it is a tested trick, and that you reacted in perfect character, giving him the cue he counted on—i. e., a chance to relapse into pseudo-injured (and cleverly noncommittal) silence. Even while you laughed off his statement as nonsense, you were willing to believe it, and, with naive eager expectancy, were waiting to hear more along the same line. Not getting it (as he was content that you shouldn't), you retired from the encounter with your imagination running in circles, as he probably intended it should.

• • • •

I dare say, too, that he is not at all unaware of his attractiveness to women; and that he realizes some part of his fatal fascination, at least, has to do with his projected early departure for the front-line trenches. As you may or may not know, it is a more or less common phenomena for emotional and imaginative women to fancy themselves madly in love with virtual strangers who are on the eve of taking off for the battlefront; even, at time, to marry them hastily (when asked); and to live to regret such impulsive surrenders when and if truce returns the man to them, divested of his embattled glamour and his swashbuckling attitudes. The woman's ephemeral emotional commitment, in such instances, is usually a mixture of maternal compassion, hero worship and heady willingness to serve the warrior. It is a reaction inspired by the supposed exigencies of the hour, rather than by the qualities of the man; and probably, deep down, is bound up with Dame Nature's ruthless intent to preserve and perpetuate the race in the face of threatened extinction.

• • • •

I cannot prophesy whether or not you would fall more in love with this man if you knew him better. I think it likely you might, for a time, become more deeply infatuated (which is something else again), but I doubt that the spell would endure, if you have a faculty for seeing things straight and a capacity for appreciating genuine values. The dashing adventurer type of man is, in most cases, either a neurotic or a no'er-do-well at heart. He is one of those shirkers who seek to escape life's realistic problems and responsibilities by engaging in endeavors of pretentious, make-believe importance, and the more he doubts their authenticity and his own worth, the harder he plays the game—striving to convince others if not himself.

• • • •

I will say, however, that it is foolish to let fear of his supposed irresistible magnetism cause you either to make a point of avoiding his society, on the one hand, or to break down and confess your spontaneous attachment, on the other hand. If, as I suspect, this is by way of divertissement for him, he is probably expecting you to do one or the other, or something equally unconventional. The way to turn the tables is to keep your poise and self-control and prove your contention that you are not the average impetuous, easily impressionable 18-year-old maiden.

• • • •

If you wish to put his sincerity and desirability to the test, I can only suggest that you take time to get acquainted with the actual man masquerading beneath the soldier-of-fortune cloak. Study him at length against the background of your accustomed social routine and in the midst of your friends of contemporary age. In other words, draw him into your world, and don't permit yourself to be drawn into a fancy-world of his verbal depicting—if you wish to appraise him sanely. And, incidentally, be on guard against the possible practiced wiles of a youth who may be woman-wise beyond his years. M. H.

KIMBALL PIANOS

Housewives' High Spirits Impress Polish Observer

FREEDOM from kitchen feudalism has emancipated the American housewife, according to Miss Antonia Kopta, young home economics instructor from Poland, who recently visited Washington on the last lap of a year's study of domestic science advancements here.

Miss Antonia Kopta, Here on Home Economics Fellowship, Says American Women Enjoy Great Privileges; Marvels at Diversity of Food.

By Marshall Adams.

THE AMERICAN housewife is the most fortunate woman in the world. This judgment is given from the perspective of a year's study of the home economics scene here by Miss Antonia Kopta, of Poland, who has been visiting in Washington.

Having completed her year as a fellowship student at the Merrill Palmer Home Economics Institute in Detroit, Miss Kopta will return next week to her native Zakopane. The impression she will carry of the American homemaker is that of a woman who as she expresses it, "has the blessing of freedom all around her."

"Household appliances, streamlined kitchens and home designs and even a sense of laughter have contrived to make the American woman into a enviable creature quite unknown to us in Poland," said Miss Kopta.

High Spirits Noted.

"Freedom here is not the hollow word it has come to be in European capitals," she continued. "In Washington and in every other city I have visited during my year's studies here, I have noticed the high spirit with which even the smallest task is attacked by the American woman.

"At home in Zakopane, we are all so grateful for the good providence that enables us to have an education that we never forget for a moment that learning for women of the poorer classes has not long been permitted."

Miss Kopta appeared a trifle wistful as she went on to contrast the native vigor found in American universities, for it was by assiduous application that she rose to the position of home economics instructor in the Zakopane-Kuznice College for Women, one of Poland's oldest and most aristocratic girls' schools and one of Europe's most highly esteemed. Through her application she won the annual fellowship at the Merril-Palmer School given by the American Home Economics Association.

Surprised at Cooking.

In Poland the home economics courses are centered more around manual activities than in this country, Miss Kopta pointed out. Students are taught the rustic beauties of nature along with their strenuous laboratory studies.

"For instance," Miss Kopta explained, "one of their favorite relaxations is to be taken on long hikes across the mountains surrounding Krakow. Here we discuss trends in homemaking as we brew our own tea from little bags we have tucked into our knapsacks, and from water heated by ourselves at wayside hostelries. When traveling some distance, say into Czechoslovakia, we live frugally but happily on fruits and fresh vegetables which we gather and cook for ourselves at Tourists' Bureaus dotting every mountain path in Poland. This extra-curricular study for European pupils teaches even the most highly born the virtues of humility and frugality, aiding, I believe, the character and the economical temperance so necessary to a domestic science study.

The diversity of American cooking was a surprise to Miss Kopta. "Poland being about the size of New York State," she said, "you can imagine that we eat pretty much a stylized type of native food. Our diets consist mostly of boiled vegetables and meat-ragouts. We serve much beet soup which we call borsch, even though it differs greatly from Russian borsch for ours is strained and clear and cooked with mushrooms wrapped in dough which we call 'pigs's ears.'

Lavish Use of Fruits.

"A great treat to me is the lavish use of fruits and nuts in the United States. Polish tariffs on these foodstuffs are staggering so that they are considered luxuries, yet every one feels they are necessities in well planned meals. Europe has just become aware of the balanced diet and it has been amusing to observe Polish student reaction to study of calories proteins and carbohydrates. Pretty little beginners at our Zakopane Gymnasium can think of nothing other than whether they have cut down on their fats today, and they are always the ones who couldn't weigh over 110 pounds if they tried. Poland has taken the dietetic craze to heart, so that one little boy, upon having a green salad placed before him by a vitamin conscious mother, said: "Mama, look there's a little garden worm hiding in the salad here. Shall I eat him? He's what you'd call a living vitamin."

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

The Old Crowd.

"Well, do you ever see any of the old crowd?"

"Not a soul. Do you?"

"I don't see anybody. I did run on to Chett Minch the other day."

"How's Chett?"

"Well, he's gotten awfully fat."

"What'd he say about Betty?"

"He said she had gotten a lot stouter."

"I never see anybody—say, though, I will tell you who's here. Sonia Flute."

"Is she as radical as ever?"

"No; Sonia's changed a lot. She's got a lovely home. I guess Bert has done pretty well in that bird-seed business."

"Well, don't you remember how Sonia and Tom Carp and all that crowd used to put on those parades?"

"Say, Tom's with an oil company now in South America. I saw him when he was home. He's a lot stouter."

"Oh, there was somebody else I heard about the other day—Grace Tapp! Did you know she had divorced Elmer?"

"What was the matter?"

"Well, he just started running wild—all of a sudden."

"Elmer Tapp! Of all things! Why, he used to be the slowest one in the crowd."

"Well, of course, Grace has changed a lot, too. She's gotten awfully stout. All I know about it, though, is what Margie Tabb told me. I never see anybody."

"How is Margie?"

"You knew she had married again, didn't you?"

"No!"

"Yes she married a man 15 years younger than herself. She had just got back from Reno a month ago."

"Margie always was man crazy. Say, did you hear about Arch Blinker? He's head of a big company—they make goldfish bowls or something—anyway he's making $50,000 a year."

"No! Why I never thought Arch was very smart in school."

"Me either. And you know Mamie Gooch. They say she's written a book.'"

"Mamie Gooch! Why I always thought she was sort of dumb."

"Me too. Say guess who I ran on to the other day. Ted Trott."

"How's old Ted? Still making whoopee?"

"Sa., he's settled down and got seven children."

"Not seven!"

"Yes, he doesn't look like the same man. Of course he's gotten a lot stouter."

"Of all things! Well I wish I could think of some news of the old bunch but the trouble with me I never see anybody."

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Aug. 31.

NOT LONG ago I related the introduction of the London dance importation, "the Lambeth Walk," on the hoity-toity roof of the St. Regis Hotel (Vince Astor's place). Prince Serge Obolensky, master of the revels, started the shindig in a properly dignified way, but "the Lambeth Walk" has caught on here handsomely and now looks like the cutest cut-up of the early season.

ALICE HUGHES.

This adaptation of an old costermonger dido is easy to do, is amusing to watch and even fun to perform. It calls for none of the acrobatic insanity which imperiled the Nation's sanity when the "Big Apple" was raging unchecked through the land last winter. Just because a gent or lady is not up to such adolescent madness, or cannot master the intricacies of the rhumba or the tango, does not mean that they don't like to shake a jocular shoe in public. It seems to me that this somehow charming walk is the answer to their prayer.

Needless to say, it spread rapidly from the slightly stuffy precincts of Vince's joint. A few nights ago a quartet of us went up to the Rainbow Room, Jack Rockefeller's Cloudland Saloon, to see John Hoysradt do his amazing satiric mimicry and, sure enough, Al Donahue's band gave out the Lambeth Walk music, and away the folks went, young and old, doing the little hopping walk.

At the ringside I spotted Arthur Murray, our best known instructor of la danse. He and his pretty little wife were watching and stepping, by turns, and I queried him on the Lambeth lope. Yes, said Arthur, it is going to be deservedly popular, and he's now teaching it right and left. Perhaps it is not goofy enough for the very young, said Arthur, but that's their hard luck.

It's a lot of fun, and when an old fogey like Hughes gives the cheery nod to a new dance it can certainly be performed with impunity and hoopla.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Ever hear of a beauty doctor getting a rush call, like the young man on the ambulance? I never did until the other day when I was lunching at the Ritz with Gloria Bristol. Gloria was called from the table by a phone call. When she returned to the costly groceries she said it had been from Guy Lombardo, the band leader, who had scratched or barked his nose while sailing his boat the previous day, and needed to have the schnozzle groomed and slicked up so he could appear nicely before his public that night. It just proves that a beautician must keep a little black bag packed at all times these days. But suppose one of these male Hollywood stars I could name should lose his toupee and be caught without a spare! What then, sisters?

Export, Domestic Demand Reported Heavy; Crop Yield Seen Less.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hancock, Md., Aug. 31.—The first fall varieties of apples began moving from this area today, with growers reporting a heavy demand for export fruit, as well as from the domestic market. A season as profitable as the peach season just closing is forecast by apple growers.

The last of the peaches in this area are being cleaned up this week, with the best grades continuing to command around $1.50 a bushel. Culls, which usually were fed to hogs, found a ready market at $1.00 a bushel for the first time in years, growers report. The crop here was about two-thirds of the expected crop but was one of the most profitable in years.

Growers began picking Grimes Goldens today, and will start harvesting Jonathans and other varieties early in September.

The demand from the Middle West is unusually heavy this season. J. Andrew Cohill, one of the leading growers here, said that Chicago buyers were in this territory this week for the first time in ten years.

The apple crop here will be about 60 per cent of last year's crop. The early varieties are almost off the market, bringing around $1.00 a bushel, which permits a good profit for the growers. Between 400 and 500 pickers will be in the orchards within the next week, orchardists said.

Bedtime Stories

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The Blind Fighter.

True courage is a state of mind
—Old Mother Nature.

There was no way for him to escape from that log without passing Short-tail.

Short-tail the Shrew was hungry. Being hungry he was in a bad temper. Temper is said to be a state of mind but I am inclined to think that more often it is a state of stomach. A full stomach—good temper; an empty stomach—bad temper. Short-tail's temper seldom is other than bad, but Short-tail's stomach seldom is full. Like his small cousin, Teeny Weeny the Common Shrew, his appetite is all out of proportion to his size. It is tremendous. Yes, sir, it is nothing less than tremendous. So for Short-tail life consists mostly of hunting for food, eating, and sleeping just long enough to rest enough to hunt again for more to eat.

It doesn't matter to Short-tail whether it be night or day. It is all the same to him. He can hunt in the dark just as well as most people can hunt in the light, for apparently he doesn't use his eyes to see things. It is doubtful if he could if he wanted to, so it is just as well he doesn't want to. The only use he has for eyes is to let him know when he is out in the light that he may instantly dart back under cover lest an enemy see him.

Are you sorry for him because he can't see? Don't be. He doesn't need to see. He moves about more rapidly and freely than some people who can see. His ears are as good as his eyes are poor and he has a wonderful sense of touch, especially through his whiskers. You have seen a blind man feeling his way with his cane. Short-tail's whiskers serve the same purpose as the cane, but do it far better. And his nose helps out his ears and his whiskers, so after all he seems to be quite as well off as people with eyes.

As I said before, Short-tail was hungry. It was three hours since he had had a bite to eat and in three hours a healthy Shrew can get up a great appetite. Short-tail was a healthy Shrew. Pushing his way this way and that under the leaves he came to a sort of little tunnel beneath the matted leaves that carpeted the ground. His nose instantly told him something that filled him with a sort of eager fury and doubled the strength of his appetite. His nose told him that a Mouse had passed along that tunnel only a short time before and in which direction. Short-tail turned in that direction and hurried.

Half buried in the ground was a log that was partly hollow. The only opening to that hollow was in the end of the log and it was straight to that end that the tunnel led. As Short-tail ran the smell of Mouse grew stronger. When he reached the entrance to that hollow in the log the smell was so strong that he knew that Mouse was in there. He knew, too, that that Mouse was as big as himself and perhaps bigger. Did he hesitate? Not for one second. Instead he darted in.

Now the Mouse in that hollow log was a Meadow Mouse or Field Mouse, a stout, chuncky fellow bigger than Short-tail and no coward. He had fought many a battle and he was ready to fight now. He must fight, for there was no way for him to escape from that log without passing Short-tail. He was trapped. He didn't wait to be attacked. No, sir, he didn't wait for that. He met Short-tail half way.

So the fight started in that hollow log, just a little way in. Presently the fighters tumbled outside and scattered the leaves so that they were in broad daylight, tumbling about and snapping at each other, forgetful of all else. The big Mouse had a pair of bright eyes. Wouldn't you think that out there where he could use them they would have given him a big advantage? They didn't. He could see where to bite, while the Shrew couldn't. But somehow the latter seemed to know just as well as if he could see. Without sight he still seemed to know just where the throat of that Mouse was, and to be trying for a hold there.

That big Mouse fought hard, but he couldn neither conquer his blind enemy nor could he escape from him. Short-tail was a fighting fury driven by a relentless appetite. He ate that Mouse bigger than himself and a few hours later was hungry again.

Charles, Sheriff Aspirant, Wins Jousting Title

2,000 at Mechanicsville Tourney; Candidates Are Speakers.

By the Associated Press.

Mechanicsville, Md., Aug. 31.—The riding ability of R. H. Hungerford would easily qualify him for sheriff from a Wild West county.

The Democratic candidate for sheriff from peaceful Charles County won the knights' tournament today here, held by the volunteer fire department. He was adjudged the best knight in the professional class.

About 2,000 persons witnessed the joustings for rings by 20 knights.

Senator Tydings, seeking re-election although on the Administration's purge list, delivered the charge to the knights.

Second best rider who snared the rings with a long lance was Thomas Weems, of Lusby, Calvert County.

In the amateur class, Lawrence Gates, of Washington, was declared the best knight. Second was Claude Johnson, Morganza, St. Marys County.

State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer, Democratic candidate for Governor, gave the coronation address tonight in which he "hoped to be known as the knight from Annapolis next year."

Montgomery Plurality for Jackson Seen

Jones, Delegate Candidate, Says Mayor Will Win by 5,000.

Charles C. Jones, of Kensington, Md., predicted last night, in a radio address from Baltimore, that Montgomery County would give Mayor Howard W. Jackson a "two-to-one" majority over other candidates for the Maryland Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the September 12 primary.

Jones, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for House of Delegates on the organization ticket, declared:

"With the strength that Mayor Jackson has in Montgomery County, it seems impossible that he should receive anything less than a 2-to-1 vote. I predict the Montgomery County majority for Mayor Jackson and his running mates will approach 5,000."

Referring to a radio address by Montgomery County State's Attorney James H. Pugh in behalf of the candidacy of Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor for Governor, Jones said:

"Mr. Pugh predicted a sweeping majority for Mr. O'Conor in Montgomery County. Mr. Pugh indicated he was leading a strongly organized effort in support of Mr. O'Conor's candidacy.

"The fact is that Mr. Pugh is the only one of the 16 Democratic county candidates elected in Montgomery County in the last county election in 1934 who is supporting Mr. O'Connor."

Jones paid tribute to Mayor Jackson's "vision and courage," declaring "he brought Baltimore safely through the worst days of the depression, caring for all of the people who were without means to buy food, clothing and shelter."

Another in the series of rallies being sponsored by the Montgomery County Independent Democratic faction will be held September 6 at 8 p. m. at the Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, Md.

Speakers will include State's Attorney James H. Pugh, candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Senator; Joseph Cantrel, who is seeking the nomination for the Congressional seat of Representative David J. Lewis; William Wilder Evans, candidate for the Democrtaic nomination for State's attorney; Bessie H. Guerry, candidate for the orphan's court nomination, and Lauman T. Faulconer, candidate for the nomination to House of Delegates on the Democratic ticket.

Judge Lifts Ban Restraining Sale Of Ashland Park

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 31 (AP).—Judge Frederick W. Coleman informed the town of Ashland today that he had dissolved a temporary injunction restraining the town council from selling the town park to the Postoffice Department as a site for a proposed new postoffice.

Dissolving of the injunction does not affect a suit now pending in Judge Coleman's court to permanently restrain sale of the lot. The suit will be decided later by Judge Coleman.

The injunction was obtained last week by a group of Ashland citizens opposed to the sale. Controversy over the site of the new building has been going on for almost a year.

Tame Ducks Shot By Md. Poachers

Frederick, Md., Aug. 31 (AP).—District Game Warden Benjamin F. Phebus investigated reports today that several of the gray mallard ducks released by sportsmen here recently have been shot by poachers.

Phebus said he had been informed 2 out of 20 hatchery bred ducks stocked on the Monocacy had been killed and another wounded by a person firing a .22-caliber gun. He also investigated reports two dead ducks had been offered for sale Sunday near Point of Rocks.

The birds are as tame as domestic ducks, he said, and would fall easy victims to unscrupulous hunters.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

THE TWO COLONELS.

Rightly or wrongly, Steve Early, the younger of the two non-Roosevelton (I almost said nonsecretarian) secretaries to the President, has the reputation around Washington of being the only man in White House circles who dares to tell FDR things he might not like to hear.

Mrs. Jock Whitney . . . urged greatman at the White House, because speaking up to the President isn't easy in any administration. . . . One of the New Dealers who ranks among the top three has told me that he always sizes up the President when he has something to tell him.

"If he doesn't seem to be in the mood," he said, "I just don't tell him."

• • • •

In this embattled regime the strain around the White House would be immensely greater if, instead of Early and Marvin McIntyre, the secretarying were being done by lesser diplomats such as George Akerson and Ted Joslin, who secretaried for Mr. Hoover.

"—the impartial gauntlet"

It is difficult to overestimate the unobtrusive power in the hands of these two Southern gentlemen, and it is easy to underestimate it. The mere right to help decide, in a critical moment, who shall see the President first, and who shall see him last, and who shall not see him at all, is tremendous.

• • • •

Someone must help make these decisions, and it is just as well that callers run the gauntlet of two secretaries who don't happen to be plugging for any pet political theories or any novel governmental philosophies of their own. Their attitudes come pretty close to what is sometimes lightly called 100% Americanism.

• • • •

McIntyre has an excellent disposition that ought to be bottled and sold (or given free) to the few sourpusses around Washington . . . His amiability is infectious, and he helps set the pitch of good nature and high spirits often prevalent around the White House and on presidential expeditions. He is said to be able to sing in three quartets simultaneously.

• • • •

Lately he has been urged by two of the republic's greatest glamor girls—Norma Shearer and Liz Whitney, the beauteous wife of Jock Whitney—to begin eating yeast regularly, so as to take on some weight. But he keeps forgetting. He is still able to boast a batting percentage of 1.000 in the Hyde Park ball games between the White House crowd and the press——4 hits in 4 times up.

"—newspapermen themselves"

Once Mac saw a group of girls dining at a nearby table. "I wonder if those are some of the youth movement girls who are meeting at Vassar," he said. "They look queer enough to be."

• • • •

That's a clue to his political philosophy. He looks on such things a little suspiciously, as radical or at least unnatural. Girls should be having fun and not indulging in youth movements.

• • • •

Steve Early is noted for scrupulous courtesy and considerateness, like McIntyre, but also for a hair-trigger temper which he can turn on and off most effectively. Once he spotte a photographer snapping some members of a White House expedition in a rather hilarious pose.

"None of that, gentlemen," he flared. "When we work, we work; and when we play, it's off the record."

• • • •

Both Steve and Mac were veteran newspapermen themselves when they went to the White House, and they remember how it was on the other side of the fence; they have not gone brass hat . . . They help modify the heat the President pours on the newsmen occasionally in his sardonic way. They are in favor of the more abundant life, because they want everyone to be happy; but they emphasize technique rather than theology.

Tydings' Speech Is Highlight of Mechanicsville Tournament

Not to miss the fun and contests, Elizabeth Beach (left), of Mutual, Md., and Mary Louise Asbury, of Broomes Island, clambered to this vantage point.

"Lots of luck, son," is what 13-year-old William Moeller, of Charlotte Hall, Md., probably wished Senator Tydings yesterday at the carnival sponsored by the Mechanicsville Fire Department.

Gibson, G. O. P. Entry, Files As Goldsborough Opponent

Unexpected Rival Enters After Deadline in Md. First District.

By the Associated Press.

Cambridge, Md., Aug. 31.—Representative T. Alan Goldsborough, veteran Democratic Congressman from Maryland's First District, had something else to think about today beside plans to entertain President Roosevelt in Denton Monday—unexpected opposition to his re-election.

Goldsborough, seeking his tenth term as a Representative, has no opposition in the Democratic primaries September 12, and no Republican had filed in the First District when the deadline for filing candidates passed last week.

Assistant Attorney General Charles T. Leviness disclosed in Baltimore today, however, that Charles H. Gibson, for 11 years Government attorney for the Virgin Islands and a figure in the Senate inquiry into the island administration of former Gov. Paul M. Pearson, had been nominated by the G. O. P. State central committee against Goldsborough.

Gibson was dismissed in 1933 on Pearson's recommendation.

His certificate of candidacy was filed Saturday and approved by the attorney general's office under a section of the election law providing that a party central committee may name a candidate to fill a vacancy on a ticket.

As a result, Goldsborough faces a contest with Gibson in the general election November 8.

CHARLES H. GIBSON.

W. David Tilghman, jr., chairman of the Republican State central committee, said Gibson, a resident of Church Creek near here, and a lifelong Republican although never an officeholder, had "a good chance to lick Goldsborough."

"We're going to carry the fight to every Democratic Congressman in the State," Tilghman added, "and there's every reason to think the prospects of Republican success are more than bright in all six districts."

M. D. Rhodes Dies; Noted Dairyman

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 31.—Miller D. Rhodes, 64, president of the Valley of Virginia Co-Operative Milk Producers Association here since its organization 20 years ago, one of the outstanding dairymen in the State and a former president of the Virginia State Dairymen's Association, will be buried Thursday morning at Zion Mennonite Church, near his home at Broadway, in North Rockingham.

Mr. Rhodes died yesterday morning.

Mr. Rhodes was president of the Shenandoah Cow Testing Association and also of the Sparkling Springs Co., which owns a mountain health resort near his home. He was also a director in the Virginia Guernsey Cattle Breeders Association and the Virginia Dairymen's Association.

He is survived by four children—Robert and Joseph Rhodes, Mrs. Nellie Whissen and Miss Julia Rhodes—all of Broadway.

Jackson Asked by O'Conor To Clarify His Tax Policies

Attorney General Asks Rival in Md. Governor Race to Reveal Present Stand on Gross Receipts and General Sales Levies.

By the Associated Press.

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 31.—Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor said tonight the "paramount issue" of the campaign for Democratic nomination to the Governorship "is a clear cut statement" from Mayor Howard W. Jackson on his tax policies.

Mayor Jackson, opponent of O'Conor, favored a 2 per cent sales tax when emergency revenue was needed for Baltimore, O'Conor said in a speech prepared for delivery here.

"From that time to the present we have not heard from the mayor as to whether or not he still espouses a sales tax," said O'Conor. "For all we know he still favors such a plan for raising necessary revenue in the next State administration, since he has criticized my plan for a graduated income tax in lieu of other taxes."

He said during the emergency when finances needed by the State last year because of relief expenditures totaled $6,000,000 "I mentioned the consumers' sales tax as being preferable toa gross receipts tax and at the same time suggested an alternate list of possible sources of revenue."

"The crisis has passed, however, and it is clear that the present need is to devise a long-range plan of financing for relief and other needs of State. In a permanent program of financing, the sales tax cannot . . . find a place. It is wrong in principle because it is levied on consumption, and thus hits the poor man relatively harder than the well-to-do.

". . . As I did two months ago, with no results, so do I today ask my opponent . . . 'Mr. Jackson, where do you stand upon these questions? Are you for a gross receipts tax or against it? Are you for a general sales tax as you were some years ago or are you now against it? Are you for an increase in the State tax on real estate or are you against it?'"

Rep. Smith Files Notice Of Race for Reelection

Richmond, Va., Aug. 31 (AP).—Representative Howard W. Smith, renominated in the August Democratic primary, today filed notice of his candidacy in the general election with Secretary of the Commonwealth Raymond Jackson. Candidates have until September 9 to file their notices, Mr. Jackson said.

Ex-Delegate, Grocer Shot After Dispute

Junius Love Accused of Wounding Tenant at Hagerstown.

By the Associated Press.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 31.—A tussle over a gun between Junius A. Love, 54, former member of the House of Delegates, and a tenant who was moving cause, wounds to both men today.

Love was shot through the right hand while Ernest W. Gorderman, 34, a grocer, was shot through the left wrist. Gorderman was said to be the more seriously wounded and both men were held at the hospital for treatment.

Police Capt. Carl H. McCleary said a warrant was obtained by Gorderman against the former State legislator charging assault with intent to kill. He said the warrant will not be served until Love is released from the hospital. The gun, a .45-caliber Luger, from which both bullets were fired in the scuffle, belonged to Love, Capt. McCleary said.

"Gorderman was moving from the store which Love owned," McCleary said, "when the store owner came around and complained about a pile of rubbish. Gorderman said his rent was paid up until tomorrow and told Love to get out of the store. Love went home and got the gun and came back to the store. Gorderman grabbed for the gun and a fight started."

The warrant was issued at the request of Gorderman's wife. State's Attorney Martin L. Ingram said he would make an immediate investigation of the shooting.

Love served one term in the State Legislature several years ago. He is a retired merchant.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 31.—Dead and dying fish by the hundreds have been noted by local sportsmen in recent days in the section below the canal dam in the Potomac River. Apparently poisoned by chemicals from industrial plants along the river, fish and eels are dying by the score along the river bank where they can be seen swimming in search of fresh water. State conservation officials have been notified of the situation.

Deputy Game Warden Joseph A. Minke said today that he counted over 300 small bass, sunfish, catfish, suckers, eels and carp floating down the river dead. Some of the fish made desperate efforts to get above the dam but are unable to get over the obstruction.

Minke asked to have the flood gates opened but Fire Chief Reid C. Hoenicka advised that this would make conditions worse above the dam. Minke recommends that the city have a "fish ladder" built by next summer which will furnish the thousands of fish an opportunity to get upstream above the Celanese plant where the water is less polluted.

W. Va. Explosion Kills Four Miners

Charleston, W. Va., Aug 31 (AP).—Chief N. P. Rhinehart, of the State department of mines, reported today a gas explosion in the New River Coal Co. mine at Summerlee, Fayette County, had killed four men.

Rhinehart said the blast occurred last night while the night shift was at work. The victims were identified by Rhinehart as George Jackson, John Hardy, Sam Hurst and W. R. Taylor.

The chief said he had been informed the four men struck an "accumulation of gas." A spark apparently set it off, he added.

On the stage, Phil Harris and his orchestra, featuring songstress Ruth Tobin. Also Peppino and Camille, dance team.

The direction is Henry King's and Alice Faye, Tyrone Power and Don Ameche play the leads, supported by Ethel Merman, Jack Haley, Jean Hersholt and others.

RKO-KEITH'S — "Carefree" entered its second week yesterday, true to the tradition that dancing musicals starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers shall play extended runs at the Fifteenth street house. First picture presenting the couple together in nearly a year and a half, "Carefree" rates highly as delicious eye and ear entertainment.

WARNER BROS. METROPOLITAN—That colossal gorilla is loose again—and we don't mean the one Chief Wahoo is trying to catch. King Kong, which was responsible for tons of fingernail scraps a few years ago, is revived for a week's engagement. Fay Wray, Robert Armstrong and Bruce Cabot share acting honors with the huge ape.

LOEW'S COLUMBIA — "The Crowd Roars," in which Robert Taylor turns up as a prizefighter, opened yesterday for another week on F street following its run at the Palace. A distinguished supporting cast includes Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan, Edward Arnold and Lionel Stander. Principal supplementary feature is the second episode of "Dick Tracy Returns."

TRANS-LUX—"Old Towns of Normandy," which includes Rouen and Lisieux; "Down the Chesapeake," a feature closer to home; "Surf Heroes," depicting Uncle Sam's lifeguards in action, and the cartoon "Wynken, Blynken and Nod" are among the short subjects on the new bill. There will also be, as usual, a complete review of the news as viewed by the camera.

MOUNT VERNON OPEN-AIR THEATER—"Joy of Living," starring Irene Dunne and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., is the feature attraction for the remainder of the week. Opens today.

Tracy to Umpire Youngsters' Game

Spencer Tracy put himself on the spot when he offered to umpire a baseball game between "Our Gang" and the kids from "Boys Town."

For the juvenile baseball championship of the studio, the two teams will meet on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer back lot when the "Boys Town" troupe returns from its location trip to Omaha, Nebr. Tracy promised his services as umpire.

A question then arose as to the eligibility of Mickey Rooney. "Our Gang" claimed he was too big and the "Boys Town" gang said they had built their team around him and his loss might mean defeat.

Both gangs have agreed, however, to "put it up to Tracy"—and to abide by his decision.

Love Birds.

Judy Garland just couldn't decide what to name the two love birds given her on her birthday by Clark Gable. As a result she put favorite girls' names in one hat, and boys' names in the other, then pulled one out of each. The names Clark and Peggy won.

$250,000 Movie Quiz Begins in Big Drive

Plenty of Pictures Already Here on Which Local Entrants May Get Started; Contest Books Available.

By Gerald G. Gross,
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

THEY'RE OFF.

Heads aswim with visions of two-garage houses, trips around the world, lifetime annuities and all the other possibilities, millions of picture goers in every nook and cranny of the Nation take off today in the $250,000 movie quiz contest.

It is the most sensational part of the "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment" campaign. There has never been anything like it before. It will make you cuss, perhaps, but it may make you independently wealthy.

The facts are simply these. The movie people are so confident that this is motion pictures' greatest year they are staking $600,000 in newspaper advertising and a cool quarter million in a Nation-wide contest behind their judgment.

Entrants in the huge competition will have between today and December 31 to supply answers to questions contained in quiz books which will be available from today forward at nearly 16,000 theaters in the United States and Canada, including all those in Washington. One hundred million of the booklets have been printed.

Questions are based upon 94 feature pictures. However, it is necessary to answer those pertaining to only 30, any 30. In addition, the entrant will submit a 50-word essay on the picture that he liked best, and why. First prize is $50,000, $25,000 goes to the second-place winner. Altogether there are 5,404 cash awards, aggregating $250,000. Complete details are explained in the booklets, which may be obtained for the asking.

Frank La Falce, of the local campaign committee, reminds Washingtonians—through this desk—that several of the 94 contest films are already here or just around the corner. They include "Three Loves Has Nancy" and "Four's a Crowd," coming tomorrow to Loew's Capitol and Warners' Earle, respectively; "Carefree," now at Keith's; "Alexander's Ragtime Band," at the Palace; "The Crowd Roars," Columbia; "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," at the Metropolitan; "The Texans," at the Capitol, and "Boy Meets Girls," at the Earle. Now playing the neighborhood are "Little Miss Broadway," "Mother Carey's Chickens," "Professor Beware," "Gateway," "Letter of Introduction," "Keep Smiling," "Rich Man—Poor Girl," and "Give Me a Sailor."

Local Warner Bros. interests broke out yesterday with a slough of hot news. They announced, for one thing, a number of personnel changes affecting the organization's theaters in this territory. Another important item was the disclosure that the Takoma, popular neighborhood house, today will join the Warner family!

Next, that Chester Morris, who requires no introduction to film addicts, will make a personal appearance on the Earle stage the week of September 9. Finally and not least, Phil Harris who, with his orchestra, headlines the vaudeville bill coming to the Earle tomorrow, has just signed a contract for the Jack Benny radio program.

The shifts in personnel, which are in accord with Mr. Payette's policy of promotion from the ranks, are effective today.

Lamar Keen has been made manager of the new Silver Theater, Georgia avenue at the Colesville pike, which will be opened later this month. Keen goes to the new theater from the Avalon.

To the Avalon goes Fred McMillan, while McMillan's post as manager of the Savoy will be filled by LeRoy Sherman, who leaves the Tivoli, where he was assistant manager.

Other promotions include:

Plans to lease the Takoma, a 750-seater at Fourth and Butternut streets northwest, from the Takoma Theater Corporation were announced last June. William Cleveland will continue as manager.

The temporary conductor of this desk is deeply regretful that the press of duties at a forementioned desk made it impossible for him to be present when the new Atlas Theater was dedicated and opened last night. From descriptions of this new house, it is one that not only the Northeast section, but the entire city may well be proud of. Congratulations to the owners, the Managing Director C. H. Olive, Architect John J. Zink and to all who had anything to do with the building and operation of the Atlas!

From the New York sanctum of William Fields comes news that Robert Emmet Sherwood's latest play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," will tenant the National the week of October 3. A three-day stand in Baltimore will follow, prior to the New York opening on October 15.

Maxwell Anderson, Elmer Rice, Sidney Howard, S. N. Behrman and Mr. Sherwood, associated together as the Playwrights' Producing Co., are responsible for the staging of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." Raymond Massey, the British actor soon to be seen here in the movie "Drums," will play the Great Emancipator. Muriel Kirkland is cast as Mary Todd Lincoln.

The playwrights' group will offer two other productions during the coming season. One is a musical comedy, "Knickerbocker Holiday," by Anderson and Kurt Weill, starring Walter Huston. The other is Rice's drama, "American Landscape."

Fitting Needed.

Spencer Tracy wears only one outfit in "Boys Town," but it proved a headache to the studio wardrobe department. His weight has not varied in three years, so while the star was on vacation in Honolulu, they made up the clerical garb he wears in the picture. When he reported for fittings, he was 15 pounds lighter than when he started work in "Test Pilot."

'Trains Down.'

When William Gargan signed for his role as Robert Taylor's prize fight opponent in "The Crowd Roars," he also signed an agreement that he would "make the weight" in 20 days, and by diet and exercise reduced from 190 pounds to 174 in 14 days.

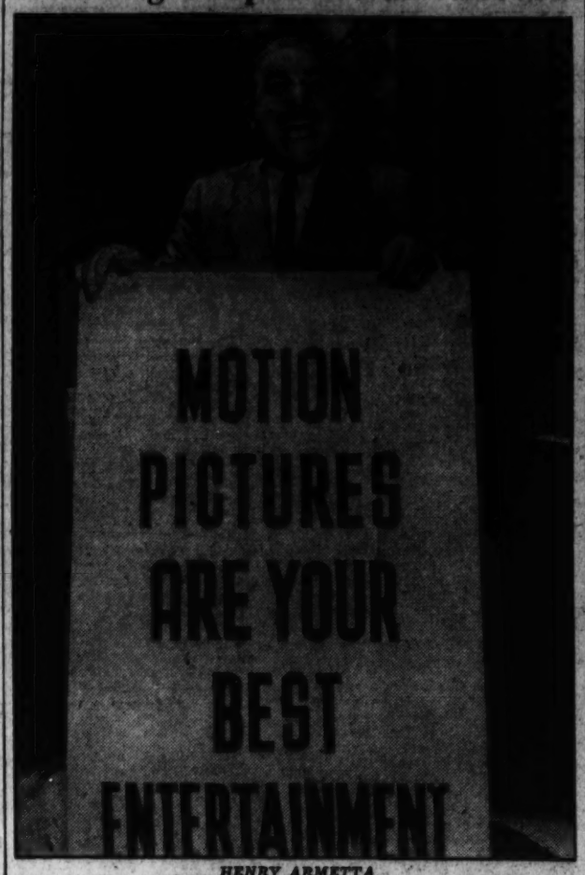
Photos Discarded.

Photographs of old buildings in Vienna, framed to deck sets in "The Great Waltz" were thrown into the discard, and paintings and engravings substituted. Technical adviser Richard von Opel explained that photographs did not exist until 1851 when printing-out paper was discovered.

Gift to Star.

A Chilean delegation visited Clark Gable on the "Too Hot to Handle" set and presented him with a volume of "Chile," containing hundreds of beautiful photographs of the South American country.

Presenting the Spirit of M. P. A. Y. B. E.



HENRY ARMETTA,
the popular Italo-American comedian, takes time off from his duties on the Twentieth Century-Fox lot to display his personal reaction to the Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment campaign.

Comedians All Are Accidents

Looking over the records recently, Bob Hope came through with the pertinent observation that comedians are purely accidental.

As a comedian, Hope himself is an accident. So, he claims, are all the other funnymen of screen and radio.

"Look!" argues Hope, "You always hear of young men studying to be lawyers, doctors, dentists, plumbers, but never hear of any young man whose ambition is to be a comedian."

To bolster his case, he ran through the list with Martha Raye on the set of "Give Me a Sailor," their new comedy.

There's Jack Benny, the buckaroo of "Artists and Models Abroad." He started as a violinist, began interspersing his tunes with a little talk, then finally drifted to talk altogether.

W. C. Fields started as a juggler and Eddie Cantor as a juggler's assistant. Even Fred Allen was first a juggler. Jack Oakie was a broker's assistant, then a song and dance man.

"And," continues Hope, "Charlie McCarthy began as a tree."

Hope hoofed a nifty "off to Buffalo" in theaters large and small, and, like Benny, began putting in a little "patter."

"There really isn't any way for an ambitious youngster to study to be a comic. The only way you can ever find out if you're a comedian is to get in a situation where comedy might help."

Rufe Davis, Paramount's hillbilly comic, started making those "human sound effects" that have made him famous, to entertain the babies in the family of 12, of which he was the eldest.

Fancy Revival Given Variety By Billy Rose

Broadway Impresario Taking Delight in Proving Vaudeville Still Alive.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 31.—Billy Rose demonstrated once again upon Broadway this week that he is a skeptical fellow. Not a cynic, but he wazes more ebullient when told something is impossible.

Once he was told that it would be impossible to enter a shorthand writing contest because he had sprained his thumb. He stuck an ink pen through a potato, grasped the potato in the palm of his hand and won the shorthand championship of the world.

Once they told him that the road theater, excepting the larger cities, was a thing of the past. He took his revue, "Crazy Quilt," and went on a tour of one-night stands that hadn't been visited by Broadway shows for a decade and he played to standing room only almost everywhere.

Billy Glorifying Vaudeville.

Since the historic old Palace Theater, at the heart of Times Square, was turned into a movie house, the word spread quickly that vaudeville was dead. The song writing, shorthand speedster Rose took that as another challenge. He redecorated the old Earl Carroll theater into a streamlined playhouse and announced that he was open to prove that vaudeville still would pay. That was a couple of years ago that he began it, and it has paid him plenty.

True, he started out in a big way and with a program that no normal vaudeville house could afford, but it expressed an ideal. Eleanor Powell danced her most gingery numbers. Benny Goodman brought out the bluest, most swingy numbers of his band. Jack Dempsey and Jimmy Braddock tried to be a wise-cracking duo—anyway, they tried.

Now Rose has opened his Casa Manana with a prime vaudeville bill that may yet prove the Rose contention that vaudeville isn't dead, except that the old professionals say that the modern Rose bills make the old Palace bills seem almost amateurish and niggardly.

Jeeter in Variety.

This one begins with Ted Lewis, his battered high hat and orchestra, and wanders on to blonde Patricia Ellis, who is leaving her movie career for a moment while seeking to become a throaty romantic singer. She has a good maestro in Al Siegal, a piano player who first brought out Ethel Merman, as well as three or four others of the top romantic singers of today. Siegal is not a romantic looking composer himself, but his 15 years' record on Broadway demonstrates that he knows how to teach these synthetic heart-broken girls how to sing.

No. 1 man in Rose's vaudeville bill is the same song and dance man who was No. 1 on the old Keith-Albee bills for so many years—James Barton. When vaudeville wilted, Barton became a legitimate star and has been playing the leading role of Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road" for about five years now.

In fact, he is still playing "Tobacco Road." He rushes from his early show at Rose's Casa Manana each night to play his role in "Tobacco Road." After wallowing in the sand and turnips of that drama, he rushes back to Rose's playhouse to play his second vaudeville bill there after midnight. In the daytime Barton manages and plays on a baseball team on Long Island. In his spare moments he may be looking for regular work.

Famed Dancer on New Capitol Bill

whom Ziegfeld glorified and who has a legion of admirers in the Capital, returns for a week's engagement beginning tomorrow at Loew's Capitol as the headliner of the vaudeville presentation. "Three Loves Has Nancy" will be complimentary screen attraction.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Aug. 31.—Had a letter from Gloucester, Mass., saying that Leopold Stokowski had dug himself into Jack Hammond's house, and the place was surrounded by armed guards. He wants to be alone. Does that mean Garbo will make that her first stop instead of Hollywood? Understand she's on her way over. If you know Gloucester it couldn't be funnier—just a peace-loving community where nobody pays any attention to you.

HEDDA HOPPER

The Assistance League party at the Troc last night was a humdinger. And it is still ringing a bell in my ears. Harry Richman, Milton Berle and his Ma, the Pirouettes, who did their stuff in the cellar, and a newcomer, Jack Copp, fresh from Harvard, did a couple of songs which were riotous. A new idea in song writing, reminiscent a bit of Dwight Fisk, only cleaner.

Gene Towne, husband of the chairman of the entertainment committee, came back for the party. Left a week ago for parts unknown, saying, if he heard another word about assistance, he'd need some himself. Mrs. Hancock Banning, who founded the league, smiling her thanks for all those who attended.

I understand these cigarette girls in some of our night clubs get $2 a night, and have to turn over their tips to the big boss who employs them.

Being thrown from her horse will keep Mary Astor off the screen for weeks. Barbara Stanwyck had a similar accident several years ago. And Anna Q. Nielsen has never entirely recovered from hers. Those glamour girls had better stay in the drawing room. Keep out of the stable—it's safer.

Frank Lloyd has had tough luck with his four race horses. But the other day he placed a bet on a horse trained by his own trainer but owned by some one else. Horse paid 18 to 1. Frank said: "At last I know how to beat it—I'll retire my ponies to pasture and just bet on the other fellow's."

When the new American Legion Stadium opens around the first of October, you'll be able to see Slapsie Maxie go three rounds with Errol Flynn. When they asked Slapsie to fight it out for the Motion Picture Relief Fund, he said, I've got a movie career ahead and must consider my beauty. If you can get another star to come in with me I'll do it." Errol Flynn volunteered. You'll come miles to see it.

Writer Jack Morgan, who's made such a success of his "Cock 'n Bull" here, is opening another just like it in New York, a slingshot off Fifth avenue. Then he and Phyllis start on a trip around the world on a friend's yacht. Have you ever heard of such luck? Added to that, his son, aged 9, got first prize for swimming and tennis at Douglas Camp near Carmel. Now I ask you! And he knows no more about running a restaurant than I do about writing a column.

It was just like Pearl White to leave a large part of her estate to needy actors. And this in spite of the fact that she's been away from our business since 1921. Wish there were more like her. Some years ago, knowing that a prominent director was having a tough time, she went to him—tried to lend him $3,000 and couldn't understand why he wouldn't take it. That's unusual, too.

You'll have a whale of a good time at the Metro picture, "Three Loves Has Nancy." Janet Gaynor has made charmingly funny a part which could have been slap-happy. Bob Montgomery is always fine. So is Franchot Tone, whose appearance on the screen shocked me. Life has etched such misery on his face, it might have been cut in with a knife. Incidentally, he got the biggest hand of the evening.

Modern Husbands Get Real Break

Exactly 18 2-3 yards of material were required to make just one of the daytime coats that Loretta Young will wear in "Suez," recently begun picture centering in the period 1865-1870.

At modern-day prices, the cost of the material alone would equal the cost of a smart, ready-made coat; so when the "little woman" goes out and falls for some irresistible creation, the average husband should reserve his scowls, and be thankful.

FOUR WALLS THAT HOLD A WORLD!

"GOING TO THE MOVIES" has become as much a part of modern life as going to work or going home to dinner. It is a habit that survives wars, strikes, political upheaval and national crises.

The first "movies" were gaped at in much the same way as their contemporaries, the first automobiles. Today nobody stands at the curb to yell, "Get a horse!" at the streamlined version of either. The modern motion picture is as far a cry from the nickelodeon "flicker" as the sleek sixteen-cylinder limousine is from its one-lunged ancestor.

This development was possible because "going to the movies", like automobiling, became a national habit.

Why? Why do we "go to the movies"?

Motion Pictures intensify life!

For the younger generation, especially, an evening at the "movies" offers nearer kinship with other people — a greater insight into life — than a visit with neighbors.

The "movies" have given our eyes new ways of seeing. Because a star's face appears before us on the screen in a hundred-square-foot "close-up", we are more familiar with her features than with those of our sister.

A portrait of a motion picture audience would show peace in the darkened theatre, happiness . . . freedom from care . . . hands held. As the audience reacts to what is taking place on the screen, it shares its feelings — and affirms that man is a social being. It is a group experience that is good for each of us, good for our individualities.

* * * *

Motion pictures are today the chief cultural possession of the average man and woman. Millions who are removed from the other arts find in the film their literature, their expressions of beauty in form and design, their interpretations of the world about them.

While the motion picture theatre is itself a great classroom in which our generation has acquired matchless knowledge of far regions and understanding of distant peoples.

* * * *

There is more than a passing connection between the American way of life and American leadership in the world of motion pictures.

For the "movie" is, by its very nature, a democratic product — the cooperative effort of the talents of many people. Their work is subject to the approval of the box-office, a referendum as accurate as that of the ballot-box itself.

It is in this public expression that motion pictures have found their greatest inspiration — their constant challenge to new endeavor.

Now, to provide the finest array of productions ever released, the Motion Picture Industry has mobilized all its skill, all its imagination, all its resources.

One after another these fine pictures are coming to the screen of your favorite theatre — a world within four walls.

Entertainment, relaxation, freedom from care are yours in overflowing measure, brought to you week after week by the supreme efforts of the Motion Picture Industry to make this fall season one you will never forget.

All-Stars Rout Redskins, 28 to 16, Before 80,000

20 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1938 ***

This Morning

With
Shirley Povich

Chicago, Aug. 31.—To his credit in two years as head coach of the Washington Redskins, red-headed, freckle-faced Ray Flaherty has one Eastern championship and one national title. But not the least remarkable of his accomplishments with the Redskins has been Flaherty's feat of de-emphasizing Owner George Preston Marshall.

POVICH.

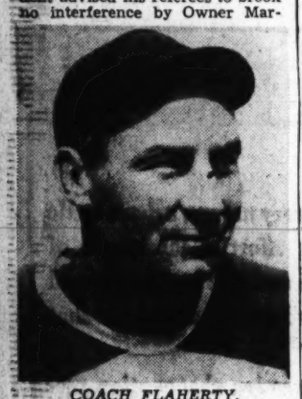
Among Flaherty's problems when he took over the slumbering, second-division Redskins at the start of the 1936 season was Owner Marshall. He was aware immediately that if the Redskins were to achieve any degree of success in the pro league, he must eliminate not only the dead wood on the team but, to a great extent, Owner Marshall.

Previous to 1936, Marshall was not only owner of the Redskins, but a self-appointed co-coach. To a succession of Boston coaches, notably Lone Star Dietz and Harvard's Eddie Casey, that was very annoying. They were afraid to speak right out, but in their more mellow moments they let it be understood that they did not consider Owner Marshall a football man. They had grave doubts that Co-Coach Marshall knew a spinner play from a 6-2-2-1 defense.

Mr. Marshall Insisted.

But as the man who met the pay roll, Marshall insisted on his privileges. He sat on the Redskins' bench, helped to direct the Redskins' attack and conferred lengthily with his coaches on substitutions. And at any moment Marshall, in mufti, with his coattails flying in the breeze, might be seen sprinting out to scene of action to upbraid the game's officials or demand that the opposition be penalized for illegal tactics that he (Marshall) had detected all by himself. Perhaps it would be to point out a footprint where an enemy back had stepped out of bounds, or perhaps Marshall's foray on the field would merely take the form of demanding a better break from the officials.

Finally, the league took action against Mr. Marshall. After several warnings had failed to deter him, the National League president advised his referees to brook no interference by Owner Marshall during the progress of the game and to penalize the Redskins, if necessary.



COACH FLAHERTY.

But the league did not go so far as to keep Owner Marshall off the Redskins' bench. He did have a proprietary interest in the club, after all. The feat of keeping Owner Marshall off the bench was finally accomplished by Ray Flaherty.

Flaherty, as an end with the New York Giants for five years, knew of Marshall's habits and one of the considerations under which he took the job with the Redskins was that Marshall pick himself a nice box in the upper stands and remain there from the opening whistle to the final toot. At least that is the story, and it appears well founded, for Marshall no longer is an occupant of the Redskins' bench.

Marshall a "Spotter."

We understand that at Boston a few years ago, Marshall was in the hair of Redskin Coach Lone Star Dietz so consistently that Dietz was at his wits' ends for a way to tell Marshall tactfully that his presence on the bench was not only unnecessary but downright annoying.

The Redskins, on one occasion, were trooping onto the field for an important game with the New York Giants when Dietz suddenly discovered that he was without a "spotter." From his seat on the Redskins' bench, he was unable to get an adequate perspective of the game and it was Dietz's habit to have a trusty co-coach spotting the plays from the press box and relaying the flaws and weaknesses of both the enemy and the Redskins by telephone to the bench from his vantage point in the upper deck.

As we were saying, on this particular day Dietz had no assistant coach available for the spotter's job. And then he thought of Marshall. It was, at least, an idea. If Marshall were in the press box Dietz, at least, would be rid of him on the bench. He suggested to the Redskins owner that Marshall could serve the team well if he acted as "spotter" and phoned to the bench what he saw from above.

Always willing to help his coach, Marshall graciously consented to take the job and hastened to the press box to find the telephone and begin his running-fire of comment on the game. Down on the bench, Dietz would have the ear phones affixed to his head and would appreciate any criticisms that Marshall might make of the play. At least Dietz said he would appreciate them, but there is a well-founded suspicion that he was merely trying to get rid of Marshall.

Anyway, that was the setup as the Redskins and the Giants took the field for the opening kick-off. Dietz reached for the head phones. It seems, however, that there was some difficulty there. He had trou-

Greenberg Clouts 46th As Tigers Beat Yanks

Detroit Hangs 12-6 Defeat on Leaders; Hank Also Hits Two Doubles; Is Nine Games Ahead of Babe's Pace.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 31.—Hank Greenberg remained nine games in front of Babe Ruth's record home-run pace by whacking his forty-sixth round-tripper of the season today in pacing the Detroit Tigers to a 12-to-6 victory over the Yankees.

Hank also clouted a pair of doubles and drove in three runs. Dixie Walker helped the Tiger cause with a homer, and Tommy Henrich clouted his twentieth of the year for the Yanks.

The Tigers got away from the barrier fast, scored 10 runs off Rookie Steve Sundra in the first four innings and coasted in from there. Despite that wide early lead, however, the Tiger starter, Alton Benton, was unable to hold out against the Yanks, and was relieved by Vernon Kennedy as the New Yorkers threatened in the fourth. Kennedy went the rest of the way and received credit for his eleventh win of the year.

The Tigers collected 14 hits to 11 for the Yanks, but bunched them in the early frames to put the game on ice. Sundra started the game by walking the first three men and then Greenberg hit for two bases to feature a four-run rally. After that the Tigers had it easy.

Greenberg's homer today came in the Tigers' 122nd game excluding one tie. Ruth, in his record 1927 year, when he hit 60 for the season, did not get his forty-sixth until the Yanks' 131st game.

Hank Greenberg Hits 46th Homer of Year.

GREENBERG.

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Hank Greenberg, the Detroit Tigers' No. 1 slugger, hit his forty-sixth homer of the year today to remain in front of the record pace Babe Ruth set in 1927, when he hit 60 homers for the season.

Greenberg's round-tripper today came off Rookie Steve Sundra with the bases empty in the second inning of the game with the Yankees.

It was the Tiger's 122d game of the year. In 1927 Ruth didn't hit his forty-sixth until the Yank's 128th game. In his 122d, Ruth had only 42 homers.

Seabiscuit, Stagehand In Gold Cup Event

Chicago, Aug. 31 (AP).—Led by Seabiscuit and Stagehand, a list of 35 nominees for Hawthorne's $15,000 added Gold Cup was announced today by Charles Krtuckoff, president of the Chicago Businessmen's Racing Association.

The mile and a quarter stake, which will be run Saturday, September 17, drew a potentially strong supporting cast for the Biscuit, star of C. S. Howard's stable, and Maxwell Howard's Santa Anita Derby and handicap winner, Stagehand.

The list included Tom Tassart's filly, Marica, unbeaten champion of her sex; Hal Price Headley's Menow; W. S. Kilmer's Nedayr, winner of the Arlington Classic; Mrs. Emil Denemark's War Minstrel, Arlington Stars and Stripes winner; the Travers Stake victor, Thanksgiving, owned by Mrs. Parker Cornins, and Bull Lea, from the Calumet Farms Stable.

Bob Doerr Leads Attack With Double, 2 Singles.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 31.—The Boston Red Sox snapped out of a three-game losing streak today by beating the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 3.

The Brown's hurler, Howard (Lefty) Mills, allowed only seven hits but was wild. He walked five men and four of them scored. Bobby Doerr led the Sox attack with a double, two singles and two stolen bases.

Harlond Clift, St. Louis third-sacker, slapped his twenty-ninth home run of the season into the leftfield screen in the fourth inning after George McQuinn had singled. McQuinn and Clift accounted for five of the Brown's eight hits.

Keltner Hits 2 Homers to Pace Indians.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Ken Keltner, rookie third sacker, led the Cleveland Indians to an 8-6 victory over the Athletics today.

Keltner hit homers No. 23 and 24 in his 1938 record. His second round-tripper of the day knotted the score at 6-all in the eighth inning.

The Indians scored twice in the ninth on Weatherly's double and singles by Campbell and Trosky. Werber hit a homer for the A's.

Sandlot Pick-ups

The past week brought forth some of the best hurling and heaviest slugging seen on the sandlots this season . . . Did you notice where Phil Boundford, crack shortstop of the Union Printers' nine, collected five hits in five trips to the plate? . . . and Phil drove out a homer and double to boost his extra base hit record. Brother Moran, of the Berwyn Athletic Club aggregation, got four hits in four times at bat, a homer and a triple included . . . Moran's homer came in the fourth with the bases loaded.

• • • •

In addition to pitching three-hit ball, and striking out 15 of the opposition, Tom Sutphin, ace Wakefield Dairy mound artist, whacked four hits in five appearances at the plate to lead his chums to a 14-5 win over the Marlboro Athletic Club team . . . And it seems that the name of Chappalear is always popping up in this department . . . Chappy, who plays rightfield for the Anacostia Motor boys, slammed five hits in five attempts, and with all that nifty wood work, had to be content in watching his team go down to a 9-5 defeat to the White Oak squad, of Federicksburg, Va.

Here is another for your sandlot record book . . . Earl Moran, whose brother did all that heavy slugging mentioned previously, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the Laconia Athletic Club . . . Sorry Earl, we should have known about this before . . .

Incidentally, his team—the Berwyn Athletic Club—walloped the Laconia lads, 19-2 . . . "Flinger" Fones, of the Retail Clerks, fanned 12, allowed only 2 hits, and did not walk a man, as the Retailers defeated the Atlantic & Pacific crew, 4-1 . . . This was a tough one for any hurler to lose . . . And it happened to be two to suffer in this case . . . Two lads by the names of Quick and Mackie, one working the first four innings and the other the last five, pitched a one-hit ball game and yet lost because of walks and errors which occurred in the second frame . . .

Giants Win First, 6-5; Bucs Take 2d, 12-3

Crowd 43,586, Largest Ever to See Regular Game in Pitt, Turns Out to See 'Crucial' Battle of National League.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 31.—Before a crowd of 43,586, largest ever to turn out for a regular season game in Forbes Field, the Pirates marched on toward the National League pennant today by splitting a double-header with the second-place New York Giants.

The New Yorkers took a nip-and-tuck opener decision, 6 to 5, on an unearned run in the ninth, but the Pirates came back with a 16-hit barrage behind Red Lucas' 8-hit pitching, for a lop-sided 12-to-3 victory in the nightcap.

The split gave the Bucs two of the three tilts played in the current four-game series and left them with a 6½-game lead over the Giants.

Bues Kick Game Away.

After staging an uphill fight in the opener, to tie at 5-all in the seventh inning, the Bucs kicked the game away in the final frame. Johnny McCarthy opened with a single and brought the deciding run all the way around on the combination of an error by Lee Handley, who threw a double-play ball into right field, and a passed ball, charged to Al Todd.

Johnny Wittig, recent Giant importation from Baltimore, was the fourth and winning pitcher for the Giants, entering the game during the seventh inning and hurling hitless ball the rest of the way. Russ Bauers, summoned during the Giants' three-run uprising in the fifth, was charged with the setback.

The Pirates finished the game under protest, however, after a decision on a base runner in the sixth. With runners on first and second, Bauers hit to Shortstop George Myatt, who threw to Catcher Harry Danning. Gus Suhr, who had started for home, headed back to third, but when he arrived there, Pep Young was already on the bag. Young was obviously out, since Suhr had prior possession of the bag, but Umpire Ziggy Sears waved Suhr off the bag and Danning touched him, precipitating a Pirate argument, which wound up in the protest.

Just a Breeze.

The nightcap was just a push-over for Pittsburgh. Red Lucas got off to a shaky start, giving up 2 runs in the first. After that, however, the only run off him was Mel Ott's homer in the eighth. Master Mel also whacked one in Arky Vaughan Edges Near Lombardi Mark.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 31 (AP).—Arky Vaughan, who holds down the shortstop spot for the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates, thinks he has a "fine chance" of repeating his 1935 league batting championship this campaign.

VAUGHAN.

The shortstop, who batted .385 three years ago, was third in league batting today with .321. Ernie Lombardi, of the Reds, is on top with .342, and Phil Weintraub, of the Phillies, second with .336.

Vaughan said he thought he could "catch Ernie in the stretch."

Warrenton Show Sees Big Attendance

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 31.—Advance sale of reserved seat and boxes for the thirty-ninth annual Warrenton Horse Show to be held Friday and Saturday, September 9 and 10 indicate an excellent attendance for the two-day exhibition, known as the "hunter show of America," according to the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.

New wings have been built for the jumps and the ring made ready for the figure 8 course which will be used in Warrenton for the first time this season. The judges' stand has been removed to one side of the ring, affording more room for performances.

ter for a touchdown on the first play of the final period.

The Redskins countered with a touchdown that cut the score to 21 to 16 after a 44-yard pass from Baugh to Riley Smith, but their every hope for victory vanished later in the fourth quarter, when Minnesota's Andy Uram intercepted a pass by Tuckey and raced 41 yards to a touchdown.

Labeled 6-to-5 favorites to defeat the squad which is being hailed as the most powerful College All-Star team ever assembled, the Redskins were given a last-minute lecture by Head Coach Ray Flaherty in the dressing room beneath the stands.

As the two teams took the field a few minutes before game time, the far-flung horseshoe was crammed to its 90,000 capacity by thrill-seeking fans.

Gentle breezes sweeping in from nearby Lake Michigan tempered what otherwise would have been a very warm summer's night. It was not football weather, however, and the heat was bemoaned by both players and spectators.

The vanguard of the huge crowd began filtering into the stadium in early afternoon and Chicago's boulevards were a maze of traffic headed stadiumward as darkness fell. Bands began blaring as dusk gathered and from the top ridges of the field thousands of lights twinkled.

Fifteen minutes before game time the All-Star College band, an imposing procession of 165 pieces, paraded the length of the field blaring the more popular college songs.

The pageantry reached its height when, a few minutes before 8:30 p. m., all lights were darkened and a spotlight picked up each member of the College All-Stars as he sprinted from the bench onto the field to the accompaniment of his college song.

To a deafening roar, the Redskins were introduced as a group as the band blared the official song of the professional champions, "Hail to the Redskins."

The 90,000 gasped at the size of the College All-Stars, who appeared to outweigh the Redskins, but they had eyes chiefly for two players—Sammy Baugh and Whizzer White.

Reports that Baugh would not be in the Redskins' starting line-up were revealed as unfounded when the forward-passing ace took his position with his teammates for the kick-off. He was easily discernible by the huge No. 33 and his slightness of build in comparison to the other players on the field was a surprise to the 90,000.

Santa Anita Purses To Hit $907,000

Los Angeles, Aug. 31 (AP).—Santa Anita Race Track, already a strong contender for winter turf honors, will try to become the Nation's No. 1 track in 1939.

The lavish Arcadia plant will give away the highest prize total in the history of racing during 53 days of competition next year, it was learned today. Prizes will total $907,000.

This total will be $200,000 richer than the aggregate sum ever awarded at any track. It provides an average daily distribution of about $17,250—or approximately $2,000 a day better than Belmont, Pimlico, Arlington Park and other "Ivy" Eastern courses.

Post Nine Booking.

The Washington Post Circulators would like to schedule an out-of-town nine in a Labor Day tussle. The White Oak Athletic Club, of Fredericksburg, Va.; Remington, Stafford Courthouse and the Winchester Park teams are especially challenged. Call Potomac 2004 or write to N. M. Shirley Povich's Play-by-Play Description of Redskin-All-Star Grid Classic

FIRST QUARTER.

The AllStars elected to kick after winning the toss and the Redskins defended the south goal. Capt. Markov of the All-Stars kicked off to Riley Smith, who received on the 10-yard line and made a 28-yard return before Monsky hauled him down. Baugh was stopped by Sweeney at left and for no gain. Baugh passed to Riley Smith for a 5-yard gain.

Baugh's attempted pass to Pinckert was incomplete. From his own 43 Baugh punted outside on the All-Stars' 12-yard line, but the play was recalled and the Redskins penalized 5 yards for offside play by Edwards. Baugh punted poorly on the last down, the ball going outside on the All-Stars' 45, a 15-yard punt.

Isbell was thrown for a 8-yard loss by Edwards on a swing around right end. Isbell fumbled the center's pass but recovered for a 5-yard loss. A long pass from Isbell to Puplis was incomplete, the ball slipping through Puplis' hands on the Redskins' 25-yard line with a clear field ahead.

Isbell punted to the Redskins' 20-yard line, but the All-Stars were penalized for offside and the ball recalled. Isbell punted to Riley Smith, who made a 13-yard return to the Redskins' 32.

Baugh faked a pass and dashed 5 yards through right tackle before he slipped. Baugh's attempted pass to Malone in the flat zone was intercepted by Shirley, who juggled the ball and finally held it, racing to the Redskins' 21-yard line before Baugh brought him down. Puplis smashed at the Redskins' left side for 2 yards, Barber bringing him down. Barber and Olsen stopped Patrick at left guard after a yard and a half gain.

Kovats replaced Schawitz at left for the Collegians. The All-Stars called a time out. McDonald, of Ohio State, replaced Puplis at quarterback. The Collegians are managing to bring their best blockers into play. Isbell aimed a pass at Sweeney which fell incomplete in the end zone. On fourth down, McDonald place-kicked a field goal, a low boat which barely cleared the crossbar.

Score—All-Stars, 3; Redskins, 0.

Nine minutes of the quarter remained as Markov kicked off to the All-Stars, Riley Smith returning the ball 23 yards to his 28-yard line.

Krause banged through right tackle for 4 yards. Baugh lost 4 yards on a reverse play. Kovacs making the tackle. Baugh heaved a distant pass to Riley Smith for a 26-yard gain to the All-Stars' 42-yard line, Uram hauling Smith down from behind on the play. Krause swept through left tackle for 8 yards behind blocking by Baugh. A reverse, Baugh to Krause, netted 2 yards at left and a first down, on the All-Stars' 37. Baugh's short pass to Malone was incomplete.

Krause dashed far to the sidelines, took a pass from Baugh in the open and gained 14 yards to the Collegians' 23. Wells stopped Krause after a 2-yard gain at right tackle. Baugh flipped a lateral pass to Malone, who was bumped out of bounds by Patrick on the All-Stars' 6-yard line. Davis and Vance, star collegians' defense men, replaced McDonald and Patrick in the All-Stars' backfield. Krause smashed the middle of the line for 4 yards. Krause plunged across the goal behind the blocking of Edwards and Barber.

Redskins, 7; All-Stars, 3.

Two minutes of the first quarter remained as the All-Stars decided to receive the next kickoff. Edwards kicked to Isbell, who took the ball on the goal line and returned 35 yards before Krause brought him down. Uram took a pass from Davis behind the line and Pinckert threw him for a 5-yard loss. Baugh's pass to Riley Smith for no gain. Isbell passed to Sweeney for a 22-yard gain to midfield, Sweeney taking the ball on Baugh's head to intercept it. Jack White, of Princeton, replaced Vance in the All-Stars' backfield. A horde of Redskin substitutions, ready to go into the game, were withheld on the All-Stars' 18-yard line by Krause. Isbell passed over the center of the line to Kovats for a 14-yard gain to the Redskins' 4-yard line as the quarter ended.

The Redskins inserted three new backs, Turkey, Karamatic and Justice, with Baugh, Pinckert and Krause leaving the game. Davis hit right tackle for 3 yards. Davis hit the same spot, but was stopped on the 1-inch line by Karamatic. Edwards threw Davis for a 2-yard loss on a spinner play and the Redskins took the ball on their own 3-yard line.

SECOND PERIOD.

Whizzer White was now in the All-Stars line-up. From behind the goal line, Karamatic kicked to midfield, Whizzer White returning 8 yards to the Redskins' 42 before he slipped. McDonald was stopped for no gain by Malone and Barber. White's long pass to Bitz was knocked down by Karamatic, who barely missed intercepting the ball, but the Redskins were penalized 5 yards for offside play. White, rushed by McChesney on a pass play relief, got rid of the ball to save a loss.

Griffs Held To Four Hits; Case Injured

Chicago Ace Retires 17 of First 18 Men to Face Him.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Johnny Whitehead, robust Chicago pitcher who is one size smaller than a blimp, betook his stylish stout figure to the mound yesterday and proceeded to tame the native athletes with one of the finest performances witnessed here this season. The score was 7-0.

With the smooth motion of a pop-bottle thrower Whitehead virtually hypnotized Washington's batters, setting them down with four scattered hits. He pitched to only 30 men—none of whom reached second, and sent 'em back in order in six of the nine innings. The Nats, moreover, coaxed nary a walk from him, and he fanned one in the bargain.

The home team, incidentally, may have suffered more damage than the loss of another game, for George Case, doe-footed outfielder, strained a ligament racing to first on an infield out in the first inning and was withdrawn from the game at the start of the third. Taft Wright replaced him.

Case to Race Chapman.

Trainer Mike Martin reported the seriousness of Case's injury can not be determined until today, but thought a day of rest and treatment might bring him around. Case, lest you have forgotten, is scheduled to race Ben Chapman, of the Red Sox, in a special 100-yard sprint for the league championship and purse of $1,000 next Monday.

It is difficult to ferret out a good feature of the Nats' work, unless it be Joe Krakauskas' relief twirling in the last two innings. "Dutch" Leonard, who drew the starting assignment, did tolerably well until the seventh when the Sox blasted his offerings to the extent of four runs and five hits.

Krakauskas walked two men in the eighth after retiring Steinbach, then worked out of the difficulty nicely, breezing through the ninth.

Leonard was nicked for a hit in each of the first three innings, but not until the fourth did the visitors get around to scoring—and even then fast fielding by Sam West cut off at least one run. Walker opened with a well hit double to left, and Radcliff followed with a single to right, Walker pulling up at third. Leonard filled the remaining base by bouncing a curve off Appling's neck.

Dykes Gets 2 Hits.

Steinbacher popped up to West in center, Walker scoring after the catch, but Radcliffe was out trying to make third on Sam's swift peg to Buddy Lewis. Appling went to second on the throw, and scored on Dykes' single.

Grandpa Dykes, the 42-year-old "recruit," who is replacing the injured "Bozie" Berger at second base, was no drawback to the club, banging out two hits in three official trips to the plate, scoring a run and performing flawlessly afield.

Leonard escaped further damage until the Sox ganged up on him and clinched the honors with their five-run barrage—and it was Dykes who instigated the uprising with a smart rap to left. He galloped around to third on Schlueter's single to right, and scored a moment later on Whitehead's roller to Myer. Buddy tried for Dykes at the plate, but the throw was high and tardy.

Kuhel sacrificed, but all hands were safe when Lewis dropped Leonard's peg intended to catch Schlueter at third. Owen punched a Texas leaguer to centerfield, scoring Schlueter and leaving the bases filled. Walker singled to left, scoring Whitehead and Kuhel and sending Owen to third. Owen scored as Radcliff drove into a double play, and the day's run-making was over.

The Nats made feeble gestures toward avoiding a shutout in the last two innings, but both hitters, Myer and Wright, were left as Whitehead retired their successors in order.

Today it will be Lee pitching for the Sox against Kelley for Washington, in Chicago's final appearance here this season.

World Trot Marks Set

Rosalind Sets Record at Syracuse.

By the Associated Press.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Two world's records were broken and another equaled while a 17-year-old track record also fell in grand circuit races at the New oYrk State Fair today.

Her Ladyship, owned by Hotel Baker Stables, Charles, Ill., and driven by Sep Palin, equaled her own world's record for pacing mares when she covered the first heat of the Jefferson-Clinton Hotel Stake in 1:58¼ and came back with miles in 1:58½ and 1:59¼ for a world's three-heat record for a pacer.

Rosalind, 1936 Hambletonian winner, trotted a mile in 1:57¼, accompanied by a prompter, to cut two full seconds from her own best mark and establish a new world's record for trotting mares.

Four heats were needed to decide the winner of the $5,000 Maberle Congress Stake. Kelly, owned and driven by Pat O'Connell, of Cleveland, won in the runoff.

Woodstock Is Winner.

Woodstock, Va., Aug. 31.—Woodstock finally defeated Strasburg, leaders in the Shenandoah County League, 20-to-18, here today in a batting contest that victimized six hurlers. The losers twice relinquished a comfortable margin, a double by Poplin starting off a rally in the eighth that put Woodstock ahead to stay.

Cubs Beaten By Bees, 6-4

Boston Stages Rally to Score Victory.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Boston's Bees cashed in on wildness by Bill Lee and Clay Bryant in the ninth inning today, scoring three times to win, 6-to-4, after the Chicago Cubs had taken the lead with a three-run blast in the eighth.

The Cubs batted Lou Fette out of action in their big session after being held in check for seven innings. Then, two walks by Lee, two more by Bryant, mixed with Debs Garms' fourth single of the day and a long fly put the Bees back in front to stay.

Milburn Shoffner, who relieved Fette, received credit for the victory, Boston's second straight in the series. Vince Di Maggio contributed a homer to the Bees' 13-hit attack.

C. Channing, Mather Win In Doubles

Howard and Farrin Bow in Upset; Welsh, Latona Victors.

By Jack Munhall.

Charley Channing figured in his second major upset is a many days in The Post—Middle Atlantic tennis championships yesterday when he paired with Ed Mather to reach th esemifinal doubles round at the expense of second-seeded Lieuts. Bill Howard and Jimmy Farrin in three sets at Edgmoor. The scores were 1—6, 8—6, 6—1.

It was a story-book finish as Channing, the University of Virginia student who had upset Ray Stockinsik in singles the previous day, and the veteran red-thatched Mather fought off a match point in the second set when they trailed, 5—4, and won going away.

Channing's victory, however, was one of the few credited to the juniors yesterday as three impudent youngsters who had been taking great liberties with their elders received overdue spankings.

Barney Welsh, District champion, making his first start in this tournament, set the example by bowling over Mike Nunez, Western High captain, 6—0, 6—2. Second-seeded Hugh Lynch followed with an easy 6—2, 6—2 victory over Billy Turner, Junior Davis Cup star, and then third-seeded Tony Latona walloped Buddy Adair, 6—4, 6—1. These were all quarter-final.

In quarter-final doubles play, the third-seeded team of Bill Breeze and Buddy Adair defeated stubborn Billy Turner and Bill Buchanan, 8—6, 6—3, and second-ranked Hugh Lynch and Ed Baker, subbing for Davie Johnsen, whipped Lieut. Com. Godfrey and his son, Bill, 6—2, 9—7.

Though close scores were the order of the day and several of the matches were unusually interesting and well-played, the upset of Howard and Farrin by the unseeded Channing and Mather was easily the outstanding accomplishment.

The youngish naval officers, recently returned from competition in the national doubles play, were entirely unprepared for the brand of tennis thrown at them by their underdog opponents. After taking the opening set as easily as they expected, Farrin and Howard experienced a letdown and it proved costly. They blew a 4-3 lead in the second set and then capped that failure by muffing match point in the tenth game.

Once Channing and Mather pulled on even terms at 5-5, the handwriting was on the wall. Seeing victory near, they played some of the best doubles seen here this season and, although Farrin and Howard strived hard to make up for their carelessness, won easily in the third set.

Singles semifinals are on the card today. In the first at 4 o'clock, Welsh will meet Channing, and a half hour later Latona and Lynch get together. This latter match is a throwback to last year's tournament when Lynch spotted Latona a set and beat him in the semis, 2—6, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2.

Bibber McCoy, Ernie Dusek Feature Stadium Mat Program

Hans Steinke and Mike Mazurki Oppose Red Ryan, Battle Royal Winner, Vs. Middlekauf.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Ernie Dusek, hailed as the uncrowned wrestling champion of the world (including Brooklyn) risks his unofficial rating tonight at Griffith Stadium, where the evening's oppostiion will be supplied by one Ribber McCoy, a reformed big league ball player.

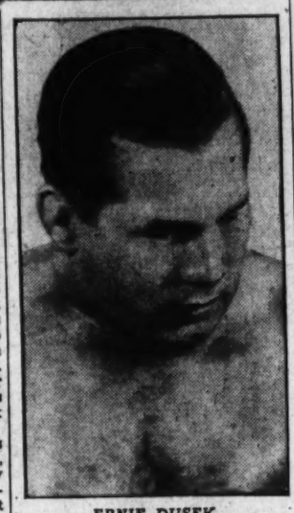
Dusek, who earned fresh recognition as a matman by bouncing Steve Casey around like a tennis ball until an imported referee disqualified him (Dusek), is hankering for a return match with the Irishman, and has Promoter Joe Turner's promise that no stone will be left unturned to get the match—if he throws McCoy.

The bout features a well balanced card in which Hans Steinke returns to the local arena in a semifinal bout against Mike Mazurki, who is headed for trouble when he takes hold of the Dutchman.

McCoy recently defeated Cliff Olson in a wild affair billed as the "Villains" championship joust, and Olson, mat fans will admit, is no weakling. It was a fine feather in the Bibber's cap, and he entertains high hopes of adding another scalp to his belt tonight. Bibber was a three-sport man at Mount St. Mary's, and later a reserve catcher with eDtroit, but didn't find his proper niche in sports until he took up wrestling.

Dusek possibly will continue his clean wrestling in tonight's bout, employing tactics that usually only heroes rely on for results. He announced earlier in the season that he had reformed, and the customers were not little astonished to see him make good on his word. Dusek is the logical choice over McCoy tonight, but if Bibber succeeds in getting in a few underhand tricks, as usual, he has a good chance of winning.

In addition to the Steinke-Masurki go, the card includes Red Ryan, winner of last week's battle royal vs. Bill Middlekauf; Jack League against Hank Barber, and Ed Meske, adonis of the ring, vs. Louis Bacigalupi, the old favorite.



ERNIE DUSEK.

Mama's Boy Beats Out Royal Business in Feature at Marlboro

Washington Horse Pays $5 Ticket

Jungo Takes Down 3d Money; Wahcoo Is Disappointing.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 31.—Washington-owned horses and Capital riders were prominent throughout today's program and it was only fitting that the victor should represent the District in the feature event. Facing six others in the Glen Burnie Purse, Mama's Boy, owned by W. H. Denham, fought his way to the finish line to win by a head from Capt. Ewart Johnston's Royal Business. Two and a half lengths farther back came Jungo to be third.

Mama's Boy proved the first winning favorite on the card and was capably handled by Jockey Cecil Coffman, a Cumberland boy. The winner turned in the best time of the meeting for a mile and one-sixteenth, being clocked in 1:55 2-5 and paid a $5 mutuel.

Mrs. Marshall A. Smith's Wahcoo, a longshot, brought moans to a limited number of bettors. The Chatover gelding drew out to a five-length lead in the opening quarter and appeared to be racing easily. However, when he came to the stretch turn the first time around, he slowed suddenly and before his rider could get him back in action he was last.

Wahcoo "pulled himself up," as the horsemen say, at the place where he finishes his morning workouts.

With Wahcoo eliminated, Royal Business took up the front running with Mama's Boy close up and under a pull. When Coffman asked the Supremus mare for a drive she responded with a burst of speed that sent her to the front. But Royal Business was not through, the game filly coming up on the inside. Coffman saw the move and went to the whip in time to save the purse.

A crowd of 4,000, including Senator Tydings, witnessed the sport.

Roving Eye, ridden by Johnny Shanks, Washington jockey, forgot to stop today and came from off the pace of Oteebee to win the first race at a $16.20 mutuel. Oteebee lasted to be second, ahead of Worthowning, owned by District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

H. M. Simpson's Accidental, an $11.70 shot, won the second race, downing seven other 2-year-olds. The race was the Esso Purse and the little daughter of Balko turned on enough gas to defeat Red Wings by a length and a half with Adhelmar, the favorite, third. Jockey W. Snyder, who rode the choice, claimed a foul against the winner and Red Wings but the numbers stood. The winning filly completed an $88.70 daily double mutuel.

Goantell, owned by C. E. George, of Washington won the third race in a thrilling stretch run that nipped Tractable. Cautious Bo was third in the limit field of eight. Jockey Freddie Faust, a Capital boy, put Goantell to a drive in the closing stages and Jockey Snyder appeared to be "asleep" on Tractable.

Celtic Legend got a step the best of the break in the fourth race and hugged the rail to lead all the way and give Apprentice Hacker his second winner of the program. Inactive took second money via the camera from Stealing Home. The winner paid $12.30.

Umpires Get Police Power in Italy!

Rome, Italy, Aug. 31 (U.P.).—This nation will be "umpire heaven" from today on as a result of a decree giving police powers to all sports officials.

The law, which makes umpires and referees safe from spectators' bottle barrages, was the outstanding result of the five-day referees' congress at Merano.

Henceforward, all arbiters will carry the additional title of "public officers," giving them the authority to immediately arrest anyone using "improper language, making vulgar gestures or throwing objects."

Committee of C. V. B. Cushman, Taylor Hardin, Robert Fletcher, Hubert B. Phipps, and the Rev. C. J. S. Ryley, held their first meeting the past week looking toward the 1938 show.

Grid Coaches Named.

Hagerstown, Aug. 31.—Adrian H. Onderdonk, jr., son of the headmaster, and Harrington Littell, former Trinity College varsity tackle, have been named co-coaches of the St. James School football eleven this season.

ACCIDENTAL, forced wide at first turn for racing room, moved up gradually on outside, disposed of RED WINGS and continued under good hand riding. RED WINGS, off slightly, bothered ADHELMAR after three furlongs and was held safe by winner. ADHELMAR was away well, but failed to rally after being crowded. L'ENVOI closed with good energy. VENDOR'S LIEN was in close quarters along rail and stopped.

12 Pros to Play in Special Match Sunday

Al Jamison Host; Prize Money $130

Ed Oliver, Wilmington Pro, Wiffy Vox, Worsham Play.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Al Jamison, Indian Spring professional, will sponsor the biggest local golf match of the year Sunday at Indian Spring as Ed Oliver, the 21-year-old Wilmington professional, and 11 local mentors will compete for $130 in prize money in an 18-hole sweepstakes and two-ball best ball event.

Oliver was originally scheduled to appear here with Jamison, Wiffy Cox and Lewis Worsham but yesterday Jamison added eight local pros to the program and included a prize of $10 for the longest drive on the first tee. Larry Elliott, WJSV announcer, will act as master of ceremonies for the occasion.

The players will each post $10, with the club donating the prize for the longest drive. The money will be split, $50 to the low score in the sweepstakes, $20 to second, and $50 for the best ball score among the six teams, that will net the winners $25 apiece.

Tee Off at 2 P. M.

The first foursome will leave the tee at 2 p. m., with the others following at 5 minute intervals.

Oliver, a sophmore to the Open tournament ranks, is rated as one of the finest prospects playing competitive golf, and this season has won the Philadelphia, South Jersey and Atlantic City Open tournaments. He and David Douglas won the Lancaster pro-amateur event.

The 200-pound long-hitting Wilmington pro will play with Jamison, host mentor, as a partner in the best ball affair, in the same foursome with Wiffy Cox, Congressional pro, and Lewis Worsham, Chevy Chase assistant.

Other teams include Cliff Spencer, lanky Beaver Dam pro, and Frank Cunningham, Burning Tree, who will play in a foursome with Robert Barnett, Chevy Chase mentor, and his partner Mel Shorey, East Potomac. They play at 2:05.

Walker With Larkin.

Leo Walper, two-time Middle Atlantic P. G. A. champion, will pair with Gene Larkin, Woodmont mentor, and play with the team of George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood pro and Al Treder, Manor.

A four or five under par score by any of the contestants would make it a profitable afternoon as it would win the $50 sweepstakes and in all probability he and his partner would finish as top team in the best ball play.

The public is invited and Jamison is preparing for a crowd of from 1,500 to 2,000 fans fro the match.

The Warner Mather benefit exhibition matches are scheduled the following Sunday over the Four Corners Course, and the merchandise prizes waiting the lucky ticket holders will be exhibited on the first tee in Sunday's exhibition. Tickets for the match aiding the former Woodholme and Rodgers Forge mentor will be on sale.

Ab Jenkins Eyes World Auto Mark.

Indianapolis, Aug. 31 (U.P.).—Ab Jenkins, of Salt Lake City, said tonight that by mid-September he expects to be ready to blaze over Utah's Bonneville salt flats in a powerful new super racing car capable of churning up "from 375 to 400" miles an hour.

His was the second entry in the race to break the world land speed record of 345.49 miles an hour set only last Saturday by Capt. George Eyston, lanky English pilot.

Ab, working with a crew of seven mechanics in a small Indianapolis machine shop, is riveting the final streamlined plates on his giant racer and hopes to have it on the salt beds by September 15.

Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald.
(WJSV-Wheaties Baseball Commentator.)

Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties "Man of the Month."

ZEKE BONURA.

Although his performance yesterday was nothing to merit him a reward for heroism, Zeke Bonura, walloping Nat first baseman, wins the Man of the Month award for August by a greater margin than any of his predecessors—Johnny Stone, May; Al Simmons, June, and Buddy Lewis, July.

Crashing the point score column almost every day last month when his prodigious hitting feats raised his mark from .336 to a more respectable .382, Bonura finished with a total of 53, or 18 more than Buddy Myer, the runner-up.

For his victory, Bonura will receive from The Washington Post a $50 merchandise order that may be drawn on any Washington store.

Distribution of points to the Nats for their inept play yesterday is difficult, but six of the Washington players rose a bit above the level of their mates.

To Buddy Myer, Buddy Lewis, Sammy West and Taft Wright, 2 points apiece, because they each made one of the four hits the Nats got off Whitehead.

To Cecil Travis, one point, because he started one double play and figured in another that cut off Chicago rallies and because he otherwise fielded his shortstop position in flawless style.

To Joe Krakauskas, one point, because, after relieving Dutch Leonard, he pitched hitless and runless ball for two innings.

The Score:

Zeke Bonura	58	Sammy West	13
Buddy Myer	34	Pete Appleton	12
George Case	1	Taft Wright	10
Cecil Travis	24	Monte Weaver	9
Al Simmons	22	Ossie Bluege	9
Harry Kelly	16	Rick Ferrell	8
Dutch Leonard	15	Angelo Giuliani	5
Joe Krakauskas	15	Elon Hogsett	2
Buddy Lewis	14	Jimmy DeShong	1
Ken Chase	13	Jimmy Wasdell	1

Men of the Month—For May, Johnny Stone; for June, Al Simmons; for July, Buddy Lewis; for August, Zeke Bonura.

With Hollidge and Digeronimo slamming out homers and doubles, respectively, Mino Petrone pitched his Urciolo Realty Romans to a 7-2 triumps over the Bethesda Eagles yesterday, advancing his team-mates to the insect semifinals of the Columbian Athletic League.

In other duels held before a large Georgetown crowd, Credit Bureau Peewees swamped the Georgetown Blues, 5-1 and 9-3, while Consolidated Stores pounded Giant Chains, 7-4, to settle a technicality protest of a formerly played game. Lynchy McKeney drove in the deciding runs for the winners when he connected with a fast pitched ball and sent two potential runners in home with his fifth circuit drive of the tournament.

S.E.C. Squads Launch Grid Drills Today

Most Coaches Relying on Sophs to Come Through.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 31.—Southern Conference football squads will launch the 1938 training season tomorrow with at least half of the coaches gambling heavily on the ability of those uncertain sophomores to come through.

Even at North Carolina and Duke, where newcomers barely break into the starting lineups, sophomores were groomed in spring practice for key positions.

Pre-season drills indicated that Coach Ray Wolf may use three first-string sophomores when North Carolina begins defense of its conference title. Paul Severin, a good pass receiver at end, has gained the attention of Coach Wolf who hopes to use more aerials this fall. Gates Kimball, husky tackle, and Jim (Sweet) Lannane, promising passtosser, are the other members of the 1937 freshman outfit who may get the starting call over veterans.

Coach Wallace Wade has a strong first-string backfield but is counting on three sophs—Cy Hennis, Frank Killian and Wesley McAfee—for No. 1 reserve duty. Newcomer Leonard Darnell is regarded as a likely starter for the Blue Devils at end, while Alex Winterson, John Mania and Tom Maloney will be given a shot at the wide-open tackle targets.

Coach D. C. (Pearhead) Walker frankly admits that his Wake Forest Club will rise or fall with the sophomores. Seven or more may be first stringers.

South Carolina and Virginia Military Institute are planning to give their undefeated freshmen of last year first call as reserves. Few are expected to break into the first lineups, as veterans are available for all positions.

Coach Jess Neely at Clemson is also well-supplied with veterans, but may start Aubrey Oion, sophomore triple threat, in the backfield and use new men for replacements at guards and tackles.

There will be many opportunities for sophs at the citadel, with 19 letterman lost by graduation, and at William and Mary and Washington and Lee, where half the men invited tomorrow were freshmen last year.

ble adjusting the things to his head and became entangled in the approximately 500 feet of wiring on his end of the phone.

With his back to the playing field as he fiddled with the ear phones and the wiring, Dietz was completely unaware that the game had started, and unaware, too, that the Giants had run back the opening kick-off to a touchdown and kicked the extra point.

When he finally did get the phones adjusted satisfactorily, he looked out on the field and saw the teams taking their time about lining up in kick-off formation.

"My gawd, George, what's all the delay here?" Dietz spouted into the phone to Marshall. "Aren't they ever going to start this game?"

"Start this game? What are you talking about?" yelled Marshall into the phones from above. "Look at the scoreboard!"

Dietz looked at the scoreboard. What he saw was "Giants, 7; Redskins, 0." Dietz was revived in time for the second half.

Wheat Prices Advance With Late Buying

80½ Cents a Bu. Paid by Government Underlying Factor.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—A brisk buying movement in the last 15 minutes of trading today followed disclosure that the Government had paid as high as 80½ cents a bushel for wheat in expanding its export subsidy program caused a strong rally in wheat futures that wiped out early losses and substituted net fractional gains.

Dealers who previously had sold wheat "short" and today covered their positions after the premiums paid by the Government were announced were believed to have been buyers. Commercial interests who had sold to the Government and were lifting hedges by purchasing futures either at Kansas City or Chicago also were credited with aid in the recovery.

After trading ceased the clearing house disclosed that 3,685,000 bushels of wheat had been tendered to satisfy September contracts tomorrow and that 2,609,000 bushels were retendered. This amount of delivery on contracts is unusually large for the first day, traders said.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ higher, compared with yesterday's finish, September 63, December 64⅞@65, Corn ⅛ to ½ higher, September 52⅞@53, December 51⅝@51½; oats ⅛ to ½ lower; rye ¼ off to ⅛ up; lard 10 to 15 lower.

Building Industry Leads With 144,000 New Workers.

New York, Aug. 31.—Featured by an increase of 144,000 workers in the construction industry from June to July, the total number of persons employed rose by 61,000 during the same period, according to the latest estimates of the statistical division, National Industrial Conference Board. Meanwhile, unemployment dropped off for the second consecutive month, with a total of 10,939,000 unemployed in July indicated by preliminary figures of the Conference Board.

By adding 144,000 workers the construction industry brought its employment total to 1,929,000, a gain of about 8 per cent. The second largest increase in employment occurred in manufacturing, as 39,000 workers were hired to bring the total in July to 8,871,000 workers. Employment in the service industries rose by 23,000 between June and July; in transportation, 15,000; in public utilities, 2,000, and in miscellaneous industries and services, 2,000.

A large drop in employment in the fields of trade, distribution and finance occurred in July, with 103,000 fewer workers than in June. Employment in agriculture decreased by 29,000 workers during the same period, in contrast to the marked gain in agricultural employment from May to June. About 30,000 fewer workers were engaged in the extraction of minerals and 1,000 fewer in forestry and fishing.

While total employment continued to rise, unemployment figures showed a corresponding fall. Among the unemployed counted in the Conference Board estimate for July about 3,500,000 workers were estimated to be attached to the Government emergency labor force, as represented by the WPA and the CCC.

Paper Production Continues to Gain

New York, Aug. 31.—As a result of the contra-seasonal stepping up of paper production during the last three months, the industry is now operating at about 75 per cent of capacity, with indications pointing to further substantial gains in operations during the remainder of the year, according to Poor's Stock Reports.

"Although publishers accumulated large inventories in anticipation of the price increase which took place the first of the year, their stocks of newsprint have been declining since January 1," states the report. "Stocks at mills on July 31 were the lowest they have been at any time since February, 1938."

Engineering Awards Advance 39% in Year

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Major engineering construction awards for August, $236,271,000, were 6 per cent above August, 1937, and highest for any August since 1930, Engineering News-Record reported today. On the basis of weekly averages, August awards topped every month since June, 1937.

Construction awards for eight months of 1938, $1,714,535,000, topped the first eight months of 1937, $1,675,497,000, by 2.3 per cent. August public construction was highest of any August in 14 years, and highest month since January, 1936.

Stocks Fail to Show a Definite Trend as Trading Reflected a Waiting Attitude.

New York, Aug. 31.—The street closed the month of August in a mood of watchful waiting. The mood applied mostly to the European situation for in the domestic field the month brought forth sufficient bits of information to bolster the confidence of those who look for something a little better than the normal seasonal business improvement this fall.

Traders are banking on this to justify the improvement of the last few months in the stock market and also to carry it higher but the fly in the ointment is the behavior of foreign diplomats and there is little Wall Street can do about this other than to sit by and hope. It did little else today, the turnover on the big board amounting to only 461,160 shares, the smallest since August 22, and securities showed no inclination to break out of a narrow range.

Judged by the composite average there was virtually no change, the figure being plus 0.04 point, with the metals, equipments and manufacturing issues a hairbreadth higher and other divisions off slightly. For a period there was special support for the agricultural equipment issues, as our rich but spendthrift Uncle Samuel went into the wheat market and bought grain to export at a loss.

Motors Gain in Month.

The month of August brought moderately lower prices in the stock market but the characteristic of the month was the narrow movement. The above composite was off 1.22 points, which is a comparatively small amount. Of the major groups, only the motors registered a gain. Oils were the weak feature, there being some unsettlement as crude prices weakened in the East Texas field, and steels were next in point of ground lost. The turnover on the big board of 20,728,160 shares for the month was less than for the two preceding months but well above the May total.

In today's dull trading, General Motors was the most active stock but along with Chrysler was no more than firm. Increased interest was noted in the Motion Pictures shares, with Paramount the most active and Loews up 1½. American Smelting stood out in the metal division with a run-up of 2¼, while American Radiator was well liked in the building department. Boeing was the most active of the aviation issues and lost 1¾, while Bendix was off a bare fraction.

Nickel Plate Under Pressure.

Nickel Plate issues were under pressure following the decision of directors to omit the interest payment due tomorrow. The common slumped 3⅛ and the preferred 4⅛ while the various bond issues hit the skids for losses of from 2 to 6 points. Standard Brands, which made a small reduction in its dividend, was active and lost but little.

Trading in commodity markets today was featured by a last-minute run-up in wheat, which offset earlier losses when it was learned the Government had paid 80½ cents a bushel for wheat in connection with its plan to subsidize exports. Futures closed unchanged to plus ⅜-cent in Chicago. Cotton was off 9 to 11 points on hedge selling.

Bond Trading Dull.

Listed bonds were unsettled in a dull market today. Speculative railroad issues receded sympathetically with Nickel Plate bonds, which fell 2 to 6 points on the latest developments regarding the debts of that line.

United States Treasury obligations gave way again, but the decline was less pronounced than on the previous day. In the foreign dollar section most movements were downward. Turnover in all issues was only $3,690,000.

Carrier Liens Drop.

The decision not to pay interest today on one of the Nickel Pate obligations brought heavy trading in the bonds of the carrier at losses of 2 to 6 points. Other borderline rails also were lower, and the intermediate-priced rail issues were only in slightly better demand.

Default rails joined the general downward trend of the carrier section. Rail and utility holding bonds were dull, while communications, local traction, commodity and other special groups attracted no interest.

Treasury Issues.

United States Treasury bonds fell 1-32 to 6-32 point in quiet trading, as dealers and larger institutional investors surveyed the war prospects and the September financing possibilities. Guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations also lost ground, while counter dealings brought small recessions also in Treasury notes. In the corporate division, best grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds held to within small fractions of previous levels.

Czech bonds lost some of the ground gained the previous session, when word got around of the large sinking fund transfer. Belgian bonds gave ground fractionally, while French issues were not traded. Australian and Canadian loans again were in demand. Japanese and Italian obligations remained irregular. Among default issues the main tendency remained downward, but movements were small.

Exchange Bond Sales Smallest in 20 Years

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Turnover of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange during August amounted to only $120,531,425, face value, the smallest volume for any month since July, 1918.

The small turnover was attributed in financial circles to the double-barrel influences of the usual mid-summer trading lethargy and the slackening of the pace of speculative markets following the sharp run-up of prices of both bonds and stocks in late June and early July. The August bond volume compared with turnover of $17,265,000 in July and $147,601,000 in August, 1937.

Insured Banks Assets.

Total assets of insured commercial banks were about $140,000,000 greater on June 30, this year, than on December 31, 1937, though they still were more than $500,000,000 below the figure reported for June 30, 1937, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation announced yesterday. Assets of these banks totaled more than $54,357,000,000 on June 30, 1938.

Steel Activity Advances to 44% Capacity

Labor Day Shutdown to Cause Slight Setback.

New York, Aug. 31.—Steel ingot production will start September at 44 per cent of capacity, a gain of 1 point over last week, but may suffer a slight setback next week owing to the shutting down of some steel making departments on Labor Day, says Iron Age today in its weekly survey of the industry.

"Raw steel output averaged about 42 per cent in August against reported production of 33.42 per cent in July, a gain of approximately 25 per cent. Bookings of steel in August gained from 10 to 25 per cent over those of July, depending upon the company and the product. Thus it appears that a moderate proportion of recent gains in production has been brought about by the building up of semifinished steel inventories in anticipation of further improvement.

"Pig iron production figures for August to be reported next week, will undoubtedly show a fair gain over July. A Sloss-Sheffield furnace which is scheduled to go into blast on September 1, will be the fourth stack to be placed in service in the South within the past two weeks. Southern furnaces have reaffirmed present pig iron prices for the fourth quarter.

"The mprovement in steel business and production during July and August has come about in the face of one of the most perplexing situations the steel industry has faced in many years. Not since the postwar adjustments of 1919, with the possible exception of the elimination of Pittsburgh-plus method of quoting prices in 1924, has the hand of the Federal Government been so plainly evident in matters affecting decisions of steel company managements. Decisions regarding wages are apparently being withheld pending announcement by the public contracts board of the Department of Labor of minimum wage rates for steel plants doing Government work, which is expected within two weeks. Washington opinion is that there will be a "freezing" of present rates, preseving the differentials that exist between various districts. Under such a ruling, any steel company undertaking to cut wages would automatically bar itself from bidding on Government steel requirements.

"There are no definite indications that any important steel company will initiate a wage cut at this time, nor is there any likelihood of higher prices that could be realized over the remainder of this year. Thus the main hope of steel companies is for sufficient improvement in business to lift production above the breakeven point. One or two companies have attained this position, but most producers are continuing to pile up losses.

"Some rail buying by the railroads is expected before the end of the year, though equipment purchases are still in doubt. The New York Central will issue an inquiry for 28,600 tons of rails about September 15. Tin plate buying is at low ebb and operations are down to about 30 per cent. No improvement is looked for until a new price has been announced, possibly in October. Scrap markets are in a waiting position. The Iron Age scrap composite price is unchanged at $14.50."

Plane Production Increase Reported

By the Associated Press.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority reported yesterday that airplane production in the United States in the first half of this year exceeded the corresponding 1937 period by 22 per cent.

In the first six months of this year, the authority said, 1,974 airplanes were manufactured in this country compared with 1,623 in the same period last year. The authority said there was a decrease of 21 per cent, however, in production for domestic civil use.

An increase of 173 per cent was registered in military production, while export production increased 49 per cent. Of the total built in the first half this year, 853 were for domestic civil use, 694 for the military services and the Coast Guard, and 427 for export.

Boston, Aug. 31.—Freight carloadings in July were the highest for any individual month since October of last year which is a seasonally high month for rail shipments. Cotton Eases; December 8.30

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Cotton eased today under the influence of large private crop figures and liquidation. December sold off from 8.38 to close at 8.30, with final prices 9 to 11 points net lower.

The market opened 1 to 3 points lower owing to indifferent Liverpool cables and an increase during the month of 389,000 bales in a private crop estimate to a total of 12,189,000 bales. Recent claims that August crop deterioration has been no more than normal on the whole seemed to receive confirmation in the larger figure. The market turned quiet following further slight early losses.

Electricity Output 7% Under Year Ago

New York, Aug. 31 (AP).—Production of electric power in the United States for the week ended August 27 totaled 2,134,097,000 kilowatt hours, a drop of 3 per cent from 2,138,517,000 in the preceding week and 7 per cent below 2,294,713,000 in the comparable 1937 week, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

The decline, which was not seasonally expected, carried the Associated Press Index of Production, with 1929-30 taken as 100, down to 112.5 from 113.1 the preceding week. A year ago the index, which is adjusted for seasonal and long-term trend, stood at 123.3.

I think one of the surest ways for a married couple to get along together is to have a perfect understanding about the things they like to do. Sometimes a husband'll go along for years makin' sacrifices to make her happy when all the time, she'd been much happier doing the things he gave up for her,

One night Uncle Slug didn't get in until 2 o'clock. Aunt Poody says, "It sure is late for you to be gettin' in!" He says, "It's late for you to be up, too!" She says, "I forced myself to stay awake until you got in," and Uncle Slug says, "Well, I've been hangin' around the pool hall four hours waitin' for you to get asleep!"

Only 8 Killed In D. C. Crashes During August

Toll 5 Under July, Leaving Year to Date 9 Below Figure in 1937.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

The month of August—which brought to Washington a new high in traffic safety activity—ended yesterday with five less fatalities than the month before and a marked drop in accidents and injuries over the same period last year.

Despite the alarming up-trend in child deaths during the first half of the year, organized city-wide efforts to safeguard streets held the August toll to eight fatalities.

Toll 9 Under 1937.

Thus far this year, 61 motorists and pedestrians have met violent deaths in highway mishaps as against 70 for the same period last year.

With nine less fatalities so far, police and traffic officials yesterday appealed for the continued support of District residents in the fight to prevent future mishaps and bring to the city a new safety record by the end of 1938.

As part of the permanent, long-range safety movement, The Washington Post and Junior Board of Commerce yesterday added a new recruit to the growing list of firms and individuals who have pledged themselves to safe-driving habits.

The Hecht Co., through George W. O'Keefe, service superintendent, joined the accident prevention program and agreed to "do its part" in making Washington streets less hazardous.

Operating 68 delivery trucks, the Hecht Co. issued to its drivers a set of rigid instructions for caution in traffic. All company vehicles will display The Post-Junior Board safety emblem, O'Keefe said.

A system of careful supervision and bonuses for safety records among drivers, O'Keefe added, reducer the company's accident record 30 per cent last year.

Records compiled by Mary Kaufman, statistical expert of the Traffic Department, revealed that August accidents dropped to 829 as compared to 1,030 during the same month last year.

Personal injuries dropped to 284 last month as against 324 during August, 1937. In July, with its record death toll of 13, a total of 799 accidents injured 283 persons.

Of the eight killed last month, three were minors—one 4 years old, one 14 and one 19.

70 Boys See Movie.

In the District's program to protect its children from traffic dangers, Capt. Milton D. Smith, commander of the police traffic division, yesterday warned against urging streets as play spots.

Speaking at the second in a series of Y. M. C. A. safety lectures for boys between 9 and 14, Capt. Smith urged youngsters to confie their play to rereation centers set aside for their protection.

More than 70 boys who attended the session received an additional safety lesson in the motion picture "Hit and Run Driver,' provided by the American Automobile Association.

The Commissioners' new citizen's advisory committee on accident prevention, appointed to aid in solving the complex traffic problem, is expected to adopt first recommendations in a long-rang planning program tonight.

D. C. Youth Killed in Vo.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, chairman of the group, has called a meeting at the District National Guard Armory to draft final proposals for presentation to Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

The recommendations will be based on studies by three subcommittees under direction of L. A. Caruthers, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; George Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club and Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the local A. A. A. Club.

A Washington youth met death in traffic in nearby Virginia yesterday.

Thomas Smith, 26, colored, 808 Thirteenth street northeast, was fatally injured at Triangle, Virginia, when he jumped from a truck on which he was stealing a ride to Richmond, and fell beneath rear wheels of the truck's trailer. He died on the way to a hospital.

Guy H. Wright, driver of the empty truck, bound for Pendleton, Va., said he did not know the boy was aboard. State Officer W. L. Billingsly said a technical charge of manslaughter would be placed against Wright. Witnesse s to the mishap showed him to be in no way responsible for the death, the officer stated.

Washington streets, meanwhile, remained free of serious accidents.

Paul Wyatt, 22, of 909 Fifth street northwest, and Margaret Whitten, 18, of 1260 Tenth street northwest, were hurt when the motorcycle they were riding skidded and overturned at Eleventh and N streets northwest.

They were taken to Emergency Hospital with multiple lacerations and bruises.

Milk Price to Rise In Hopewell Area

Richmond, Va., Aug. 31 (AP).—An increase tomorrow of 1 cent a quart in the price paid for "fluid" milk in the Petersburg-Hopewell milkshed will be accompanied by several other changes ordered by the State milk commission in both the Petersburg and the Roanoke areas.

Stores and other purchasers of milk in wholesale lots will be required to give bottle deposits—5 cents for a quart bottle and 3 cents for a pint bottle.

There will be no change in the retail and wholesale prices at Roanoke, but prices paid farmers for Class 1 milk will be reduced from $3.20 to $3.08 a hundred pounds.

Business Rate Continues Up Survey States

Advance Holds Despite Domestic and Foreign Obstacles.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 31.—The upward trend of busines activity that began in June has continued this month, the Guaranty Trust Co. noted today in its monthly economic survey.

"The development is encouraging in view of the obstacles that have existed at home and abroad, including the traditionally dull midsummer season and the renewal of war fears in Europe and the Far East," the bank said.

"As for the international tension in Europe and Asia, it seems to have affected financial markets more than business activity in general. Even these effects were temporary, since quotations resumed their upward course as son as the situtions abroad became less critical.

Discussing past business depresion and revival, the institution said genuine recovery never had been built on the foundation of actual or prospective currency depreciation or the artificial stimulus of governmental borrowing and spending.

"Many of the conditions that ordinarily precede major trade recessions, such as a sustained high level of business activity, swift industrial expansion, widespread speculation and credit strain, were absent at the beginning of the recent slump. As a result, the seriousness of the recession seems to have been generally underestimated during its early stages."

Postoffice Contract Let.

The Treasury awarded a $49,750 contract yesterday to the James I. Barnes Construction Co., Greensboro, N. C., for construction of a postoffice at Altavista, Va.
